On Far Long Island.
12 for One, One for 12.
A New Great Flier.
Psychology, Perhaps.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THIS IS WRITTEN on the 7:20 a. m. train from Montauk, far Eastern end of Long Island, reaching out into the Atlantic Ocean toward Europe.

That piece of the United States interests all Americans, for there, probably, you will land from your trans-Atlantic flying machine coming back from Europe.

THAT FAR END of the island, which is now made into a playground by Carl Fisher, who created Miami Beach, will be the great American city "Nearest to Europe" some day.

At present Mr. George Le Boutillier's excellent "Cannon Ball Express" takes you there in a little over three hours. But while Mr. Le Boutillier is still a young man, he will be running airplanes out there in less than half an hour.

YOU LEAVE Manhattan Island, with the temperature at 96. Three hours later, at Montauk, with the wind coming at full sweep from the ocean, you find it too cold to sit comfortably out of doors.

Not a place for little people to buy lots, too long to hold it. But a big chance for big people foolishly eager to spoil their children with unnecessary wealth.

CHARLES CUNNINGHAM, born at Sag Harbor, nearby, conductor, who collects the three railroad tickets that you must buy in order to have a room and work on the train, says:

"Pleased to meet you. I always read your articles. I was telling the boys yesterday about a piece you wrote two years ago when you said, 'Now there are 12 jobs for every man, but the day will come when there will be 12 men for every job; so take care of your money while you have it.' I guess some of them wish they had taken your advice."

PROBABLY SOME do, but it is not too late. Good times and prosperity will come back, and men now out of work will not be out of work long.

The country is the world's richest, and its wealth is not one-tenth developed.

CAPT. HAWKS, who stands out now as THE GREATEST AMERICAN FLIER, left New York at 6 o'clock in the morning, eastern daylight time, landed in Los Angeles at 50 minutes past 4 p. m., Pacific Standard Time, keeping an appointment to play golf, at the edge of the Pacific, after learning that morning the edge of the Atlantic. His flying time all in broad daylight was less than 15 hours, and he made five stops for gasoline. That will not be necessary in future days, with better machines and better fuel.

THOMAS A. EDISON says our "depression is largely psychological."

Henry Ford says too many of us are "looking for a Santa Claus" instead of getting to work.

There is some defective psychology and some Santa Claus hunting, undoubtedly, but many a man of Mr. Ford's age, 67, and younger without Mr. Ford's ability or fortune is job hunting, not Santa Claus hunting.

HE GOES about, his gray hair dyed a sickly black or brown, to conceal his years, and he is told "we hire younger men." No psychology there, no Santa Claus hunting, but HARD TIMES.

POPE PIUS, through Osservatore Romano, announces the formation of a "pontifical organization for preservation of the faith and the provision of new churches in Rome."

The intention is to combat Protestant proselyting in Rome and suburbs.

A cardinal will preside over the new defense organization, and the Pope imparts the apostolic benediction on all engaged in aiding the enterprise for the preservation of the Catholic faith.

GERMANY MADE a great fight while the war lasted, and has shown amazing powers of recuperation following the war, in spite of the Versailles treaty and the Allies' gold demands.

You understand that when you read "illiteracy in Berlin is only 4 per cent, least of all European capitals."

Of 28,000,000 books on the shelves of European libraries, the city of Berlin has 9,360,000, and all are serious books for students and research workers.

The highest rate of illiteracy is at Teheran, capital of Persia, 82 per cent unable to read or write.

THE MOTTO OF DANTON, French revolutionist, "Audacity, more audacity, always audacity," was, until lately, the motto of all earnest prohibitionists. They never retreated, never vacillated, but said to the men in office, "Disobey us and you will be missing after the next election."

But now the representative of prohibition in New York's Republican party coos as mildly as any sucking dove, begging wet Republicans not to spoil harmony in the national party by dragging in booze.

INCREASING UNEMPLOYMENT in Great Britain encourages Tories. They find a campaign slogan "Unemployment doubles under labor government."

More than 2,000,000 are idle in Great Britain and that fact threatens the Labor party.

At least twice 2,000,000 are out of work in this country. But that doesn't shake our government by benevolent plutocracy.

'MIXED' BABY CALLED TO COURT

Watkins Family Scores in Legal Battle; Bambergers Warned Against Removal

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A writ of habeas corpus requiring Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger to produce in court the infant given them by the Englewood Hospital as their child, but claimed by Mrs. Margaret Watkins as her baby instead of the one given her, was granted today by Judge Robert E. Gentzel.

The writ also restrains the Bambergers from leaving the jurisdiction of the court.

TAGS EXCHANGED

The alleged baby mixup case resulted from the finding by William Watkins, one of the fathers, of a "Bamberger" tag on the back of the child given the Watkinses by the hospital. Investigation revealed the Bambergers' baby wore a "Watkins" tag.

A jury of scientists said the infants had been switched, but a group of physicians disagreed. In behalf of the baby in the Watkins' care a suit has been filed asking the court to determine its identity. Also a $100,000 damage suit has been filed against the hospital in the name of Mrs. Watkins.

CHRISTENING DISPUTED

The bill in today's action alleged that Baby Bamberger was wrongly christened and was the son of Mrs. Watkins. It also alleged the Bambergers planned to leave the city with the child and asked that they be restrained.

The Bambergers have been certain all along they have the right child while the Watkinses believed the babies were mixed.

JAIL STORMED, TWO BEATEN TO DEATH

Mob Takes Prisoners From Cells—Women Aid Men Club and Claw Victims

MARION, Ind., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Two Negroes who are said to have confessed the slaying of Claude Deeter, 23-year-old Fairmount (Ind.) youth, and a criminal attack on his 18-year-old girl companion, were victims of mob violence last night.

Thomas Shipp, 18, and Abe Smith, 19, were taken from jail here, beaten to death and their bodies suspended from a tree on the Courthouse lawn. At 6 o'clock this morning the mob spirit had subsided sufficiently to permit Sheriff Jacob C. Campbell to remove the bodies.

SWIFT RUSH ON JAIL

The prisoners were taken from the jail last night by a mob which formed at Fairmount, Deeter's home city, 10 miles south of here.

Traveling in automobiles, the mob came on to Marion via many routes. A swift attack swept aside a handful of local police and county officers, who sought to repulse the crowd with tea gas bombs. Using heavy sledges, the mob smashed locks and bars and soon had possession of the prisoners.

Women joined with men in belaboring the youths with clubs and hammers. Some women in the throng tore with their fingernails at the victims. Shipp was first clubbed to death. His body was then suspended from a jail window by a rope. Smith was FORBES FIELD, Aug. 8.—A drizzle was falling on the Oakland district this afternoon as the Pirates and Giants clashed in the first game of a double header.

Denny Southern reported to the Pirates today, the new outfielder taking part in the workout of this afternoon.

"I finally made the big league," laughed Southern as he received welcome greeting from his new buddies.

Southern was ready to play and there was a chance that he would swing into action provided the Giants work a left-hander in the second game.

Manager Ens decided to make a little change in his batting order when he learned that Walker would pitch. Comorosky and Traynor were both moved up a notch with Grantham dropping to fifth position. This was done to break up the array of south-paw batters at the top of the order.

Meine started for the Bucs and Walker for the Giants.

The game in detail:

FIRST INNING

NEW YORK—Grantham threw out Critz, Bartell threw out Leach. Lindstrom fanned.

PITTSBURGH—L. Waner singled to right. P. Waner flied to Leach. Comorosky bunted safely, L. Waner taking second. Traynor grounded into a double play, Jackson to Critz to Terry. Two hits.

SECOND INNING

NEW YORK—Bartell threw out Terry. Meine tossed out Ott. Hogan singled to left. Jackson flied to P. Waner. One hit.

PITTSBURGH — Grantham bunted safely. Bartell fanned. Suhr fanned. Bool was safe on Jackson's fumble, Grantham going to third. Meine popped to Jackson. One hit, one error.

THIRD INNING—

NEW YORK—Meine threw out Roettger. Walker singled to right. Critz flied to L. Waner. Leach grounded out to Suhr. One hit.

PITTSBURGH—L. Waner singled to left. P. Waner flied to Roettger. Comorosky flied to Ott. L. Waner went out stealing, Hogan to Jackson. One hit.

FOURTH INNING

NEW YORK—Lindstrom singled to right. A heavy rain fell with Terry at bat, driving hundreds back out of the reserved seats. Terry walked. Traynor fumbled Ott's bunt and the bases were filled. Hogan singled through Suhr, scoring Lindstrom and when Suhr made an unnecessary high throw to the plate, Terry and Ott scored and Hogan took third. Jackson trippled to right center, scoring Hogan. Roettger popped to Suhr. Meine threw out Walker and held Jackson. Traynor threw out Critz. Four runs. Three hits. Two errors.

PITTSBURGH—Traynor flied to Roettger. Grantham walked. Bartell singled to right, Grantham stopping at second. Suhr flied to Leach. Bool flied to Ott. One hit.

FIFTH INNING

NEW YORK—Leach grounded out to Suhr. Bartell threw out Lindstrom. Bartell threw out Terry.

RELIEF SEEN IN LIGHT DRIZZLE

Cool Winds Blowing From Canada Bring Promise to Alleviate Condition in U. S.

A light shower fell this afternoon over a parched city and its environs as Weather Bureau reports brought the first indications of a real break, a few days hence, in the menacing drought and heat which has gripped the entire country. Today's developments included:

1—Experts at the U. S. Weather Bureau at Washington saw in a high pressure area over Northwestern Canada, for the first time in nearly two months, the likely forerunner of rains and lower temperatures.

2—Salvation Army asks all Western Pennsylvania posts of the organization to offer prayers for rain.

3—Death of farmhand is attributed to heat, with no immediate relief from hot weather predicted locally.

A drizzle started shortly before 1 o'clock, causing umbrellas to be hoisted by pedestrians. The amount was scarcely measurable, the Weather Bureau reported, in the first hour of the sprinkle, but hope was held out that a hard shower might develop later.

Fair and warmer weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

DOG GAMBLING AT LOW EBB

The fact that the track was fast, the crowd fairly large and the weather clear did little last night to enthuse the gamblers at the Guyasuta Kennel Club dog race track.

And the low ebb in the spirits of the bookies was due to the activities of a uniformed track officer known as "Ace" not in the interest of law enforcement, but in reminding the bookies that a newspaperman was present. County detectives assigned to the track are not uniformed.

CONFIDENCE RETURNS

It was only after the bookies reasoned wrongly that there was only one newspaperman about and that Officer Ace was watching him that some of their confidence returned and some wagers were made strictly among the professionals. Very little money

CAMPERS SAVE 10 FROM FIRE

Two boys who "camped out" in a lot along the Banksville road probably saved the lives of 10 persons whom they aroused early this morning when fire threatened to destroy a residence at 3010 Banksville road.

Thomas Davis, 16, and his brother, Fred, 13, of 2956 Banksville road, were the heroes.

The boys were aroused by smoke and discovered a small garage in the rear of 2030 Banksville road in flames. The flames threatened to sweep to the residence occupied on the first floor by Virgil Dixon, his wife, Myrtle; their children, Richard and Virginia, and Mrs. Dixon's brother, Clarence Yeckley. The second floor is occupied by George Frank, his wife, Margaret; their children, Norman and Margaret, and Mrs. Frank's mother, Mrs. Rebecca Bell, 75.

The Davis boys aroused the two families. Frank and Dixon led the children and the aged woman to the street. After all occupants had reached the street Frank and Dixon rushed to the garage and pulled Dixon's automobile to safety.

The garage, a one-story frame building, was damaged $400 and the residence $500, said Battalion Chief Herman Weirauch. Firemen laid 600 feet of hose to reach the burning garage.

Scouts Give Hoover First Birthday Gift

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—President Hoover today received the first of his fifty-sixth birthday anniversary gifts from a group of picked Boy Scouts from the District of Columbia.

Although the chief executive's birthday anniversary is not until Sunday, the gift, a carved buffalo horn symbolic of pioneer days, was presented because Mr. Hoover planned to leave Washington late today for his Virginia lodge.

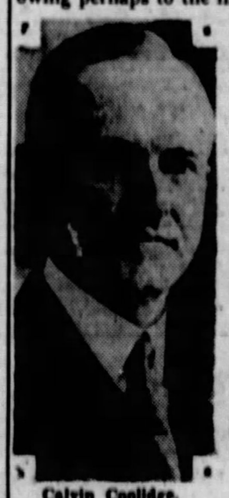
Coolidge Sees Challenge To U. S. in R-100 Flight

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 8.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The successful flight of the R-100 again challenges our progress in aviation.

Notwithstanding our original discoveries, our efforts to build military planes during the war were feverish but, owing perhaps to the limited time, were not highly successful. These experiments, however, did produce equipment and engineering skill. During mobilization, this arm of national defense was somewhat neglected. The elders in the Army and Navy were impatient with the claim of the youth in aviation. The Morrow committee in 1925 laid out a wise plan which quieted the disputes and confusion. Then came the Lindbergh flight with its great impetus to public interest.



Calvin Coolidge.

After that date, commercial aviation had a wide development. The regular mileage for passenger and mail-carrying routes in North and South America expanded tremendously. Much capital and railroad support were secured. But just now progress awaits scientific discovery. A naval officer reports that the best engine is made abroad. That is disconcerting. With the resources now available, the science of construction and the art of safe navigation ought to command the most intense research by both private and governmental agencies. We cannot afford any second place.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

AIRPORT TANGLE UP TO BOARD

The County Commissioners were to meet today, Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong announced on his return from a three weeks' trip in Canada.

Asked if the airport will be discussed, he said:

"There are a lot of things that we have to take care of. I don't know whether we will get to that or not."

The Commissioner was noncommittal on politics or county affairs, preferring to discuss the advantages of Canadian vacations.

"The newspapers are printing a lot of stuff not important to the issue," Norman F. Brown, head of the County Department of Public Works, told members of the Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday, his subject being the new county airport.

Webster, Pierce Kin Facing Poorhouse

RAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Descendants of two of America's immortals today seemed headed for the poor house.

They are Elbridge Perry, 80, declared a relative of Daniel Webster, and Perry's wife, 86, and blind, said to be a niece of President Franklin Pierce.

They have been living in a small farmhouse in South Groveland, on $8 a month furnished by a society for the blind and contributions from a distant relative in Lynn.

Arresting Officer Would Hand Out Own Justice

Railroad Patrolman G. Morgan wanted to administer justice personally when he appeared against J. P. Roush, 32, of 35 Lawn street, whom he had arrested, in Central Police Court, today.

Morgan said:

"This man was drunk and used the worst language I have ever heard at the Pennsylvania Station in all my experience. Let me take him upstairs and I will give him treatment that will do him more good than any fine."

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, however, refused and fined Roush $10 with the option of serving five days in jail.

Police Bullet May Cost Youth's Sight

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Archie Stoltz, 16, Philadelphia, shot by a patrolman here, is in critical condition in a hospital. If he recovers, he may lose the sight of both eyes, it was said at the hospital.

According to police a general order was issued for a round up of suspicious persons and when the patrolman accosted Stoltz he ran. The patrolman fired, the bullet striking Stoltz in the back of the head.

DROUGHT BREAK SEEN BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The U. S. Weather Bureau today offered its first hope of a break in the drought.

A weather condition has arisen in Western Canada which may bring both showers and cooler weather down into the parched central western regions, R. H. Weightman, forecaster, said:

"Showers and cooler weather frequently follow from such a condition over the plain states, the upper Mississippi Valley and the Great Lake states.

"There is some slight hope of relief from the heat wave and drought conditions in these regions in the next two or three days."

Meanwhile President Hoover shunted virtually all ordinary business aside today to set the vast governmental machine in

2 Girl Canoeists Rescued From Carnegie Lake

Two New Kensington girls were rescued from Carnegie Lake, Highland Park, last night, when the canoe in which they were riding capsized.

Unable to swim, they were taken from the water by the two youths with whom they were boating. The girls are Florence Hepler, of Fifteenth street, Arnold, and Amelia Neal, of Fifth avenue, New Kensington. They were rescued by Harold Ladie and Irin Tumblin, both of New Kensington.

All four were in the canoe when one of the youths upset it trying to retrieve the paddle he had dropped. The girls lost consciousness in the water but had fully recovered today.

HUSTON DESERTION CHARGE SHATTERS G. O. P. HARMONY

FOES UPSET, FESS TAKES SADDLE

Retiring Republican Chairman Says He Would Prefer to Stay, Fight 'Whisperers'

By EDWARD L. RODDAN,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Republican harmony program was blasted when Claudius H. Huston reluctantly gave up the national chairmanship yesterday with the charge that Hoover party leaders had deserted him in the face of the enemy.

Somewhat upset by Huston's parting shot, the high command proceeded to carry out the prearranged program of electing Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, a seasoned "Old Guarder," as Huston's successor.

The post of "executive director" in charge of Washington headquarters was created for Robert H. Lucas, commissioner of internal revenue, who will relieve Fess of the detail work in the coming Congressional elections.

DEFI TO HOOVER

George D. Keim, of New Jersey, a newcomer to national politics, was elected committee secretary, the post made vacant some months ago by the retirement of Representative Franklin Fort, also of New Jersey.

Overshadowing the reorganization, however, was Huston's frank announcement that he preferred to retain the post and combat the "whispering campaign" being waged against him.

His defi evidently was directed at those party leaders, said to have been inspired by President Hoover, who insistently demanded that he step down.

Coming on the heels of the revolt of Col. Horace Mann's forces in the South against Hoover's renomination and administration patronage policy, Huston's parting shots accentuated the split in the Republican organization.

Many took them as a portent of a Huston alignment with the Mann forces, against the Hoover group.

WORRIED BY DEPRESSION

Fess took over the chairmanship with the statement that the Republicans would win "contingent majorities" in both Senate and House in the coming elections, although admitting that the prevailing business depression may result in some "disaffection" with the administration.

Fess said the major purpose of the National Committee would be to carry on a campaign of education to convince the public that the depression was world-wide, and that this country had suffered less than others.

The reorganization was effected by the executive committee with 14 members present and eight more represented by proxy. Fess, Lucas and Keim were elected unanimously.

Travelers coming in from the West and South are reporting the regime of President Hoover is at very low ebb in the eyes of the man-in-the-street. They say there is a disposition to blame everything on the administration, even to the point of the failure to rain.

MAYOR GREETS 80TH VETS AT JOHNSTOWN

Waldron, Spaulding and Father Wallace Arrive at Reunion; Parade Tonight

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8.—"Welcome, Buddy," the greeting to veteransof the 80th Division in their four-day reunion here, was flung to the breeze on banners from practically every home and shop window, across the flag-draped streets, from bedecked public buildings and the message was carried personally to nearly 2,000 men at the opening business session by Mayor O. W. Saylor, himself a veteran of the World War, in an address of welcome today.

Three distinguished visitors are Col. W. H. Waldron, war-time chief of staff; Col. George R. Spauling, war-time commander of the 305th Engineers, and ex-chaplain, Edward A. Wallace.

Throughout the day, reunion headquarters at 317 Main street was swamped with the continued inpouring of veterans from Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, from whence came the majority of these men in 1917 and 1918.

2,000 REGISTER

Some of them have scattered since. Many treked into town from all parts of the country. Close to 2,000 had been registered at noon today.

Oscar C. Mulhollen, national commander of the 80th, replied to the address of welcome of Mayor Saylor at this morning's session and then the first business of the reunion was taken up.

The afternoon's program included committee meetings, various important gatherings and a baseball game.

A parade in which at least 30 drum and bugle corps is expected to participate, is scheduled for 7 o'clock this evening. Besides the visiting veterans of the 80th Division, several large delegations of local posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and other civic and patriotic groups will march.

DRUM CORPS COMPETE

Following the parade a competitive drill and drum corps competition will be held in the Point Stadium at which more than $500 in prizes will be awarded.

Yesterday's opening to a four-day session was auspicious. A picnic given by the American Legion was the outstanding event of the day. A program of sports preceded an ox roast and baseball. Quoits and other diversions occupied the attention of the veterans and their guests.

In the evening a street dance was held, music being furnished by the Menoher Post American Legion Band. An entire city block along Market street, between Main and Lincoln streets, was roped off and the veterans and their guests danced until well after midnight.

HURLEY CHIEF SPEAKER

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will make the principal address Saturday evening in the Auditorium, when the annual banquet of the Veterans' Association is held.

New officers will be elected and the new convention city chosen Saturday, Philadelphia and Richmond, Va., are strong contenders for the 1931 reunion.

Watch for tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph for Blue Ridge news.

BOMBER BARES SIX ATTEMPTS TO KILL WIFE

Last Was Successful, Says Man Held in Auto Murder; Welcomes Death in Chair

International News Service.

STINNETT, Tex., Aug. 8.—In one of the most lurid documents ever recorded in Texas criminal annals, A. D. Payne, Amarillo lawyer, had confessed today how, after five previous attempts to take his wife's life, he finally killed her with a home-made infernal machine, placed in the family automobile.

During the last several months Payne had attempted to poison, asphyxiate, drown, shoot and bomb his wife, he revealed. All his previous plots came to naught except one, which resulted in his wife's finger being shot off.

PUT GUN IN CLOSET

On that occasion, he said, he placed a shotgun in a closet in such a manner it would be discharged when the door was opened. Mrs. Payne walked into the trap, but the charge of shot, instead of entering her body, struck her left hand.

Her death finally resulted from the second home-made bomb he placed in the car. Three sticks of dynamite, a quantity of phosphorous, a rubber band and a burlap bag were the principal parts of the "machine" which, on the morning of June 27, demolished the automobile, blew Mrs. Payne to bits and permanently maimed A. D. Jayne, Jr., 9, he said.

LOVE GIVEN AS MOTIVE

Love for his pretty divorced secretary was the motive for the crime, He said:

"I love Verona Thompson more than anything. She is the most beautiful girl I have ever known. She is as pure as the driven snow.

"I am not crazy. I am the meanest man in the world. I don't expect any mercy from the courts, and I do not deserve any. I am headed for the hot chair, and the sooner the better."

Lake Hero

ROBERT F. HENNINGER, 17

STUDENT SAVES DROWNING MAN

Robert Henninger, 17, student at Arnold school, played the role of a hero at Conneaut Lake Park yesterday, according to news received here today.

Robert is credited with rescuing R. H. Wise, Akron engineer, thrown into the lake when his racing boat sank. Young Henninger dove into the lake and dragged the Akron man to safety.

Robert is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henninger, of 1461 Bennington avenue, Squirrel Hill. He is spending the summer at the lake with his mother. Young Henninger was in his own skiff when he saw the accident.

Wise is a prominent engineer and is commodore of the Anchor-Outboard Club of Akron. He is at the lake to complete arrangements for the Penn-Ohio regatta at the lake this month. He was thrown into the water when the motor of his craft "froze" and it sank in mid-lake.

DRYS ISSUE CHALLENGE TO FOES

Anti-Saloon League Defies Opponents to Give Better Plan for Temperance

LITTLE POINT SABLE, Mich., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The executive board of the Anti-Saloon League of America has challenged opponents of prohibition to offer a better plan to bring temperance and sobriety to the nation.

The challenge was included in the declaration of policy and program of action adopted by the board in the last session of its two-day biennial conference yesterday.

"In view of the loose talk by the wets about appeal or modification of the prohibition law, the time has come for a showdown," said the challenge, made public by Dr. F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the League.

"We must insist upon specific statements and enlighten the voters as to merits and demerits of any proposed plan. The public has a right to know exactly what is proposed."

NEWSPAPERS BLAMED

In a preamble to the declaration of policy, the board placed blame for much of the anti-prohibition agitation upon metropolitan newspapers.

"We are gratified over victories of the past," it said, "and the fact that we have held our lines although confronted with an extraordinary situation in that we now face a highly-financed and well-organized wet movement creating an erroneous impression, chiefly through access to metropolitan dailies."

The League inserted in its declaration of policy a threat of opposition for wet candidates and a promise of support for drys, regardless of party, in forthcoming elections.

OUT FOR DRY CONGRESS

"Within the rights of citizenship and democracy," it said, "we will use every endeavor to elect a dry Congress, in both branches and keep an avowed dry in the White House.

"We accept the suggestion of President Hoover and others that respective states do full duty in the matter of enforcement. We pledge ourselves to an aggressive movement in every state for adequate enforcement measures."

A five-year educational campaign to lay responsibility for success of prohibition before the voters and instruct the younger generation on effect of alcohol in the human system was outlined, to be in charge of Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, of Westerville, O.

A half million dollars is to be spent and use is to be made of motion pictures, radio, the press, debates and oratorical contests.

SEEK DIVORCEE IN ZUTA DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Investigation of the murder of Jack Zuta, North Side underworld character, thought to have been a sequel to the killing of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, centered today upon a search for Mrs. Laura Nelson, Chicago divorcee.

Police said Mrs. Nelson, at her apartment here, received a telephone call from Zuta only half an hour before he was slain last Friday in the dance pavilion of Lakeview Hotel near Delafield, Wis.

One hour and five minutes before Zuta called, another telephone call to Mrs. Nelson's apartment was made from Hartland, four miles from the murder scene, investigators declared.

One police theory has been that Zuta was "put on the spot" by a woman.

What About the Blue Ridge Division?

How did the 80th rate as a combat division?
What were its strong points? Its weak points?
Was any officer accused of cowardice, disloyalty?
Was the division misinformed as to the Cunel situation?
What happened to the artillery ammunition September 25?

Read the answers to these questions and many others, EXCLUSIVELY IN THE SUN-TELEGRAPH SATURDAY AND SUNDAY, in a questionnaire answered by Col. Jennings C. Wise.

Col. Wise knows what he writes about. Ex-commandant of V. M. I., battalion commander throughout the campaign, attached to G. H. Q.'s Historical Section afterward, author of two notable war books, he has a grasp of things military, and an astonishing frankness. His latest book, "The Great Crusade," is a virtual history of the division.

DOG TRACK BETS LESS FURTIVE

was flashed. Odds were quoted to many outsiders, however, and after a time the entire business was carried out on a bolder scale.

The noble defender of the law, "Ace," stayed about 10 yards from a reporter all evening in order, no doubt, to protect him from angry gamblers.

When an effort was made to engage in conversation, the officer rushed up and told both participants to do their arguing out of the park. When it was pointed out that this was merely a friendly talk between two friends, nature's nobleman, Ace, blurted out:

"You reporters can't fool me, I recognize you every time—have you seen any bets?"

SEES GLASSES NEEDED

After it was admitted fewer bets were being placed than usual, Ace smirked:

"You oughtta get a pair of glasses."

Satisfied with this remark, he sallied forth into the crowd, to warn all the women and children that a newspaper man was present. Fulfilling this duty, he stuck close by the reporter for the rest of the evening, to see that no harm came to him, no doubt.

Seven races were dragged out through the evening, and because of the lack of enthusiasm, wild rumors of closing up spread through the spectators. However, as the paid admissions exceeded anything for a good many days back, the track probably will be open tonight.

3 'BABY' DOGS GUESTS IN JAIL

Mrs. Rose Dill, matron of North Side Police Station, is host today to three small puppy dogs, aged about 3 weeks.

Two men, who were trying to sell them, police say, were arrested. They were Joe Farley, 54, of 1112 Allegheny avenue, and Tom Kelly, of 120 Washington street, charged with being suspicious persons.

Mrs. Dill, with a nursing bottle, fed milk to the dogs.

RADIO SLAYERS' NAMES KNOWN

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Definite progress in the search for the slayers of Radio Announcer Jerry Buckley was in prospect today as Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox revealed the names of four suspects, and the Wayne Circuit bench met to consider a petition for a 23-man grand jury.

En route to Detroit from Kansas today, Commissioner Wilcox said Thomas Licavoli, Ted Pizzing and Mike Morgany are sought as gunmen who killed Buckley, and that Frank Cammarat is wanted as the man who drove the car which carried the slayers away from the scene of the shooting in the LaSalle Hotel July 23. He added that the motive for the slaying also is known to the police.

Blawnox Man Hurt By Hit-Run Driver

James Contetaro, 40, of Freeport road, Blawnox, was knocked to the street by a hit-run driver at Penn avenue and Evans way, today. He was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital suffering from bruises. Police are checking on a license number observed on the car by pedestrians.

next taken from his cell and beaten to death.

BODIES HANGED

His body was hanging from a tree. Shipp's body later was strung up alongside that of his companion.

The two bodies hung throughout the night, the mob milling about and warning officials against removing them. As daybreak came the mob faded away.

The city was quiet today. Authorities expressed the belief that there would be no recurrence of the mob spirit and that other Negroes in the city were safe.

NONE IDENTIFIED

Prosecutor Harley Hardin, with whom rests the responsibility of taking action against members of the mob, said he did not know yet what he would do. He said so far as he knew no one in the throng had been identified. He awaited the arrival of two representatives from the office of Attorney General James M. Ogden before making any formal announcement.

Nearly a hundred peace officers who rushed here from nearby cities at the call of Sheriff Campbell were ready to assist in maintenance of order. There was little for them to do, however, for Marion citizens were going about their usual business affairs.

Two Spirited Away To Avert Lynching

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Fearing a riot simuar to that which terrorized Marion, Ind., last night, might break out in this city, Sheriff Fred Hamilton today smuggled two Negroes brought here from that city, from the county jail and left for an unannounced destination.

The prisoners, Harbert Cameron, 16, and Robert Sullivan, 18, also were implicated in the slaying of Claude Deeter and the attack upon Miss Mary Ball in Marion Wednesday night. They were brought here for safekeeping.

Fire Blocks Trains In Phila. Station

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—All trains into the Broad street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad were blocked for two hours last night when fire broke out in a gasoline storage room under the huge rail and stone embankment from the station west to the Schuylkill River.

2 CHAIN STORES HELD UP

A gray-haired bandit a bit touchy about victims taking his automobile license number, held up two chain stores in the East End district this morning within a half hour.

Shortly after F. R. Weaver opened the A. & P. Company's store at 586 Brushton avenue, he looked into the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of a man who had sauntered into the store. The rifling of the till followed, and Weaver reported a loss of $15.

The bandit then sped his car to the P. H. Butler store at 601 East End avenue, where he held up the manager, J. R. Massey, in a similar manner.

Massey said he was unable to tell the amount taken. Shortly afterwards Massey said he received a telephone call and a voice asked:

"Did you get my license number?"

Massey said he replied:

"No, I didn't."

And the voice:

"Well, it's a good thing for you that you didn't. If you did I'd come back and blow your head off."

Police are seeking a green auto with a Greensburg tire cover on the rear.

Laborers Whittle Trousers to Shorts

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—When engineers of the Westchester County Park Commission appeared on the job in shorts, the laborers followed their example by cutting off their trousers legs with pocket knives.

TEN IN PLANE FLY 'BLIND'

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A transport pilot brought a trimotor plane, loaded with 10 passengers, from Chicago to Detroit last night flying "blind," guided only by his instruments and directed by radio beam.

The pilot, W. E. "Slim" Larned, was sealed up in his cabin in the front of the plane while over the Municipal Airport at Chicago, leaving only a small space for his observer to watch for approaching planes. Keeping his craft balanced by his instruments, he guided his course by a federal government air mail radio beam as far as Laporte, Ind. From there he flew by compass until he picked up a directional beam from the Ford Airport, near Jackson, Mich. The cabin was sealed until he arrived above the Detroit landing field.

Larned said the flight had demonstrated the effectiveness of instrument and radio beam flying for large, cross-continent passenger planes.

BELLEVUE MAN HANGS SELF

George Weller, 70, was found dead this morning, his body dangling from a rope attached to a bed post in his home, 28 Meade avenue, Bellevue, according to a coroner's report.

Weller was found by his daughter, Florence, who forced her way into her father's bedroom.

Miss Weller said he was despondent over ill-health, and that he had not fully recovered from an operation of a year ago.

Germany Refuses Poles' Tariff Plea

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Polish government has received from the German government a refusal to discuss new and higher German tariffs on farm products which have affected Poland's exports.

Poland sent a note on June 14 asking for conversations to straighten out the difficulties.

Pastor Prepares for Farthest-North Golf

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The farthest-north golf course is at Eskimo Point, on the upper Hudson Bay, just 375 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

The Rev. Donald Marsh, here for a holiday after three years at Eskimo Point as a missionary, stocked up with golf balls, clubs and tees to take back with him. Eskimos, he said, play the game a little, preferring to caddy.

Herrick Languishes in Jail; Posed as Dry Agent

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Manuel Herrick, one-time Republican congressman from Oklahoma, unable to obtain bail following his arrest in a federal raid on a still in St Mary's County, was in jail today.

Dressed in overalls and a blue denim shirt, Herrick, 53, had been arraigned on charges of manufacture and possession of liquor.

Herrick is said to have asserted, when first taken into custody, that he was a federal undercover agent, engaged in locating stills in Southern Maryland Department of Justice agents here denied knowledge of his employment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Although Manuel Herrick sought to become an undercover dry agent, J. L. Acuff, chief of the division of special agents in the prohibition bureau, said today that the former Oklahoma Representative would be prosecuted the same as any other liquor law violator.

Prohibition headquarters made known today that Herrick had applied for a commission as a dry agent, but none was granted. An arrangement was made, however, Acuff said, whereby the Oklahoman might furnish T. J. Moore, Justice Department clerk, with information on dry law violations at his own risk and without compensation or a commission.

One-Armed Guard Traps Six-Footer in Theft

Earl Fenton, one-armed and weighing 135 pounds, tackled two men he says he caught stealing gasoline from a road shovel in Beck's Run road early today.

One of the men escaped in an automobile, but Fenton held fast to the other, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. He gave his name as John Raymond, 30, of 905 Beech avenue.

At a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court, Raymond was fined $25 with the alternative of serving 30 days in the workhouse, but was held over while police investigate bad check charges against him.

Fenton, employed by the M. O'Herron Company, contractors, was commended by Sweeney for his good work as a guard. It was the second time he had caught alleged gasoline thieves.

'ATTIC MURDER' LAID TO LIQUOR

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Testimony indicating Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich was intoxicated the night of August 22, 1922, when her wealthy husband, Fred Oesterreich, was shot to death, brought to light today a new angle of the 8-year-old tragedy. She is on trial for murder.

Mrs. Florence Rawson, a neighbor, and her guest, Mrs. Cora Norton, testified they heard four shots the night of the slaying, saw a man's feet through a window, heard poundings on doors and saw lights in the Oesterreich home flash on and off. They declared Mrs. Oesterreich cried, after the shots were fired:

"Oh, Fred!"

Otto Sanhuber, said to have lived in the attics of the Oesterreich homes, went free, although found guilty of manslaughter, a charge which the statute of limitations had outlawed.

Writer's Funeral Set for St. Paul

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Funeral services for Edwin J. Clapp, writer on economics and finance, will be held in St. Paul, Minn., it was announced today. Clapp, in ill-health, leaped to his death from the roof of a 14-story hotel.

Meat Diet Blamed For Row, Court Advises Soup

Too much meat affects dogs and husbands alike, it was revealed in North Side Police Court today.

Tony Gosha, 50, of 3340 Fleming avenue, arraigned before Magistrate Schneider on the charge of breaking furniture and throwing dishes, emphatically declared his wife fed him too much meat. He told the magistrate:

"I want soup and plenty of it."

Schneider suggested to Gosha's wife, Edna, who appeared as the complainant, that soup be added to the family menu.

HUNDREDS SEE $1,200 HOLDUP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Four armed bandits held up the messenger of the J. G. McCrory 5 and 10-cent store last night and, with hundreds of bystanders looking on, escaped in a waiting automobile with $1,200.

Harvey Smith, 20, the store messenger, emerged from the downtown store at 6 o'clock to deposit the receipts in a nearby bank. As he stepped out on the crowded sidewalk three men snatched the money from him at the point of a gun and jumped into a Maryland automobile operated by a fourth man.

It was the fourth daylight robbery here in recent days.

Married Man Kills Girl, Shoots Self

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Earl Turner, 42, married, early today shot and killed Miss Margaret Limerick, 20, a boarding house waitress, and then turned a pistol on himself, with what may prove to be fatal effect. The shooting occurred on a side road near the city. His wife is thought to be living in Philadelphia.

Brush Fire Halts Tests of Drivers

Driving examinations were suspended temporarily at the Highway Patrol station in Washington boulevard today while firemen fought a stubborn grass fire on the hillside overlooking the boulevard. More than a score of children and others assisted firemen to drag hose up the burning hillside.

GROWTH OF U. S. SETS RECORD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The United States had a population of 122,698,190 on April 1, and recorded a greater numerical gain in population in the last 10 years than in any other like period in history, the United States census bureau announced today in making public the official report of the 1930 census.

The total increase over 1920 was 16,987,570, the nation growing at the rate of 16.1 per cent.

The report revealed that New York, California, Texas, Florida, Michigan and New Jersey had gathered the population honors of the nation. New York again recorded the largest population of any state, but California, surprisingly, recorded the greatest numerical gain as well as the greatest rate of growth.

The first 10 states of the union in population were: New York, 12,619,503; Pennsylvania, 9,640,802; Illinois, 7,607,684; Ohio, 6,639,837; Texas, 5,821,272; California, 5,672,009; Michigan, 4,842,280; Massachusetts, 4,253,646; New Jersey, 4,028,027, and Missouri, 3,620,961.

Charge Made Against Florida Comptroller

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A warrant charging State Comptroller Ernest Amos with malfeasance in office in connection with the liquidation of the suspended Bank of Bay Biscayne was issued here on application of a depositor.

Amis is charged with violation of Florida statutes by employing former officials and employes of the bank to make the liquidators' audit.

SLOT MACHINES DESTROYED

City property custodians, wielding sledge hammers, destroyed 125 slot machines, confiscated by police, in the basement of the City-County Building today.

The lot was valued at $12,500, current racketeer prices.

Police Supt. P. P. Walsh ordered destruction of the devices, which had been seized in a series of quiet raids in all parts of the city.

DRIVER HELD IN BOY'S DEATH

A coroner's jury today recommended that William L. Speer, of Ralston place, Mt. Lebanon, be held for the grand jury on a manslaughter in the death of James Wratcher, 7, of Harmarville.

The boy was killed by an auto while waiting for a street car on the Freeport road on June 25, with his father, Eli Wratcher, and a brother, Robert. Police say Speer's auto struck him.

motion to provide relief for farmers in drought-stricken areas of the nation.

The President's immediate task was to learn the actual devastation wrought and to find ways of slashing governmental "red tape" to make millions available in loans to farmers to save their starving livestock.

The President canvassed the situation with three members of the Farm Board and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, and studied drought and weather maps which were placed in his executive offices.

The Farm Board has pledged its unexpended fund of $97,000,000 in feed loans, while the intermediate credit banks have potential loaning resources of approximately $225,000,000. These loans, however, can only be made on good security, and good security may be difficult to obtain in drought-stricken regions.

STORK'S DELAY UNNERVES YORK

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The Duke of York, "nervous husband" in the case, played golf today to pass anxious hours of waiting.

The Duchess of York, birth of whose second child is expected almost hourly, continued in excellent health, and last evening strolled briefly through the flower gardens of Glamis Castle accompanied by her mother, Lady Strathmore.

Should the child be a boy, he would become Great Britain's heir presumptive and follow the Prince of Wales and his father to the throne, provided the Prince of Wales does not have an heir.

Famine in Names For Nobility Near

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The newly-created nobility has its troubles. The supply of names is running out. A man elevated to the peerage may choose whatever names he desires, but most choose to be known by the place they live. The growing list of peers is reducing the available supply to the alarming point.

Win Dance Marathon After 2,831 Hours

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The Chicago dance marathon which started on April 14, was at an end today after the winning couple—Ann Gerry, 24, of Chicago, and Mike Gouvas, of Hammond, Ind.—had shuffled to a record of 2,831 hours, 4½ minutes.

Weather Conditions.

Pressure is relatively low over the lake region, and light showers continue in the Ohio and Upper Mississippi valleys and over most of the eastern states. Showers have also occurred in the Southern and Central Rocky Mountains, and the plateau region, but the rains have been generally light.

It is warmer in West Virginia and slightly cooler in the Northern Plains, the Central Rocky Mountains, and the Canadian Northwest. Elsewhere temperature changes have been slight.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is 5.3 feet; Lock No. 7, 9.0; Pittsburgh, 8.4. Dam No. 4, 6.8; Dam No. 6, 7.1; Dam No. 9, 8.1, and Dam No. 12, 3.8. The dams are up.

Aviation Bulletin.

The low north of the lakes continues to cause light, scattered showers. Toledo and Mulmar, Ind., reporting thunderstorms nearby this morning. Ceilings are 2,000 feet or more between Chicago and Hadley Field, having mostly unlimited from Hadley route to Cleveland; visibilities are three miles or over everywhere except at Toledo and Goshen, where it is two miles; winds are light and variable and the temperatures are in the middle seventies.

Flying weather will continue mostly good with ceilings changing but little and visibilities improving this afternoon and tonight.

Ex-Publisher Killed In Auto Accident

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—William F. Hite, 63, former newspaper publisher of Huntington, W. Va., was fatally injured and his wife critically hurt yesterday when their automobile collided with a lumber truck and crashed into a pole.

William and Caroline Jones, aged 7 and 9 respectively, grandchildren of Hite, escaped injury. The party had been in Huntington for the funeral of Mrs. W. E. Jones, mother of the children.

heat, according to the coroner's records. He collapsed while at work in the fields yesterday afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Charles B. Campbell, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, has requested the members of the 40 Western Pennsylvania corps under his command to pray for rain.

Col. Campbell's communication follows:

"All human agencies are unavailing in the present crisis. Man must turn to God for relief. With full confidence in His power and mercy, I urge the members and friends at every Salvation Army Corps in the Western Pennsylvania division to offer up prayers for a generous rainfall so that all present suffering and future danger may be speedily removed."

Prayers for rain will be offered in various other churches in the district next Sunday.

CROPS HARD HIT

Wells have gone dry in many districts depending upon them largely for water supply. Dairy farmers in the districts suffering shortage report a shortage of milk due to the destruction of pastures by the drought. Cows have been put on winter food by most farmers, Henry R. Eby, county farm agent announced.

Eby said that tomatoes are withering and in many sections corn and potatoes are virtually destroyed. The livestock shipments from West Virginia are six weeks ahead of the usual arrival schedule at the Pittsburgh Livestock Market, G. G. Sharpless, manager of the market announced. The drought bringing a shortage of feed, water and pasture causes extra truck loads to be run to Pittsburgh. Monday a week ago was the heaviest day recorded this year. Two hundred and 12 carloads of cattle, sheep and calves were received here last month as against 88 in July of last year.

WATER RATIONED

Engineers for the State Health Department report that in Indiana County the water supplies of the mining villages of Ernest and Luciusboro are exhausted. At Hendersonville, Washington County, only two hours' water supply can be given daily. At Cherry Tree and Clymer the emergency supplies are being used.

Brush fires were few yesterday, the city having less than a dozen and the county about a score. City firemen went out early today to extinguish a brush fire at Hazelwood avenue and Beechwood boulevard. Two were reported on the South Side yesterday. Homeville and Munhall firemen fought three hours to extinguish a fire in the Ball plan, Lincoln place.

Lady Heath Guardianship Action Withdrawn

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The legal action in a Cleveland court seeking appointment as a guardian for Lady Mary Heath has been discontinued, according to the famous British aviatrix, who arrived in New York today to sail for Paris. She said:

"The action has been waived. Miss Madden is sailing with me as my guest tonight aboard the liner Nieuw Amsterdam."

Lady Heath termed the allegation in Miss Madden's action that she was suffering from mental disorders as "ridiculous." Miss Madden has been the companion of Lady Heath. Lady Heath continued:

"I feel splendid. However, I will rest for a few weeks in France and then leave probably for a trip to Africa."

The noted woman flier was seriously injured last year at the air races in Cleveland when her plane crashed through the roof of a building.

Kin of 'Yeast King' Named In $100,000 Love Suit

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—William N. Fleischmann, 57, director of the Fleischmann Corporation and cousin of Maj. Max Fleischmann, yeast magnate, today faced a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed by Miss Madge Mitchell, motion picture actress.

In the complaint filed here, Miss Mitchell alleged Fleischmann expressly promised and agreed to marry her, and on the strength of that promise, she accompanied him on a pre-honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Her petition charges that he suddenly refused to provide further for her, gave her a ticket home and put her aboard ship without spending money. This action, the complaint alleges, caused her to be disowned by her parents and shunned by her friends.

Miss Mitchell, former Houston, Tex., beauty contest winner, said she met Fleischmann while working as a manicurist in a Hollywood hotel between screen engagements.

Fleischmann now lives in Hollywood.

SIGN HARD COAL PACT TONIGHT

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Representatives of the anthracite operators and United Mine Workers of America tonight will sign the new agreement extending the period of industrial peace in the anthracite regions for a term of five years and seven months. Ratification of the wage pact by the miners' delegates yesterday removed the last obstacle to the successful culmination of the wage negotiations which began June 30.

The convention approved the contract by a vote of 737 to 127. Ratification came after International President John L. Lewis had made an address hailing the pact as "the greatest trade union agreement ever consummated through the instrumentality of collective bargaining."

A majority of the 104 coal companies operating in the anthracite region will be represented by officials at tonight's meeting, at which Secretary of Labor James J. Davis will preside. He will bring a message from President Hoover.

Dry Agent, Alleged Killer, Back on Job

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Bond of $10,000 for W. K. Johnston, Jr., Federal prohibition agent charged with the killing of Ray Rodgers here July 25, was approved by H. E. Brown, United States Commissioner. Johnston immediately resumed his duties as prohibition agent.

FLOOD TOWNS GET RELIEF

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The twin towns of Nogales, Ariz., and Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, today were struggling to recover from a disastrous flood which left in its wake a toll of five known dead, 10 to 40 persons missing, and 3,000 residents of the Mexican town left homeless.

Relief workers were hampered last night by another heavy downfall of rain. They worked by lantern light, as the power plant and electric lines were seriously damaged.

During the flood, the water in the streets attained a depth of five feet. In the American town the city hall, Chamber of Commerce Building, newspaper plants and other business structures were damaged.

Relief work was being directed by Mayor Harry Karns, American Legion officials and the Red Cross.

Alliance Banker, Ill 6 Months, Dies

ALLIANCE, O., Aug. 8.—T. C. Uran, 74, banker, died yesterday after a six months' illness. For a time he was affiliated with the American Steel Foundries at Franklin, Pa., but came back 20 years ago to assume the post he held with the Industrial Savings and Loan Association till his death.

Sisters Reunited After 32 Years

MONACA, Pa., Aug. 8.—When Mrs. Valentine Henry, Monaca, visited her sister, Mrs. John Huey, in Delmar, Del., yesterday, the sisters met the first time in 32 years.

Sportsmen Break State Laws to Save Fish

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 8.—As creeks in the county continue to dry up during the protracted heat wave, sportsmen throughout the county have been violating the fishing laws. However, there is a humane motive in the violations.

In nearly all parts of the county, sportsmen have turned out en masse, seining what few water holes are left in many streams of their finny occupants and transporting the fish to deeper waters farther down stream.

ROAD OPENING HELD UP

Opening of a three-mile stretch of the Ohio River boulevard to general use hinges on an agreement with the contractors, according to county engineers.

That portion of the new highway from Jack's Run west to Emsworth is virtually completed. Only a small amount of paving remains to be done. Portions of the boulevard are now being used by abutting property owners.

Before Booth & Flinn, contractors, will consent to open the boulevard to the public, it is said they desire to be paid the remaining 10 per cent of the contract price usually withheld until the project is formally accepted. An agreement is said to be under consideration by Controller R. G. Woodside and the contractors.

The lighting system is being installed. Ornamental fluted poles supporting lights of 1,000 candlepower each are being placed in "stagger" style 250 feet apart on both sides of the highway.

BUSINESS SOON TO IMPROVE, EXPERT SAYS

Optimism Biggest Need Now, Forbes Says, Predicting Turn for Better is Near Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—Nil desperandum—Never say die.

This should be the motto of the American businessman at the present time, according to B. C. Forbes, noted economist and financial writer for the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst papers, who arrived here last night for a short vacation.

Forbes generates optimism. Smiling and happy, he declared that the public had nothing to worry about. Conditions were improving gradually and business would soon be on the upswing, he said.

"What is needed more than anything else is optimism," he declared. "Nil desperandum — never say die, should be the universal slogan of the people. Optimism is healthy; gloom is useless."

HITS MARKET GLOOM

Although Forbes is enamored of the lure of Wall Street, he said, he was never so pleased in all his life to be away from it.

"Gloom is so thick there you could cut it with a knife," he said. "While business on the coast is nothing to brag about, the tone is healthy and the people are normal.

"Wall street has gone from one extreme to the other. I did not subscribe to the ultra-optimism dispensed to the public a year ago. I do not subscribe to the ultra-pessimism of the present time. As I advised people not to buy stocks then I advise them to buy stocks now. Prices are at rock bottom.

BELIEVES TURN NEAR

"The turn is near. In a very short time a more hopeful feeling will prevail and business will swing into stride a little later.

"There is no room for the ultra-pessimist today. It is always darkest before the dawn and now is the time to become optimists."

Forbes believes that raw materials and farm products have reached their lowest levels.

"When that situation arises," he said, "the upward movement cannot be far away."

BELIEVE RIVER VICTIM SLAIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 8—Believing that Henry Osthouse, 60, of Fair Hope, whose body was recovered from the Monongahela River at Speers, had met with foul play, Chief County Detective William B. Dinsmore and Coroner William B. Baker, today were investigating. Coroner Baker was to perform an autopsy, and Chief Dinsmore was investigating Osthouse's movements.

The aged man, a retired grocer, disappeared Tuesday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Kyle, at Fair Hope, taking with him about $300, the daughter told detectives. Tuesday afternoon he was seen entering an automobile in Belle Vernon, also occupied, it is said, by a young copie from Pittsburgh.

Archbishop Messmer Rites Held Abroad

GOLDACH, Switzerland, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A cardinal, five bishops and 20 other prominent ecclesiastics attended the funeral yesterday of Archbishop Sebastian Messmer of Milwaukee, Wis., who died here suddenly last Sunday while on vacation.

Cardinal Piffl, of Vienna, was delegated by Pope Pius to represent the Holy See. He gave the benediction and read the prayer for the dead.

Two Men Given Bail On Murder Charges

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Peter Aresto and Louis Jango, of New Kensington, have been admitted to bail of $5,000 each following hearings on murder charges.

The men are alleged to have been implicated in the killing of Otto Schubert, of Springdale, who died August 2 following a fight near Aresto's poolroom.

Bismarck Bandits Rob Bank of $30,000

BISMARCK, N. D., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Four men held up the Dakota National Bank and Trust Company and escaped with silver and currency estimated by bank officials at $30,000.

Supposed Uncle Buried; Right One Found Alive

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Nephews and nieces who believed they attended the funeral of their uncle came back from the cemetery to find they had buried a stranger. They discovered their uncle standing at an intersection in the business district.

Police to whom they appealed changed Health Department records to show an unknown man had been buried.

Last Monday a man was found dead in Carroll Park and Charles Howser, a nephew, identified the body as that of William E. Lewis, an uncle who had lived with him for 15 years. The identification was confirmed by other nephews and nieces.

Widow of Slain Raider Enters Rum Business

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Minnine Stine, 35, a widow, of Shamrock, is in the Greene County jail, charged with violating the liquor laws, after police say, a raid on her home netted a quantity of home brew and raisin jack.

Mrs. Stine, whose husband, Richard Stine, was for six years a member of the West Virginia state police, said she engaged in the liquor traffic to support herself and a young daughter after her husband was killed while making a liquor raid at Morgantown.

STREET FUMES PROTESTED

Inspector of Traffic Police Jacob Dorsey was urged today to aid in eliminating the nuisance of carbon monoxide fumes poured into the streets by automobiles.

A letter received by Dorsey from the Traffic Problems Committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club stressed the danger of the fumes. The club acted on a suggestion from Director of Public Works Norman P. Brown, who has interested himself in the problem. Brown said that the fumes present a ventilating hazard to the Liberty Tubes.

Ice-Filled Bottle Blows Up, Due To Heat

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 8.—Excessive heat here caused a vacuum bottle in which ice was packed to explode suddenly when the cap was removed.

Catherine Shaw, stenographer in the office of B. B. Smith, superintendent of city schools, took cracked ice to work in the thermos bottle to cool drinking water. She removed the cap, poured some of the ice into a glass of water, and an instant later, with a sharp report, the interior of the thermos bottle exploded, sending a shower of splintered particles over the young woman and her desk.

4 HAZELBACKER TOUTS INDICTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Four men were indicted yesterday by a Federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud Jacob C. Hazelbacker, retired hotel man of Pittsburgh, of $136,000 in a race track swindle in 1928.

Those indicted were Fred Zubeck, Robert Kohler, alias F. C. Bauer; William Humphries, alias W. S. Reynolds, and Fred C. Paul. All have been sought by Federal authorities since August 1928.

MORE THAN 300 RECEIVE PITT DEGREES

New York Educator Speaks At August Commencement; 8 Graduated With Honors

More than 300 students of the University of Pittsburgh received degrees today at the annual August commencement held at noon in Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall.

Miss Thelma La Verne Dulany was graduated with highest honor. Seven were graduated with honor. Mabel Clair Kelly, Margaret E. Faloney, Hilda Margaret Noble Elliott Weiner Finkel, Morris Bastacky, Leo F. Crawley and Thomas J. Flaherty.

NEW YORK EDUCATOR SPEAKS

Dr. Frederick Bertrand Robinson, president of the College of the City of New York, made the principal address, spoke on Interdependent Individuals. He pointed out the advantages of living under democratic form of government and expressed the opinion that our government interferes as little as possible with the individual's attempt to adjust himself.

Three of the students who won M. A. degrees had received their first degrees many years ago. They were Eva Laura Crago, who received a B. A. degree from West Virginia University in 1903; Dessie Pearl Spangler, who took a A. B. from Ohio Northern University in 1901, and Morris G. Schucker, who received a B. S. from Keystone State Normal College in 1899.

Three honorary degrees were conferred, two by the university and one on behalf of the University of Debeczen, Hungary.

HONOR FOR DR. ROBINSON

Dr. Robinson received the honorary degree of doctor of laws, and William Martin Baden, chief geologist of the Trees Oil Company, Winfield, Kan., that of doctor of laws. On behalf of the University of Debeczen, the degree of doctor of theology was conferred upon the Rev. Louis Nanassay, former dean of the eastern classis of the Free Magyar Reformed Church in America and present vice superintendent of the Hungarian Reformed Orphans' Home at Ligonier.

Miss Virginia Kendrick, contralto, gave a group of Irish songs in costume.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, conferred the degrees.

WOMAN BLAMED BY AUTO VICTIM

An automobile, alleged to have been driven by a drunken woman, was blamed by Vico Mungai, who gave his address as the Pittsburgh Country Club, for striking him and knocking him to the street at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, last night, according to police records.

He took the license number of the car. Police checked it and found the machine belonged to Rose Chester, 1224 Morningside avenue, who had reported the car stolen shortly after the time of the accident. It was found abandoned in an alley near Seventh avenue, and is being held while an investigation as to the identity of the driver is made.

Rum in Hot Water Bottles Brings Fine

Mrs. Mary Painter, 31, of Center street, Homeville, who police testified carried quantities of liquor in hot water bottles hidden beneath her clothing, was fined $200 when arraigned before Magistrate E. M. Tyich in McKeesport yesterday. Patrolman John Liptak saw the woman stumble in Mulberry alley, McKeesport, and started to help her. As he approached he noticed the hot water bottles fell from her clothes. Liptak said he discovered the bottles contained moonshine.

Maloney Estate Worth 8 Millions

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Martin Maloney, 81-year-old papal marquis and wealthy philanthropist, who succumbed at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel here last year, left an estate of close to $8,000,000, according to an inventory of his personal estate filed in the courts at Monmouth, N. J., where he maintained his legal residence.

Two daughters, Mrs. L. Carberry Ritchie and Mrs. Arthur H. Osborn, share the bulk of his estate.

Final Tributes Paid To Siegfried Wagner

BAYREUTH, Germany, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Siegfried Wagner, son of the great composer, Richard Wagner, was given final rest beneath a stately oak in the cemetery here today, his coffin borne by men who had sung the immortal Wagnerian roles.

Among the friends who paid last tributes were former Czar Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, and a Hohenzollern prince, August Wilhelm. In the great heap of flowers were wreaths sent by the former Kaiser and the former crown prince.

Narcotics Expert, Taft Delegate, Dies

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Henry James Finger, 77, authority on habit forming drugs and appointee of President Taft as a delegate to the international opium conference at The Hague, 1911, died here last night after a heart attack.

Paperhanging, painting, repairing, etc., are all quickly and neatly done by an expert. These experts can be found by consulting the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads.

The Long Touch is Smart

Pattern 2002

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

A charming frock, simple of line and detail, gains distinction through its lingerie touch at neck and cuffs. The softly flared skirt joins the lower part of the bodice in upward lines that point to the narrow panel running from neckline to flare, a decidedly slenderizing feature.

Pattern 2002 makes up delightfully in canton or flat crepe, voile, dull satin or chiffon velvet. Shades of brown, green and wine are smart whether chosen in solid color or printed with bright colorful designs. Deep ecru or castor lace is charming for the collar and cuffs.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4⅜ yards of 40-inch material and ¾-yard lace.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

TRIBES MARCH ON BRITISH

PESHAWAR, India, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Ten thousand savage Afghan tribesmen today advanced against Peshawar in an increasing effort to break through the Northwest frontier.

British advance troops were in contact with the Afridi warriors this forenoon, and bombing planes were in readiness to repel a general assault.

This city was threatened as it had not been for a long time. The advance guard of the menacing tribal army spent the night encamped only 12 miles away, and scouts reported every indication of an intention to make an early advance.

Observers predicted at noon that a battle within the next few hours which might force the supreme issue hardly could be avoided.

North Side Soldier Hurt Leaving Truck

TOBYHANNA, Pa., Aug. 8.—The first casualty of the National Guard encampment here occurred when Pvt. Eugene E. Bellus, 900 Allegheny avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, was seriously injured in leaping from a truck operated by a civilian on the Lackawanna Trail, near Scranton.

Bellus is a member of Headquarters Battery, One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery.

For Your Daughter

Daughter of Mrs. Victor H. Call, Route 24, Box 76, San Antonio, Texas

"My daughter Kathleen is fifteen years old. For the past three years she suffered with pains as many young girls do. One day we saw an advertisement about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the San Antonio Evening News. She has been taking it regularly and is now completely relieved and able to attend school every day. You may use this letter because another woman's letter first told us about your medicine."—Mrs. Victor H. Call.

Daughter of Mrs. Floyd Butcher, R. 62, Gridley, Kansas

"My thirteen-year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. We are recommending she Vegetable Compound to other school girls who need it."—Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

DUQUESNE GIVES 35 DIPLOMAS TOMORROW

Summer School Graduates Will Shun Caps and Gowns Because of Intense Heat

The extreme heat of the last two weeks has altered plans for the ninth annual summer school commencement exercises at Duquesne University, to be held tomorrow at 10 a. m., when for the first time since 1898 caps and gowns will not be worn by the graduates. The Rev. Dr. James F. Carroll, vice president of the university, has authorized this departure from custom to assure comfort.

Diplomas will be awarded to 35 graduates of the summer sessions by Dr. Carroll, who will preside in the absence of the university president, the Very Rev. M. A. Hebir. The principal address will be made by Dr. E. T. Sage, head of the Latin department of the University of Pittsburgh. The music will be by members of the Sisters Ensemble Class, a nuns' violin group.

Two outstanding members of the class, both nuns, of whom a large percentage of the enrollment is composed, are aged 65 and 75 years, respectively. Sister Mary Capitolina Heath, a sister of the Order of Notre Dame, who receives the bachelor of arts degree, is 75, while Sister Mary Aimee Parrish, of the Mercy Order, upon whom the bachelor of science degree in education will be conferred, is 65.

Sister M. Clare Besterman, head of the art department at Mt. Mercy College and one of the greatest religious artists in the country, has earned the master of arts degree with the added distinction of being the first student to major in fine arts at the university.

Franklin Without Crime During Hot Spell

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 8.—The heat wave has done one thing: it has eliminated crime, so far as Franklin is concerned.

Not a robbery nor an automobile theft nor an arrest for any major offense has taken place in a week. Police report the "quietest" August ever known.

BEARY VISITS GUARD CAMP

TOBYHANNA, Pa., Aug. 8.—Twice in as many days men at this reservation have been honored by distinguished company. Following closely upon the departure of Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commander of the Third Corps area, Gen. Frank D. Beary, adjutant general of Pennsylvania, paid an informal visit to the One Hundred and Seventh and One Hundred and Eighth Field Artillery regiments.

After a brief inspection of quarters and kitchens, Gen. Beary motored out to Lone Tree firing point to observe the fire conducted by a battalion of the One Hundred and Seventh, under Col. Eric Fisher Wood.

While Gen. Beary's visit was made for his annual inspection of troops in the field, he expressed deeper concern over the extended drought and the effect it would have upon the soldiers and horses.

Gasoline Station Entered, Robbed

Thieves obtained $66 from the office of the Gulf Refining Company service station at 5894 Mignonette street, East End, this morning. They gained entrance by breaking a rear window, the report to police stated.

M'KEES ROCKS MAN ENDS LIFE

Wasil Tolochek, 38, asleep in a rooming house at 318 Hamilton street, McKees Rocks, awakened early today, reached under his pillow for his revolver, according to a report to the coroner, and shot himself through the heart. His body was removed to the morgue.

Mrs. Theodore Thriestock, owner of the rooming house, informed deputy coroners that Tolochek told her yesterday he would take his life.

She said the man had been brooding over a sore on his leg which would not heal. Another woman in the house reported she heard the shot, followed by a short moan.

DOCTOR HELD IN DEATH

Dr. J. A. Williams, 60, of 206 W. Carson street, and Joseph Haramic, 27, of 1119 Troy Hill road, were held for court in connection with the death Saturday of Mrs. Haramic, 23, in the Allegheny General Hospital.

Charging the physician with illegal medical practice Acting Detective Inspector Frank Ferris testified in Morals Court that Mrs. Haramic accused Dr. Williams before her death and named the husband as a witness. Dr. Williams, held under $5,000 bail, refused to testify, but the husband admitted going to the physican's office with his wife. Haramic is being held under $1,000 bail as a material witness.

BUSINESS GAIN SEEN BY DAVIS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Secretary James J. Davis, after examining the recent ailments of American business, has pronounced it on the road to recovery. The diagnosis was given by the Secretary of Labor in an address last night over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Davis said he had lived "through a number of these depressions" and that just as recovery always had followed them, "this one can be trusted to follow the same course." He continued:

"It has been truly a trying time for all and we still have problems to solve. But no one doubts for a minute the courage and the mental and material resources of this great country. That courage and resource are already swinging us back on the road to recovery."

Davis said the government and the nation as a whole have put in motion "the greatest program of public works and public utility construction ever undertaken, amounting to more than $7,000,000,000."

ANNIVERSARIES—how much they mean—what memories they recall—how important they are to those who care. Today, or some day soon, is an anniversary of some important event in your life. Don't let your thoughtlessness hurt the ones you love.

At times like these, a little thought will do so much to keep love alive—to preserve those friendships—to bring happiness to those dear to you. Give gifts of jewelry on these occasions—nothing could be more appropriate. Jewelry is always correct, always a tribute to the recipient and an ever-present, enduring reminder of your affections.

Let the advertisements of Pittsburgh Jewelers which appear in the pages of the Sun-Telegraph help you in the selection of gifts for these anniversaries.

Real Estate

A new English type residence at 127 Yorkshire drive, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold for Kapp Brothers, builders, to Lawrence R. McAfoos for $25,500. The buyer takes the property for a home. The deal was made through Ellis & Carr. The same brokers sold for Mr. McAfoos a two-story clapboard and shingle house with garage at 192 Irwin avenue, Bellevue, for $11,000.

J. Ramsey Speer has conveyed to Thomas S. Coleman, builder, four lots in Wilkins avenue, East End.

A. F. Schwerd has filed plans with the Bureau of Building Inspection for six brick and tile dwellings with garages at 1800-12 Malden street, North Side, to cost $30,000.

The County of Allegheny has purchased from Agnes M. O'Donovan 25x86 feet, improved, in Island avenue, McKees Rocks, for $13,500.

A property in the Boulevard, Carrick, lot 54x150 feet, has been sold by the Samuel A. Shoemaker estate to Ernest F. M. Patton.

A property in Avenue F, Forest Hills, lot 24x100 feet, has been sold by the Interborough Improvement Company to John W. Arrun for $9,625.

In Mt. Lebanon, Raymond W. Trinkler sold to Harry E. Baumbach 100x120 feet in Catalpa avenue.

In West View, Chester Willoughby sold to Richard M. Hart 60x150 feet in Wellington drive.

Francis E. McGillick sold to Elgie W. Cole 50x150 feet in Park Entrance drive, Mt. Lebanon.

Building permit applications included:

Twenty-ninth Ward—S. Krom, brick and tile garage and service station, 1028 Brownsville road, $12,000.

Ninth Ward—I. Neistein, two brick dwellings, 371-80 LaMarido street, $11,000.

Injured by Taxi, Suit Asks $60,000

A value of $60,000 is placed on injuries suffered by Mrs. Sarah Goldberg and her minor son, Milton, in a damage suit on file in Common Pleas Court today against the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, operators of Green taxicabs.

"WILL ALWAYS BE A BOOSTER FOR KONJOLA"

Pittsburgh Resident Tells How New Medicine Put An End to Years of Neuritis.

What cheerful news this is for all who suffer from neuritis, and who may fear that they never will find relief from this most distressing ailment.

MR. J. E. CHAMBERS

But remember that Konjola's 32 ingredients—22 of them the juices of roots and herbs of known medicinal value—all work together in attacking, at the very source, ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, as well as rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola cleanses and stimulates the ailing organs. It is not a medicine to give mere temporary relief. Take, for instance, the happy experience of Mr. J. E. Chambers, 3820 Perrysville Avenue, Pittsburgh. Think over what Konjola did for him, and then hear all about this modern medicine from the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Hear of any number of actual cases of Konjola's triumphs, even when all else tried had failed, but right now read the words of Mr. Chambers, who said to the Konjola Man:

"Neuritis in my arms and shoulders caused misery for the past two years. My work is outdoors, and I am exposed, to all kinds of weather. I tried many medicines that were highly recommended, but could find no relief. Friends advised me to give Konjola a trial, and this I did. To date I have used six bottles, and with the first two came signs of relief. As I continued with the treatment all my pains disappeared, and my bowels were regulated. I highly recommend Konjola to anyone who suffers as I did, and I will always be a booster for Konjola."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to show why seven million bottles of this amazing medicine were used in two years. Konjola is a medicine for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Unknown Actress to Play Opposite Mr. Colman In New Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8.

A comparatively unknown actress may get the leading role opposite Ronald Colman in the story that Frederick Lonsdale has just completed.

Samuel Goldwyn has brought Constance Cummings out from Broadway to make tests for the role. She arrived yesterday, and was escorted to the United Artists Studio without the usual fanfare of publicity with which Mr. Goldwyn greets his proteges.

The young actress is unknown to me, but is said to have understudied the feminine lead in the New York production of the "New Moon." If her film tests are satisfactory, she will be given a Goldwyn contract.

Ronald Colman

In the meanwhile, preparations are being made to start rehearsals on the Colman picture about the first of the week. Barney Glazer, lately with Mary Pickford, has written the screen adaptation, and Irving Cummings will direct.

Two other well-known players have been signed for this film. The blond Carol Lombard will have a siren role, and Frederick Kerr is to be the heavy. He also appeared in Colman's last picture, "Raffles."

"FATTY" DIRECTS

Though he has never been able to make a comeback as an actor, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle has found a place in the talkies. He is directing Lloyd Hamilton comedies for Educational Films. Previous to his present occupation he was comedy constructor for "The Cuckoos" at R-K-O.

Roscoe Arbuckle

STORK HOVERS

Not all the newcomers in Hollywood hail from Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hornblow are expecting an arrival in their family around Christmas. Mr. Hornblow is Samuel Goldwyn's right-hand man, Robert Montgomery, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer juvenile, also expects an heir before long. September is the month.

STOP TELEPHONES

I'm told that the New York telephone exchange recently was puzzled over the decrease in calls over its switchboards between 7 and 7:15 p. m. As this normally would be a busy time of the day, they began to investigate. Finally, it was discovered that the time coincided with the broadcast of Amos 'n' Andy over the radio.

DISAPPEARING CUSTOM

Time was when totem poles were mighty near the trade-mark of Alaska. Customs have changed there, it seems, as in other places. When R-K-O's "silver horde" company, on location there, sought a totem pole for a scene, they had to send 200 miles for it.

ENRIGHT: "The Matrimonial Bed"—1:59, 4:13, 5:59, 8:13 and 10:27 p. m.

SHERIDAN SQUARE: "Little Accident"—12:55, 2:45, 4:35, 6:25, 8:15, 10:05 p. m.

HARRIS: "Her Unborn Child"—12:25, 2:45, 5:10, 6:30, 9:55 p. m.

PITT: "Unguarded Girls"—11 a. m., 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 p. m.

P. R. R. Sets Record In Freight Tonnage

A record of averaging more than 30,000 gross ton miles per freight train hour was made in July by the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, between Pittsburgh and Altoona, officials announced. This is the fourth consecutive month that a record has been set. Prior to April 1, when longer and heavier trains were put into service, the road never had been able to reach the 30,000 mark.

The job you are looking for may be advertised in today's Classified Section.

In Comedy

Lilyan Tashman is in the cast of the film, "The Matrimonial Bed," which is an adaptation of the stage play. It opens today in the Enright.

GROUP TO VISIT PLANTS HERE

A visit to a coal mine, inspection of a steel mill and a tour of the various points of interest in the city were to be included in the program of 10 foreign students and their American student guide today when they visit Pittsburgh. The visitors are the guests today and tomorrow of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. The party includes nine men and one woman who are visiting this country under the auspices of the National Student Federation of America.

The purpose of the tour is to promote a spirit of fellowship and mutual understanding among students all over the world. The members of this party come from seven countries. They are to visit New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Buffalo, Toronto and Boston as well as this city.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR INC.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Well, anyway, I'm not dancing with tears in my eyes . . . Nearly everyone is . . . Or drinking . . . I mean—and drinking . . . There's that what's-her-name-again? . . . Love-hungry . . . Husband-trouble . . . "Now, don't start analyzing me," she cooed . . . I wasn't analyzing her at all . . . I was merely trying to make gab . . . She probably was, also . . . She shouldn't drink . . . Four old-fashioneds and bing! . . . No woman should drink over two old-fashioneds . . . She had four—and it meant nothing—to have strange drunks plant long, wet kisses on her mouth . . . Pretty picture . . . She didn't think I saw it . . . Probably calls it Living! . . . Maybe it is . . . Wonder what her husband thought when she finally limped in? . . . Funny things, husbands . . . Narrow-minded . . . But she shouldn't drink . . . Maybe she drinks so she won't know what she is doing . . . Why don't they like to know what they're doing?

Darn old sun! . . . What the hell good is it, anyhow? . . . It's good for trees and flowers and soil, they say . . . I don't want any soil or trees or flowers . . . "You ought to get out in the sun more often," they kept telling me for 10 years, "it will put color in your cheeks" . . . It nearly killed me the past four weeks, that's what it did . . . Sun makes heat . . . Heat makes you crazy . . . Keeps you from sleeping eight hours at a stretch . . . When it's nighttime and you have had sleep your fingers never ache . . . Your eyes never pain you and your bones aren't sore . . . Rotten old sun! . . . Poor little babies suffer so . . . And the people in the hospitals, poor things . . . It's cool when it's dark . . . You can work when it's dark, and when it's dark you can't get sunburn poisoning . . . The sun will put color in my cheeks, will it? . . . How many people has it put in cemeteries? . . . All the Abbey Club nudes are round-shouldered.

Time evens everything . . . When he finds it out, and he probably will, he will then get a rough idea of what heartache means. . . . It was all right for him to crash the other feller's girl two years ago . . . Oh, yes . . . And talk about it, so that the unsuspecting one could be tittered at by the mob . . . Well, things are different now . . . The one he is so crazy about is being adored by, of all people, the kid he crossed in '28! . . . And how he laughed when the lad he crossed two years ago cried! . . . It is all so entertaining from the sidelines . . . I like being on the sidelines . . . None of the best-selling novels pack the wallop you get being on the Broadway sidelines . . . I'm a fiend, I guess . . . I get a thrill out of seeing a foul blow evened . . . When they foul you, hit lower, see? . . . Oh, well, everything's fair in Love and Broadway!

They stopped that story about the daughter of one of New York's biggest department store owners . . . Such a good story, too . . . What do I care whether they own department stores or they are beggars? . . . A woman like her should be glorified in print . . . Twenty years ago her husband had a mess of jack and, plus hers, they were in the big-time division . . . Then the breaks turned sour, they dropped all their coin, he dies, stranding her with kids, and she buys a tiny farm in Colorado with what she has left. . . . She's still running it, too, making one of those so-called livings, and won't use any of her influence to be put back on Park Avenue, where she belongs . . . It must be tough to struggle like that.

It takes 14 cigarets to write a column sometimes . . . Funny, the legends that are told about a guy . . . There's that new play for the fall about a newspaper man . . . The first act finale will show a Broadway columnist promising an unwed mother that he won't print about her blessed-eventing . . . Then, after she tells him how grateful she is, and she exits, he is shown phoning to the composing room and instructing them to make it his opening line.

"But I've never heard of any columnist doing such a foul thing!" I told the authors, who went through my files for gags to insert into their manuscript . . . "Oh, I know that," replied one of them, "but it will make a dandy first-act curtain!"

It must be terrible to have a guilty conscience . . . Heheheh. I must have worried them to death . . . Sent out clown wires to a few intimates simply to remind them that if they knew anything I didn't know for the Monday column to let me have it . . . "Do you deny what I have heard about you?" I telegraphed them . . . And all of them either phoned or called in person, begging me to go easy with the whip . . . Haw! . . . Then there's that McClelland Barclay chap . . . Never met or saw him in my life . . . He writes me: "Dear Mr. Winchell. Have I ever run away with something you wanted? You often act as tho' I had. Please let me know. You arouse my curiosity. Thank you." . . . Somebody probably ribbed him up and used my name . . . That's the way I'm going to get knocked off some day . . . It won't be because of anything I write about a person . . . My big problem is what to do with the type who tells people:

"There were no names mentioned in the story, but someone who knows him said that Winchell said it was you!"

Were they glad to see their daddy! . . . And was their daddy glad to see them? . . . There's nothing so kissable as a baby's neck—that part right in back of the ears . . . Ooooh, did I take a bite out of these necks! . . . Babies smell so sweet . . . Baby skin is so sugary, and you can go plumb crazy from the thrill that comes with chewing up their chubby fingers, noses, cheeks and elbows . . . Walda, 3, was so cute with her excited tale of "the hot hot" that came on the train with her from California . . . "So hot, daddy!" she said breathlessly, "was so hot!" . . . "I come home to my daddy, and never leave him no more 'cause I, he baby, love him all much, my poor, poor daddy" . . . Her gorgeous hair and eyes are just like June's . . . And Gloria, beautiful Gloria . . . I can see her ten years from now when she's 16 . . . Wonder if I'll amount to anything ten years from now? . . . Anyway, Gloria's proud of me now . . . There was the time at the Professional Children's School and that Paramount scout called to interview kids. . . . They wanted one for a Chevalier flicker.

"And what's your name?" he asked her . . . "Gloria Winchell!" she replied . . . "Well, well," the man said, "your father isn't the columnist—the dramatic critic?" . . . "My father," Gloria stiffened, "is a NEWSPAPER MAN!"

IS THE STANLEY HERO NOBLE OR SILLY? WE ASK YOU

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

There is something new in movie heroes. Glimpse Frank Fay in the Stanley's new screen affair, "Bright Lights." He loves the heroine so much that he wants her to marry someone else. Which is all very noble. Or very silly. But it isn't life. Men aren't like that.

The picture is a mixup of music, melodrama and romance. While a big revue is in progress, there are flashbacks to an African locale and some hectic moments behind the stage.

Dorothy Mackaill is the heroine. She sings and she dances. She looks charming and frail. But she has a strong arm. She hurls a lamp across a room. Wham! It catches Noah Beery on the jaw. It knocks him out. But then, that's what he gets for sneaking into a lady's room.

AGAIN, THE REPORTER

Gentlemen of the press enter into the story. Which means the drunken reporter. At that, he is the most entertaining individual in the production. And the smartest! When the hip-shaking heroine tells about her innocent life on the farm, he jots down "bologna" and "the same old oil" and wants to know if she learnt the hula in the barnyard.

An intriguing thing about those movie reporters! They are always drunk, gloriously so. But they never have a "hangover."

The picture, done in color, attains some scenic elaborateness in its revue sequences. And really there is something doing every minute. Yet, so much of it, is ridiculous. Witness the coroner's inquest that comes near the finale.

FROM A DISTANCE

On the stage is Gene Morgan, who has come out of the West to do the M. C. antics in the Stanley. His current show is "Forward March," a feature of which is Rosenbaum's fur style show.

From where we were sitting, Mr. Morgan didn't appear such a "big shot" yesterday. But then we only had a bird's eye view of him. We were perched near the skyline of the third balcony; right, we might say, on the front stoop of that theater rainbow—the spotlight.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Louise Tunnell to Make Bow at Newport Barn Dance

No matter how great the charm of informal summer entertainments may be, there's something decidedly satisfying in an occasional event comparable with the outstanding social affairs of the fall and winter season.

And such an event will be held tomorrow in exclusive Newport when Helen Louise Tunnell, daughter of the E. P. Tunnells, one of Pittsburgh's debutantes, will be presented to eastern and summer resort society at a barn dance tomorrow night to be given by her aunt, Miss Lilian Washburn Newlin, of New York, Bar Harbor, and Newport, at her Newport place, "The Playhouse."

Among the 200 guests will be Joan Diehl, a debutante of the past winter, and Thomas Diehl, daughter and son of the Ambrose Nevin Diehls; Almer Thomas, the bud's father and mother and sister, Elizabeth, William J. Iselin and Eleanor Iselin, E. Vale Stebbins and his party, the V. Blanck Newlins, father and mother of the hostess; Mrs. William Jay, Philip Gosler, the W. Gurnee Dyers, Mrs. George Mesta, the Robert J. Adamses and others.

Beach Party

At Newport beach parties at fashionable Bailey's Beach have been particularly popular during the past week. Among those who entertained Tuesday at a beach luncheon there was Miss Lillian Washburn Newlin. And, of course, her guests included Helen Louise Tunnell and Elizabeth Tunnell, her house guests.

Mrs. George Phelps Rose, of Sewickley, entertained in her home with a small luncheon Wednesday, have you heard, in honor of Mrs. Scott Duncan, of Louisville, Ky., who is the house guest of Mrs. J. W. Oliver, of "Hill Crest," Sewickley Heights?

After being the guest of Mrs. Samuel Adams, of Sewickley, at the Adams' summer place in Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass., Miss Elizabeth Fleming Hays has returned to the Sewickley Valley.

The J. T. Ryans, of Richland lane, and their son, J. T. Ryan, Jr., are at Pictou Lodge, Pictou, Nova Scotia.

Changes Date

Forsyth Patterson, daughter of the Charles F. Pattersons, of "Hillsborough," Sewickley, has changed the date of her wedding to George Elder Watson, Jr., son of the George Elder Watsons, of New York and Southampton, from September 27 to October 4.

At Watch Hill the large Pittsburgh colony is making the most of the final weeks of summer. Mrs. William R. Thompson is entertaining a house party this week end.

Sidney Liggett has arrived with his family, and Mrs. James B. Oliver has arrived for the remainder of the season.

The William B. Trainers have as their guests the A. Rex Flinns.

And the Harry Darlingtons entertained recently with a tea on their yacht, the "Ardea."

Their young daughter Elaine entertained a group of her friends recently on a cruise around Fisher's Island. Supper was served aboard the yacht.

Entries for the women's singles tennis tournament to be played next week include Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy, Althea Robinson, Nancy Byers and Mary Robinson.

August Bride

Mrs. Elizabeth Butler, of Cedar avenue, North Side, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Genevieve Butler, to Clarence E. Dalton, also of the North Side, which took place on Wednesday in St. Peter's rectory, Sherman avenue, with the Rev. Paul B. Tomlinson officiating. Miss Kathryn C. Lucas was the maid of honor and the best man was Paul Hausenfelt. After the ceremony breakfast was served in the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton will make their home in the North Side after a southern trip.

Burgwin O. Brokaw, after spending two weeks in Northern Canada, was entertained by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Ragel, of New York, formerly Miss Florence Smithson, of Pittsburgh.

About 50 men, members of a class who accepted the invitation of the Allegheny Branch Y M C A., at West North avenue and Monterey street, to learn to swim were treated to ice cream and cake in the cafeteria of the Y following a swimming party which climaxed a course of four instruction days.

A week ago the Allegheny branch extended an invitation to men who wanted to learn to swim. Virtually every one, including August Meyers, 57, of 1319 Troy Hill road, the oldest, proved adept pupils. Physical Director J. H. Adams, and Lee T. McBride, associate, announced.

It was the first time an event of this sort was staged and because of its success more may be held in the near future, attaches of the Y. M. C. A. said they believed.

NIESS ESTATE DISTRIBUTED

An estate valued at $150,000 is disposed of in the will of Charles J. Niess, of 5437 Ellsworth avenue, filed for probate today.

After leaving his jewelry to his widow, Ann Jane Niess, he directs that the estate left him by his first wife, Anna Niess, is to go to her sister, Mrs. Rosina Walter, as she asked in her will.

The remainder of the estate is divided into four parts, two of which are bequeathed to the widow and James Niess. At the death of Mrs. Niess, her share is to go to her son, Ambrose J. Curran, and a grandson, Charles Curran.

The third share goes to a nephew, E. C. Funk, and the fourth is to be held in trust for Funk's children. The Union Trust Company is named executor. He also leaves $500 to his sister, Mrs. Helen Funk, of St. Paul, Minn., and his brother-in-law, Charles R. Funk.

Homestead Postal Lease Approved

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A lease of new postal quarters at 942 Eighth avenue, Homestead, offered by A. E. Braun and the Colonial Trust Company, executors of the estate of John Munhall, was accepted by the Post-office Department. The lease, to run for 10 years, becomes effective from the date of installation of equipment.

Earl of Birkenhead, Ill, Rests Uneasily

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Earl of Birkenhead, prominent British political figure who is ill with bronchial pneumonia, passed a restless night, but it was said that his strength was maintained.

STUDENT PARTY VISITS HERE

Nine European members of the International Confederation of Students were guests today of the Carnegie Institute of Technology in a tour of American educational institutions and industrial plants.

Among the visitors are Baron H. Helldorff, of Vienna, a civil engineer, and Mrs. M. Lones, a practicing physician of London and widow of Dr. Percy Lones, killed in the World War. The tourists are all graduates of universities and represent various professions. The party includes W. Czepczynski, of Poland; S. F. Dutoit, South Africa; K. Eberle, Switzerland; W. Petterson, Sweden; S. Russo Velis, A. Stucchi and A. Taroni, Italy, and A. Suzman, South Africa.

The party inspected the Tech buildings and made a sight-seeing tour this afternoon. An informal dinner will be held tonight. The University of Pittsburgh will be host to the party tomorrow on a similar program before the group leaves for Buffalo tomorrow night. Lawrence Vass, of Rutger University, is student guide for the party.

Anglican Pass Up Birth Control Ban

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Daily Herald today says the Anglican bishops at the Lambeth conference have decided not to condemn uncompromisingly the practice of birth control, refusing to go further than to suggest it has no part in "the perfect Christian married life."

The decision, the Herald says, is considered a great victory for Lord Dawson of Penn, King George's physician, who has been striving to prevent any outstanding condemnation of the principle.

STALIN ENDS SECLUSION

MOSCOW, Aug. 8.—(Universal)—Josef Stalin, "iron man of Russia" and proletarian dictator, confident that his singular political victory over opposition forces at the recent Communist party congress has strengthened his position, today had decided upon a policy of partial emergence from his heretofore almost air-tight seclusion.

For the first time so far known, Stalin walked on the streets of the Red capital so conspicuously that thousands of workers recognized him and saluted.

3 Seaplanes Reach Erie in Lake Tour

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Three seaplanes which took off from Detroit yesterday in the first Great Lakes air tour, arrived here last night following stops at Cleveland and Conneaut, Pa. The planes, which are due back in Detroit August 17, will touch at lake ports in five states and the Dominion of Canada.

The planes will leave for Buffalo, N. Y., tomorrow morning.

Father of 17 Jailed In Dog Tax Dispute

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Charles Ankrum, father of 17 children, went to jail after hearing a fine of $1 and costs, amounting in all to $30, imposed upon him for failure to pay a county tax on six dogs. Ankrum, a farmer, of near Barnesville, said the dogs were licensed in Pennsylvania and were sent to his home for the summer by his sister.

Girl Scouts Active in Camp

The third two-week encampment of the 1930 season at Camp Redwing, Girl Scout camp, finds 180 girls enjoying outdoor life.

A Japanese festival was a feature last week, with Japanese songs and dances, a puppet show and a Japanese tea party included in the program.

An English country fair at Nottingham market was the feature of another day's program. Horse races were features, and fruits, vegetables and flowers were displayed. English country dancing on the green was the climax.

The Round Table Unit recently celebrated troop day with Olympic games and the Wonderland Unit entertained the entire camp with an Alice in Wonderland party.

Pioneer Unit houses the members of the Leaders' Training Camp, 20 Girl Scout leaders from Western Pennsylvania, who are studying daily scout life. In charge is Miss Jeanne Christy, camp director.

Outlook Outing

A garden tour for members and friends of the Outlook Alliance will be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. H. K. Beegle, of Gibsonia, under the auspices of the forestry committee, of which Mrs. Marian Foster Smith is chairman.

Members will bring box lunches and the committee will serve coffee. An automobile trip to a nearby farm, where a picnic will be held, will be a feature.

Members are asked to use the Butler Short Line car, to be taken at 11 o'clock that morning at Duquesne way. Receiving reservations for the event is Mrs. H. D. Stark, president of the Outlook Alliance.

TALKING FILMS WIN SHAW

LONDON, Aug. 8.—George Bernard Shaw has finally gone talkie.

The famous playwright, who for 15 years steadily refused the tempting offers of American producers for the film rights to his plays, according to this morning's Daily Herald, has signed his first film contract.

And here, in Shaw's own words, is the somewhat tragic reason:

"I am afraid the poor old theater is done for. All my plays will be made into talkie films before long, so what other course is open to me?"

Shaw's first production, "How He Lied to Her Husband," was written in four days. It will be filmed in the Elstree studios of British International Pictures and is to be completed within 10 weeks. It is understood he will supervise the scenario and watch the production as it proceeds.

Revealing why he stood out against the films so long, Shaw said:

"I stood out against the silent films because they are no good for me, but I certainly was not made for a prolonged stand against the talkies, which are a different proposition. I have signed the contract because I want to make money.

"The theater may survive as a place where people are taught to act, but apart from that there will be nothing but the talkies soon."

Horses Can't 'Win' In Race With Men

MONTREAL, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A 24-hour relay race between six teams of men and as many horses will be run here tomorrow, but no matter which wins it will not be horses. In the event a horse outruns a man the jockey will collect the prize money.

PICTURESQUE PYJAMAS COLOR THE GALA NAUTICAL EVENTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, AUG. 8.—It is almost impossible to extract oneself from the jam caused by countless pyjamas all destined to decorate the various beaches with vivid and sometimes riotous splashes of color. As far as the fashionable resorts are concerned all daytime garments seem to have just resolved themselves into beach pyjama ensembles with matching accessories, and we imagine that it is only in the little family resorts that dot the Channel coast that madame spends the day nicely attired in a neat little frock, crisp and fresh. Pyjamas are a distinct contribution to the art of being picturesquely indolent, and as such are loudly welcome by the true beach-comber who knows how to get the best out of life with the least effort.

And so it is only at the Lido, at Cap d'Antibes, at Deauville and similar luxurious resorts that one is permitted to view the beach pyjama in all its flaunting glory and infectuous gaiety. Crepe de chine, georgette, jersey, linen and shantung seem to be the materials particularly favored for these confections, all of them quite obviously designed by the leading designers, with the idea of outvieing each other in originality and clever effects.

WE ARE ABLE to send you two more sketches of resort wear as featured at le Concours d' Elegance at the recent Gala Nautical. The first sketch is a creation of Germaine Lecomte and is in white crepe de chine with large bright red dots. Double stitched pleats make the pyjamas very full and the white crepe blouse worn under the jaunty little bolero has short sleeves finished with little bows. The parasol is of the same material giving an air of formality to a most informal costume.

* * *

THE OTHER SKETCH is just so that you may see what a French swim suit really looks like. The daring design is composed of a combination of white and tango jersey. The short jacket is sleeveless, and the whole effect is guaranteed to leave the beholder quite breathless, not because of the brevity of the suit, but because of the daring way in which the contrast is achieved.

COUNTIES SHIFT IN CENSUS RANK

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A shuffling of the counties, so extensive that only 17 out of 67 retain the same relative rank they held 10 years ago, has been effected by the 1930 census, the Associated Press compilation of district supervisors' preliminary reports reveals.

Philadelphia, Allegheny, Luzerne, Lackawanna and Westmoreland have retained the first five places in the order existing in 1930, but in their wake the others have rankings differing widely from those of 10 years ago. Cambria has been displaced by Delaware in the first 10 and Northampton has supplanted Lehigh in the first 15.

The greatest advance in position was shown by Greene, which reported an increase of 35.55 per cent in population and moved from fifty-third to forty-third place. Clearfield dropped from the 100,000 class and left only 22 counties in or above that class.

CONSERVATIVES RULE CANADA

OTTAWA, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A Conservative government, headed by Premier R. D. Bennett and composed of ministers drawn from every province in the Dominion, today was in charge of Canada's affairs.

The new ministry which came into power as a result of the victory over the Liberal party in the recent general election, was inducted into office yesterday simultaneously with the resignation of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and his cabinet. It is the first Conservative government to rule in Canada since the World War.

Unemployment which figured as an issue in the election is the first problem to which Premier Bennett plans to turn his attention.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

"International Aviation" will be discussed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh over KDKA and WCAE at 11 o'clock tonight, W8XK, the short wave station of KDKA, will relay the talk to foreign lands, where it will be picked up and rebroadcast.

A soprano-contralto duo will give "Lazy Lou'siana Moon" for the Quakers, KDKA, at 10. "Annie Laurie" will be played by the ensemble.

Col. Lindbergh

A special arrangement of memories of Victor Herbert, including "March of the Toys," "Kiss Me Again" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," will feature the Armour Hour on KDKA at 9:30.

Nina Olivette, star of "Hold Everything," will entertain for KQV listeners at 6 o'clock during the Warner Revue.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT Don Bestor is tentatively scheduled to return here next month?

THAT Jo Tyler is the composer of a new march to be reviewed by Edwin Franko Goldman, the noted band leader?

THAT Floyd Gibbons, at the rate he's going, will average more than a million words a year on the air? Stretched end on end these words would make a terrible clamor.

THAT Tampa, the magician on WCAE, is Thurston's right bower? And we mean that literally. Boy, this fellow's slick with cards.

THAT the Lawson Sisters, WJAS trained, have been accepted by CBS for several appearances on the network? Their key station is WPG at Atlantic City and the program, "Dancing With the Waves," which sometimes features Don Bestor.

THAT dealers in Kansas accept wheat in lieu of money for the purchase of radio sets?

THAT Edwin M. Whitney, NBC production man, is one of the few major stars in radio who came to the air with a nation-wide audience already prepared for him? During several years of Chautauqua and concert work, Whitney sang and acted in more than 5,000 performances in all parts of the United States.

THAT the new Victor Radio has an attachment for making records in the home?

QUESTION A DAY:

Virginia Lawson, Brownsville—Who are the Twenty Fingers of Sweetness?

A.—Irene Jones and Adah Straub. Miss Jones is a well known organist and accompanist. She is now playing at Calvary Episcopal Church. Miss Straub is new in our city, but no stranger to DX fans. She comes from KMTR, Los Angeles, where she was more popularly known as Betty McKee. Miss Jones is brunet; Miss Straub is blonde. Their playing has attracted the attention of a vaudeville circuit.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Allen Thrasher likes to ride horseback. Visiting at Conneaut Lake not long ago he chartered one of the thoroughbreds and went for a jaunt into the country. About five miles out he decided to turn back, then learned that his steed was more of a donkey than a Gallant Fox. The horse, rented to the Conneaut stables, was hungry and determined to visit his stall on a farm near Meadville. He did. Allen missed his dinner and had to pay $14 for entertaining the horse. He-e-e-e-e-e-e-

If Stomach Kicks Up, Beware

Pain, Belching, Gas, Bloating, Heartburn Often Lead to Dangerous Results

New Formula Acidine Acts To End Torture And Danger of Acidity

Don't run risk of getting dangerous troubles that often result from burning acid stomach, gnawing pains before or after eating, belching gas, bloating, heartburn and other stomach ills. New formula Acidine containing an effective starch digestant, stops pain and gas and quickly soothes dangerous stomach irritation. Get Acidine from your druggist today—it is not expensive—and stop acid stomach torture and danger for good.

"I've suffered my last spell of sour stomach," says H. K. White, of 2519 Washington Boulevard, Chicago. "I found out that by taking Acidine three or four nights a week, I never have that uncertain feeling whether my meals are going to set right, or make me miserable from the excessive acid and gas I used to have so regularly."

Remember, this new Acidine is entirely different from other remedies. Contains an effective starch digestant, Japtase, that promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of heavy starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize the burning acid, stop gas formation, soothe the irritated stomach lining. Stop pain like a flash. No other remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble.

Physicians are prescribing Acidine as an excellent relief for acid indigestion and dyspepsia. Since last year over five million people have used it and praise it highly. So it is rapidly taking the place of other stomach remedies.

To get rid of stomach tortures quick and avoid serious danger, get Acidine today. Watch pain and gas disappear. Eat, drink and smoke, take Acidine to relieve acidity. Results guaranteed or money back. Get Acidine today from any good druggist.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

Celery Olives Radishes
Chicken Pot Pie
Rice Ring with Vegetables
Sliced Tomatoes, Mint Dressing
Fresh Peach Cobbler
Iced or Hot Coffee

When the thermometer begins to play havoc with our tempers and temperatures, I think it is a wise plan to prepare as much of the Sunday dinner ahead of time as possible. The greater the distance between the cook and the cook stove, the better!

If you decide on Chicken Pot Pie (and who could say nay?), most of the preparation could be accomplished beforehand. For example, the chicken may be cleaned, disjointed and cooked before the other preparations are under way. I'd select a four-pound chicken. Cook it slowly in water to cover with 1 carrot, a stalk of celery, and 1-3 cup diced potatoes until the chicken is tender.

Make a sauce by blending 2 tablespoons flour with 4 tablespoons butter until smooth, and slowly adding 4 cups chicken stock, 1 teaspoon salt and 4 whole peppers. Then add 1 cup cream and cook the sauce until thickened. Put the chicken and vegetables in a buttered baking dish or deep pie plate. Pour the sauce over the chicken and cover with a pie crust. Prick the dough with a fork to allow the steam to escape. Bake the chicken pie for 15 to 20 minutes.

For the mint dressing, thoroughly mix 6 tablespoons oil with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, a dash of paprika, 1 tablespoon finely minced mint and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Fresh Peach Cobbler is a very elegant dessert indeed! Mix a beaten egg with ⅓ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add 2 cups sliced fresh peaches and place in a buttered pudding dish. Dot with bits of butter and cover over with a cobbler dough made in this way: Mix ⅓ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 cup flour; cut in 1 tablespoon butter and add 1 beaten egg mixed with ⅓ cup milk to form a soft dough. Slit the top in several places and bake the cobbler in a hot oven until the crust is brown.

If I don't take a batch of gingerbread for the very young generation that inhabits my country house and helps to make it the delightful place it is, I might just as well not go home for the week-end.

I am loved, it seems, in proportion to the amount of gingerbread I turn out, come Sunday afternoons! Oh, well.

Last week-end I tried out a new recipe for Marshmallow Gingerbread—and HOW it was good! I am sure of a welcome for several weeks to come, just on the strength of it.

Here is the recipe for you. One-half cup shortening; 1 cup molasses, 1 egg; about 2 1-3 cups flour; 1 teaspoon salt, 1 2-3 teaspoons soda, 1½ teaspoons ground ginger, 1 cup sour milk, marshmallows.

Melt the shortening and add to it the molasses, beaten egg and flour with which the salt, soda and ginger have been sifted. Add the milk, beat thoroughly and turn into a deep pan which has been well greased and floured.

Bake 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven—350 to 375 degrees F.

Remove from the pan, split and put a layer of marshmallows on the cut surface. Replace the top section of the gingerbread and return to the oven for about 3 minutes to soften marshmallows slightly.

Cut into squares and serve plain as a cake or with whipped cream as a dessert.

Potato Biscuits are a favorite food, too.

They're very, very easy. Take 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, 2-3 cup mashed potatoes, scant 2-3 cup milk.

Sift together, the flour, baking powder, salt. Work in the shortening and potatoes and moisten with the milk, making a light dough as soft as can be easily handled.

Roll or pat out on a floured

HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Constipation is the most common menace to health today. It is extremely dangerous in itself and is the source of many other complicating ailments. There is no permanent relief in pills and drugs. Many of them are dangerous.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. And roughage in food helps eliminate the possibility of constipation. Most modern foods do not contain roughage. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily is the proper amount. In recurring cases, ALL-BRAN should be eaten with each meal. It is an essential in any reducing diet. In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains iron, the blood builder. It is the original ALL-BRAN, proved effective by millions.

Cut into rounds, place on a slightly greased pan and bake in a 400 degrees oven for about 15 minutes.

Corn fritters, if they get on harmoniously with you, are a treat. They may be cooked in deep fat, or as small pancakes. For the latter, the batter should be considerably thinner than for fritters that are to be cooked in deep fat. The egg is beaten separately, to give a lighter product.

The recipe for Corn Fritters is a fairly standardized one: I can almost vouch for it that your fritters will be a success if you follow this recipe. For 2 cups of corn allow 2 cups of flour, ½ cup of milk, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon of baking powder and 1 teaspoon of salt.

Mix the corn with the seasonings, the melted butter and the beaten egg. Then add the milk, and lastly the flour and baking powder sifted together.

In combination with other vegetables, corn cut from the cob does very nicely indeed.

One particularly tasty mixture calls for 1½ cups of corn, cooked and cut from the ear, a small onion, a large sweet green pepper, 3 medium sized tomatoes, 3 tablespoons of butter, salt and pepper.

Mince the onion and pepper, saute in butter until soft, then add the tomatoes, peeled and mashed, the corn and the seasonings. Bring to a boil and simmer a few minutes before serving.

A Mint Jelly Ring is a delicious thing. Soak 2 tablespoons of lemon flavored gelatine in ½ cup of cold water for 5 minutes. Pour 2½ cups boiling water over ½ cup mint leaves, let stand covered 5 minutes, strain, pour boiling hot over gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice, salt, and if desired, the grated rind of a lemon.

Pour into a ring mold, set aside several hours to harden and chill. Serve with a bowl of mayonnaise in the center and surround with green peas dressed with French dressing.

TOMATO AND CHEESE OMELET—Season 2 cups tomatoes with 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Add 1 tablespoon oil or butter and 1 teaspoon sugar. Stew the tomatoes rapidly until thick.

Make Milk Foundation Of Your Diet

It is the Perfect Protein Food, Declares Dr. Copeland, as Necessary for Adults as It Is for Children.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City; U. S. Senator from New York.

We have only to turn to human experiments with diets rich in milk to reach some interesting conclusions. The Arabs serve as a very good illustration of what I have in mind. From the earliest times these pastoral tribes have subsisted on a varied diet, the chief article of which is the large quantity of milk consumed.

These tribes are examples of excellence in nutrition. The Bedouins of Arabia, as well as certain tribes of the Sahara, are peoples of high mental attainments and physical perfection.

In an arid climate, they subsist on food and clothing supplied by their herds of sheep, goats, camels and cattle. It is of the greatest importance to these people that it is possible to maintain a diet in which milk and milk products abound. Physically the Arabs are one of the noblest and strongest of all the world's races.

A PROTEIN FOOD

There is every reason why milk should be made the foundation of the diet. This is true not only in the case of the child, but of the average adult as well. You just cannot live and thrive without the protein foods. Milk is the perfect protein food.

Milk is the most abundant source of lime or calcium, without which growth is retarded. If milk is left out of the diet, enough of the element, calcium, can hardly be obtained from ordinary amounts of other foods.

Another mineral element, phosphorus, is just as necessary in the food supply. Milk supplies it abundantly.

RICH IN VITAMINS

Then we must reckon with the vitamins. We must include in the diet the foods which contain them. Milk is rich in Vitamin A, which builds up resistance to disease. It guards against colds, infections of the sinuses and ailments of the bronchial tubes. It prevents a disease of the eye, called "xeropthalmia."

We find Vitamin B in milk as well. There is little of Vitamin C, so that milk should be supplemented by other foods that have it. Also milk is deficient in iron, a mineral that none of us can go without in our food. It is another reason why a varied diet of cereals, vegetables, fruits and some meat should make up the diet, with milk as a foundation.

PROMOTES HEALTH

We call milk a "protective" food because it protects from the deficiency diseases. If every adult and every child will take good, sound advice, in the daily diet will be included at least one pint of milk a day for the adult, and a quart a day for the growing child. Milk promotes health as no other food does.

For the many people who do not like milk to drink, there is any number of ways to serve it. It is easy enough to build a pint into a day's menu of meals. It can be used in creamed soups, in chowders, scalloped vegetables and meats, creamed vegetables and various casserole dishes.

Most nutritious desserts are made with milk, custards, puddings, cooling drinks, ice creams and sherberts. For a hot summer's day nothing is more delicious than a milk sherbet made with a fresh fruit — peach, raspberry, orange, lemon, or pineapple. And nothing was finer than grandmother's custard pie.

'Falling Star'

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Irma Gladden, famous film star, is found murdered in her own car, which is parked on the grounds of her Beverly Hills home. The star's boudoir is completely ransacked. Robin Dale learns that Irma Gladden, recently divorced for a third time, left a party the evening of the murder with a former husband, Mindino, Filipino houseboy, discharged by the star for theft, is about to be arrested for the crime. Dale convinces the police of Mindino's innocence. A search proves that robbery was not the motive. Questioning Mathilda, the maid, the police learn of the frequent visits of various men since the star's latest divorce. Warren Sibley, her director, and reported to be her next matrimonial prospect, is questioned. Mrs. Sibley is also questioned. Neither has an alibi. The police are unable to locate Leighton, the recently-divorced husband, or Robert Worth, Irma Gladden's first husband. Worth is known to have threatened her life.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER V.

It was characteristic of Robin Dale that he did not discuss the tragedy with Rex Forsythe whom he found at home upon his return from police headquarters. The well-known author had been in Hollywood for more than six months under contract to Eminent Pictures Corporation at an enormous salary, being one of the first of the nationally-known playwrights to be called to the films when talking pictures became the vogue.

Forsythe had evidently been reticent about discussing his feelings for Irma Gladden, as no mention of it had ever been made in Robin Dale's presence. The reporter, therefore, respected this silence and made no mention of what had developed during the day's investigations, especially what had come to light regarding Forsythe.

The author did inquire if the police had learned who had committed the deed, and, after Dale stated that no progress had been made in that respect, the question was dropped.

Indeed, during the week following, no additional progress was made either by the police or the district attorney's office. Andre Leighton had been found and questioned by Capt. Sommers. Like Warren Sibley and Mrs. Sibley, his answers were vague and any possible alibi unsubstantiated.

He testified that after he left the Eminent Pictures studio he had wandered about for an hour or more, finally arriving at the apartment of a friend in Laurel Canyon. No one knew exactly what time it was, a guess putting it at about 3 o'clock. He did not leave until 10 in the morning, going home for an hour or so, and then returning to the Laurel Canyon bungalow.

There had been a number of conferences in the offices of Maurice Kenton and Capt. Sommers, but the authorities had been able to arrive at no definite decision. At different intervals warrants of arrest were about to be issued against Warren Sibley, Grace Sibley and Andre Leighton, but each time the action was delayed for want of substantiating evidence. Any one of the three might have been guilty. But which one?

The newspapers about the country were featuring the famous mystery and the Southern California journals were becoming vicious in their attacks upon the futile efforts of the administration. The crime had taken its place as one of the outstanding topics of conversation in the whole country.

As yet, nothing but circumstantial evidence had been accumulated, and this was of such a weak character that it did not point definitely to any individual. The weapon with which the crime had been committed had not been found. Search had been made of the effects of every one of the suspects, but no weapon or other tangible evidence had come to light. Robert Worth was still at large. The police were in a quandary; three suspects without alibis were still permitted their freedom and a fourth had not even been found to be questioned. It was easy to understand why newspapers assailed the sorely-tried officials.

Robin Dale had found it utterly impossible to advance his own theory of the crime until the propitious moment arrived. This opportunity finally came about 10 days after the crime had been committed. It developed in rather a peculiar manner. Rex Forsythe, who rarely discussed the tragedy with Dale, offered the reporter the opportunity he had been seeking.

"There's going to be a private running of Irma's best picture at the studio tonight, Dale," said Forsythe upon his arrival from a day on location. "I suppose, after the tragedy of her death, the picture will never be released. And I believe that's the better course. Would you like to see it?"

"I'm rather anxious to. It's the film titled 'Falling Star,' isn't it?"

"Odd about the irony in that title, as things turned out. And I had looked forward to many pleasant recollections being twined about the story when I began work on it. If one felt inclined one could coin an epigram about the playthings of destiny."

"Who do you imagine killed Irma Gladden, Forsythe?"

"If I had but one guess in the matter I'd say Robert Worth, her first husband."

"I'm inclined to believe it's someone who desired to become her husband."

"That covers a vast amount of territory, Dale," said Forsythe with a faint smile. "Nearly every one of the suspects was prompted by that desire, and there are probably many, many others outside the circle of the tragedy who felt the same way."

"I've formed a theory, Forsythe, which requires only one or two factors for complete substantiation. I believe those points will be cleared up within a very short time. I'd like to discuss it with you then and get the benefit of your calculations."

"Of course, Dale—I'd be more than interested. You can understand that now, old man, for you've probably learned how I felt toward the lady."

Dale nodded and put his hand affectionately about his friend's shoulder, expressing thus more than he could have said in words. At nine o'clock, they left for the projection room. At ten the last work of Irma Gladden began to unreel before a select audience of studio officials. Dale recognized Warren Sibley and his wife among those present. Andre Leighton had also been invited and was seated by himself in one of the front rows of the miniature theater. Joseph Gold was there, of course.

From the opening scene of "Falling Star" Robin Dale's attention was riveted on the screen.

The title was allegorical. Its symbol was the meteor which blazes brightly in the sky for a brief moment and then falls into black oblivion. The theme of the story followed the meteoric rise of a woman and her plunge into the abyss of forgotten people.

The story followed her from the slums of London, where she met and married a young adventurer, to the diamond fields of South Africa. There, in a thrilling pictorial episode, she met the young son of an English lord who had vast holdings among the mines.

He, as men did who came under the spell of her alluring beauty, was instantly enamoured of her. Their first meeting was during a hunt when he saved her by knifing a cobra as she stood unwaringly in a thicket trying to stalk an antelope.

She divorced her adventurer-husband and married the young lord, returning to England a Lady. But her soul remained unchanged. New faces and new fancies intrigued her until there was a separation. Among those whom the lady had captivated was the lifelong friend and companion of the young lord.

The enraptured victim was on the verge of sacrificing wife and honor and name for the sake of his fascinating captor. Through a trusted servant in his wife's employe the young lord learned of this. Prompted by a consuming jealousy, for he still loved the creature, and a hope to save his comrade, the husband planned a fitting climax for the career of the Lorelei.

First he sent a message to his trusted servant for a two-fold purpose; that the Lady might be alone, and secondly, to establish an alibi for himself as he planned to travel by motor, commit the crime and return home before the arrival of the servant.

The plan carried through as arranged. The young lord came in on his wife, found her alone, and forced her to write to his comrade, disillusioning him. Then he killed her with the same knife that he once had used to save her life. It had hung as a souvenir, struck through the skin of the cobra, in the library of their home.

He then returned to his quarters before the servant arrived.

But upon one point the scheme went awry. Receiving the note next morning, the husband's comrade went forthwith to see the Lady. Here he was found with her body and the note as motive for the deed. Peculiarly, the knife could not be found, although it was under the very eyes of the police, in its usual place, stuck through the reptile skin. The young lord, learning how his revenge had turned about, telephoned the truth to the police as the story ended.

WIFE BEGINS ALIMONY SUIT

Asking one-third of her husband's income as alimony pending litigation of his suit against her for divorce, Mrs. Helen Dolfi, 450 Third street, Clairton, has filed a petition in Common Pleas Court. She says her husband, Ralph Dolfi, 804 Ohio avenue, Glassport, has an income of $600 a month and owns $25,000 of stocks, bonds and real estate. He has an interest in the North Clairton garage giving him an income of $500 a month, besides $100 a month derived from his real estate. The couple have four children. They were married 12 years ago and separated July 2. He charged cruelty in his divorce libel.

Wife Asks Share Of Husband's Pay

Mrs. Helen Palma, 944 Ridge avenue, wants one-third of her husband's $125 monthly wages as alimony pending a trial of the suit she has filed for divorce from Charles Palma, railroader, of 216 Connision avenue, Knoxville. The couple were married July 31, 1925, and separated September 13, 1928. Palma must show cause in Common Pleas Court August 15 why he should not share his earnings with her.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Pittsburgh's War Mothers to Visit Graves Today

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH
by WILLIAM PFARR

Things we'd do if we could, which we can't:

Establish a school of manners for traffic cops.

Establish a school of manners for motorists.

Penalize all golfers who wear berets.

Forbid spaghetti.

Abolish ward chairmen.

Write the biography of Secretary Mellon.

Take a four-month vacation every summer.

Juggle three oranges.

The young people today (What in the world are they coming to?) don't remember Neely Burns and Buttermilk Henry, but the old-timers do. Neely was able to boast that he had been arrested oftener than anybody else in Pittsburgh, usually for drunkenness. The police tolerated Neely and it was seldom that he wasn't discharged. In fact, they tell the story of Neely strolling into Magistrate John Sweeney's court many years ago for a hearing.

"Good morning, Your Honor," Neely's voiced boomed out good naturedly.

"Good morning, Neely," Sweeney returned.

"Good morning, Judge," Neely repeated, turning on his heels and departing.

The hearing was ended.

Buttermilk Henry was a sort of favorite with the city detectives. They gave him a broken revolver and a sleuth's badge, the better for him to carry off his harmless impersonations as a detective. Once he had a fortune, but in his peculiar way he dissipated it.

It was in these days that the phrase, "Tell it to Sweeney" was popularized. The magistrate was then sitting in downtown police court and the police, arresting apologetic or resentful drunks, were always quick with the reply, "Ah, tell it to Sweeney."

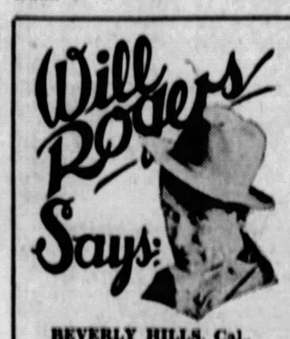
The hay fever season thus far has been a huge success; there has been lots of it. We hope that none of the readers of Sidewalks have fallen victim of the fever, but it does not necessarily follow that those who read Sidewalks are immune. If such were the case we would advertise, "Read Sidewalks to escape the hay fever." Be that as it is, we are going to do all we can to reduce the hay fever casualties among Sidewalks readers. Our advice, taken from Mr. Maits, the city health director, is: Cut your weeds. The pollen from the weeds encourages hay fever. Destroy the weeds and the pollen is frustrated. Tomorrow, in our own inimitable, if technical fashion, we intend to say a word or two on the all-important subject of hiccoughs. A-a-a-a-chew!

In less time than it takes to say twenty-three skiddoo, Harry Seymour can name the owner of any piece of property along Bigelow boulevard. Mr. Seymour is in the electric sign business and it behooves him to know who owns the property on which signs might be erected. Bigelow boulevard is the choicest thoroughfare in town, according to Mr. Seymour. As the best located sign, Mr. Seymour names that huge affair along Duquesne Heights Hill.

Sign men keep an alert eye on their products. Every night in the week three men tour the town looking for letters which have gone dark. If the letter E in the big Sun-Telegraph sign went out, so to speak, one of these checkers would sight it within 60 minutes and immediately 'phone the repairmen. Bad weather can be blamed for most of these short circuits. Once, after a storm, the sign on a certain hotel was made to read HOT HEN.

Train Kills Man In Chair on Rails

LAKE CITY, Minn., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Despondent because of ill health and the recent death of his only son, George Watson, 62, sat in a chair on the railroad tracks near here and was killed by a train.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 8.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Seems like old times to have Mr. Hoover taking personal charge of our heat and drought calamity. He made a good start by getting rid of the Republican national chairman. Now if he will do away with the whole organization I bet it would start in ruining and maybe we'd get a good snow. Wheat has gone up, so the farm board had some inside weather reports. And speaking of weather reports, people now actually think Coolidge saw this drought coming, and decided to watch it from a distance.

Yours,
WILL.

PAY TRIBUTE IN FRENCH CEMETERY

Trip Over Battlefields Where Heroic Kin Gave Lives On Program Tomorrow

By MRS. OLIVE M. HORNE.

(Mrs. Horne, of 125 Charles street, Knoxville, past state president of the Service Star Legion, is acting as the Sun-Telegraph staff correspondent.)

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Gold Star mothers and widows of the Pittsburgh district today were prepared for a visit to Chateau Versailles Cemetery, where hundreds of French and American soldiers are buried.

Tomorrow the delegation of 40 will depart via Porte de aPntin for brief visits to Meaux Laferte, Sous Jouarre, Chateau Thierry, the Aisne and the Marne Cemetery. Sunday the delegation will visit the Tomb of Napoleon and attend church services.

The trip thus far has been one of unusual interest, and one that will never be forgotten by those in the party. The courtesies shown us by the French have made a deep impression on all, and we will return to the United States with a much clearer understanding of the people of France than we ever before had.

The day following our arrival here, July 31, we attended a reception at which speakers were United States Ambassador Walter Edge, Gen. John J. Pershing and Gen. Frasque, the latter representing the French Government. Following that there were trips to various museums, churches and cemeteries in Paris. A good part of one afternoon was spent in Notre Dame. At Suresnes Cemetery each member of the party was given a wreath by the French Government.

Plans now call for our departure for home August 13.

FIVE ARRESTED IN DRY RAIDS

Five men were arrested by prohibition agents who seized a 150-gallon still and large quantities of moonshine in three raids yesterday.

In a building at 607 Twelfth street, Clairton, a 150-gallon still and 2,350 gallons of mash were found, according to the agents. Nick Nicolatt, 73, and Frank Crisoiffi, 60, were arrested, agents said.

Seizure of 68 gallons of moonshine in the home of Karl Bender, 50, of 1314 Ridge avenue, North Braddock, led to Bender's arrest, it was reported.

After confiscating a gallon of moonshine and 26 gallons of home brew in a barroom at 136 West Ninth street, Tarentum, the raiders said they arrested John Dudek, 50, and Henry Dudek, 19.

Padlocks Granted Against 2 Hotels

Two Western Pennsylvania hotels were temporarily padlocked by order of Judge Robert M. Gibson in United States District Court in granting temporary injunctions against Andrew Peterson, Jr., and Walter S. Bower. Peterson operated a hotel in South Market street, Ligonier, and Bower is the proprietor of the Hotel Bower in Fredericktown, Washington County. Hearings in the cases will be held September 9.

Bridge Party Friendliness Fails as Divorce Cause

A suit for divorce, started by Harvey Sindorf, Jr., 26, Glenshaw engineer, ended late yesterday when Judge Joseph M. Swearingen stated that not sufficient evidence had been offered by Sindorf to warrant divorce.

Roland G. Glover yas named as co-respondent. Glover and his wife, and the Sindorfs played bridge every night when they were neighbors in Brookline, Sindorf testified. He said he noticed the friendliness of his wife for Glover in 1928 over the bridge table, and that in January, 1929, Mrs. Sindorf deserted him.

Mrs. Sindorf admitted that she had visited the apartment of the "other man" with a girl acquaintance and the girl's "boy friend."

Mrs. Sindorf has made her home with an aunt, Mrs. Ida Cook, of 7944 Tacoma street, since she parted from her husband.

Raquel Gets Mysterious Letter From Jack

CHAPTER XXI.

Raquel slept late on the day following the Bosart ball. The insistent ring of the telephone on the table by her bed recalled her from a subconscious land peopled sometimes with specters in gold dresses and giant pigs, all with the round pink face of a man. Again this land was a wide plain, stretching as far as the eye could see, dotted with gray castles. Through the gleaming windows of the castles she could see beautiful women flitting back and forth like bright-winged butterflies. Black and white moths of men hurtling after them, striving awkwardly to follow their flight.

It was an effort to pull herself out of this dream land. But the telephone on the table kept up its insistent call.

A clerk at the hotel desk. There was a package for Miss Rojos. And a letter, registered. A boy had been at her door several times. He could get no answer.

"Send them up," Raquel ordered shortly. She did not want this clerk to know what a fright his message gave her.

A package? Who would be sending her a package? And a letter. A special letter that must not go astray.

Raquel was wide awake now. Her hand on the knob of the door. She would not lose a second when the boy knocked.

The package proved to be a box. Round, flattened at the top and bottom like a hatbox. Intangibly, it suggested luxury. Perhaps by the thick, white glazed paper in which it was wrapped with such studied neatness. Flowers. In a striped box, dull and shiny silver.

Raquel did not open the box. Flowers could wait.

Receives Message
Raquel Anxious to Read Contents of Note

It was the letter lying beside the box that must not wait. She picked it up, studied it closely. The name written on the flap on the back was the name of no one she had ever known. "From E. J. White, General Postoffice, El Paso, Tex." Who was E. J. White?

She tore open the envelope. It held a single sheet of paper, ruled, ragged at the top as if it had been torn hastily from a tablet. The writing, too, showed signs of haste, though it was legible enough, with a strong downward stroke that showed it was the work of no weakling's hand.

"My work in Hermosa is progressing as planned. Within two more weeks it should be finished so that I can safely leave. I go directly to the new mine, which promises a richer yield than any I have ever tackled."

There was no signature.

"My work in Hermosa." Whose work? "The new mine." What mine? The word "mine" gave Raquel the key to the puzzle. Farrell, of course.

He was trying to tell her that the plans, hers and Farrell's, made so hurriedly in the ruins of the Mission San Jeronimo the night she fled from the desert, were approaching realization.

Raquel Puzzled
Perplexed About Farrell's Strange Writing

No one had picked up her trail. Pancho, her father, must have moved heaven above and earth beneath to find her. Not that he held her so dearly. But, as the wife of Bill Johnson, she would mean much tequila without the necessity of scheming for pesos to buy it. Smuggling guns across the border was getting more dangerous every day. Peons were more interested in plowing fields than in plundering villages.

Bill Johnson, that great hulk of a cattleman she took away from Lily. Well, she had saved him from that, hadn't she? And from herself, too. She would have made his life miserable. He loved her in a way—but—Well, she doubted that Johnson had done more than salve his own conscience in an effort to find her. Her tantrums had scared him off. He was a peace-loving hombre.

The uproar that must naturally have followed her disappearance was dying down. In the desert, human beings were snuffed out without any long-sustained excitement over their goings. In a little while the dust sifted down, obliterating even memory of them.

"In two more weeks it will be finished so I can safely leave."

SUES TO HAVE DEED VOIDED

Mrs. Sophia Spokoff, widow, of 2614 California avenue, deeded a half interest in her brick dwelling to Wasil Nowalk, of Russelton, when, while courting her, he promised to make her his wife if she would transfer the property, she relates in an injunction suit on file today in Common Pleas Court. The suit seeks to have the deed canceled.

Mrs. Spokoff says she met Nowalk when he came to her house as a boarder. He began at once to pay her attention, but she says she now knows he never intended to marry her because, on account of having a wife in Europe, he knew he could not legally wed.

Alcohol Records Go to Philadelphia

Col. Samuel O. Wynne, supervisor of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-Delaware area of the prohibition enforcement bureau, yesterday notified W. McK. PERCHING, BIKE RIDING GOES ON Four tree sitters and three bicycle riders still were going strong in endurance contests in the East End and Morningside districts today.

The tree sitters, perched in the rear of 631 Sickles street, today had spent 574 hours in the air. The three relay bicycle riders were in their third day.

The tree sitters are Robert Gravely, sitting with his brother James, and their brother Lawrence sitting with a cousin, Samuel King.

The bicycle riders are Danny Ashlander, 13, of 817 Highview street; Albert Slutsky, 13, of 5435 Stanton avenue, and Irwin Pittler, 12, of 1021 Jancey street.

Each boy rides four hours and rests eight. The course is through the Morningside district. They intend to keep going until the end of August.

MT. LEBANON DECISION DUE MONDAY

Parley of Township and Company Adjourns Over Weekend to Allow Study

Negotiations between Mt. Lebanon Township and the Pittsburgh Coal Company for coal pillars to support township buildings and streets, in lieu of condemnation proceedings, are experiencing a lull over the week-end, with an opportunity to both groups to study engineering reports and tables for price fixing.

Meanwhile much of the concern manifest among property owners offered coal pillars at 75 cents a ton with the alternative of the undermining of their surface has been allayed by the expectation that any compromise reached in the negotiations will be extended to private property.

PRICE DISCUSSED

The subject of the price to be paid by the township for coal pillar supports was taken up for the first time during the negotiations at yesterday's conference between township and company representatives.

Cost factors and methods of determining an equitable value of the coal to be acquired were discussed, and the question of seeking a common ground whereby the conference might agree on a price was deferred until Monday morning, until which time the negotiations were adjourned.

G. J. Irwin, township manager; E. B. Goldsmith, township solicitor, and W. F. Vegelr, township engineer, represented the township at the session, with C. E. Lesher, vice president, and John B. Eichenauer, of company counsel, appearing for the company.

PLAN TENTATIVE DECISION

A tentative price will be fixed Monday for submission, with the results of the survey, to the meeting of the township commissioners Monday night.

Action by the commissioners as to the number and location of coal pillars required for support of municipal buildings and streets, including a shoulder on both sides, will settle that problem.

If a favorable price is not offered, the condemnation proceedings, withheld pending the negotiations, will be pressed to obtain an award by the board of viewers or a verdict in court as to what the township shall pay for the coal wanted.

Auto Driver Held On Girl's Charge

Harry DeAngelis, 21, of 1331 Locust street, was being held in the South Side Police Station today, charged with having thrown Margaret Yansura, 17, of 717 Sarah street, out of his automobile at South Ninth and Carson streets early yesterday, police said. The girl, suffering from a fractured hip and bruises, is in the South Side Hospital.

Contest Seeks Prettiest Pittsburgh Baby

Is there a pretty baby in your home?

Is it the prettiest baby in Pittsburgh—boy or girl?

Pittsburgh has a world-wide reputation for beauty in painting, in music and other cultural arts. Isn't it possible Pittsburgh may have the same standing in the matter of pulchritude among children?

The Sun-Telegraph, in conjunction with the Kroger Stores, has started a quest for beautiful children. Parents are invited to make their entries at once. Judging will take place as the outstanding feature of the big annual outing of the Kroger Stores at Kennywood Park, Thursday, August 21.

Several silver cups will be awarded. Medals also will be given. There will be three classes for boys and three for girls—singles and twins.

The infant classes will be for children under a year old. The second class will be for children from 1 to 3 years old and the third for those 3 to 5 years of age. Boys and girls will be judged separately.

Perhaps you have Pittsburgh's prettiest baby in your home. Who knows? Here's an opportunity to find out.

The judges will be selected outside the Sun-Telegraph and Kroger organizations and tentatively include a prominent artist, a leading photographer and possibly a well-known society woman.

Watch the Sun-Telegraph for further details and instructions regarding entries.

2 DRIVERS HELD; DOCTOR AMONG INJURED

Taken to Oil City Hospital; Trio in Crash at Wampum; Observatory Aide Struck

Nine persons were injured in accidents in the Pittsburgh district last night, according to reports received by police today. Three of these were hurt in a collision near Beaver Falls and a fourth near Oil City.

Thomas Kelly, 50, of 2039 Louise street, was taken to the Providence Hospital at Rochester, Pa. His companions, Frank Barnethey, of 2902 Webster avenue, and George A. Smith, of 33 Marion street, were bruised when their car collided with another near Wampum.

The occupants of the other machine were uninjured. Smith, driving the car in which the Pittsburghers were riding, was arrested. A highway patrolman charged him with driving while under the influence of liquor.

PHYSICIAN BADLY HURT

Dr. Jay Silsby, Pittsburgh physician, was removed to the Oil City Hospital last night with broken ribs and body bruises. His car was struck by the machine of a motorist who had lost control when blinded by the sun, late yesterday. Both autos were demolished.

Alighting from a street car near Riverview Park, Bacchaeus Daniel, 55, an attache of the Allegheny Observatory, was injured when hit by an automobile. He was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital with fractures of the right leg and arm. Isadore Horovitz, 40, of 1605 El Paso street, was arrested as the driver.

BOY STRUCK BY AUTO

Eugene Romeo, 6, of 609 Winfield street, was cut and bruised when hit by an automobile at Lincoln avenue and Ladson street, last night. James Chalfant, of 880 Graham boulevard, Wilkinsburg, driver of the car, took the boy to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

When the automobiles of George Appleton, 32, of 1738 Morningside avenue, and Donald Travis, 20, of 5149 Woodworth street, collided at Jancey and Chislett streets last night, Appleton suffered cuts and bruises. He was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

WATCHMAN HURT

A man and a woman were seriously hurt in two accidents at Washington boulevard and the approach to the Allegheny River boulevard, now under construction.

George Gazibano, 45, watchman for John F. Casey Company offices, was struck by a car operated, police say, by E. E. Bowman, 59, of 1854 Middle street, Sharpsburg. Gazibano is in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Mrs. Margaret Martin, 50, of 1509 Boyle street, is in St. Margaret's Hospital with injuries received when the car in which she was riding collided with a truck operated by Edward Dukes, 19, of 3146 Sacramento street. The auto was driven by E. S. Otten, of 103 East Montgomery avenue.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Elinor Glyn does not believe the international congress which is meeting in London this week to study sex problems, can learn much about sex psychology which Hollywood does not already know. What is your opinion of the value of the congress?

Art Lewis.

ART LEWIS, Radio operator, Mt. Washington: Well, I don't agree with Elinor Glyn. There is always more to learn and more to be found out about everything, whether it's sex, psychology or anything else.

Mrs. Smith.

MRS. ANNA SMITH, saleswoman, Duquesne Heights: I think science can always discover more about anything which is investigated scientifically. Facts have been discovered in this manner before.

Harry Buehler.

HARRY BEUHLER, salesman, Dormont: Elinor Glyn's opinion in a matter of this sort would hardly have any value. She looks at life from the side of its appeal to the sensational, and human nature will still be the same in spite of Elinor Glyn.

Margaret Kerns.

MARGARET KERNS, saleswoman, Mt. Washington: People don't know everything yet, and if there are any more facts to be discovered about anything at all, they will be discovered by science.

R. E. Samuelson.

R. E. SAMUELSON, salesman, East End: I think Elinor Glyn is right. Hollywood knows more about sex psychology now than any scientists will ever know. Those things don't have to be discovered by science.

Mrs. Braverman.

MRS. M. BRAVERMAN, clerk, Mt. Lebanon: I agree with Elinor Glyn—no one can discover how to make marriage safer except those people who are concerned. There isn't much more to be discovered in this day anyway.

ARREST 3 GIRLS BEGGING RIDE

Three girls were being held for questioning by motor patrolmen today following their arrest on the Glenwood bridge, after having solicited a ride from patrolman Joseph Palmer, the latter reported.

Questioned at a hearing in Morals Court, the girls Alberta Lambie, 18, of 165 Flowers avenue; Pauline Lowicki, 20, of 488 Sterling street, and Grace Woods, 17, of 11 Alexis street, said they had been riding in a stolen car.

They were walking home when they were arrested, they told Magistrate Thomas Jones. Police said they all admitted having been arrested before for running away from home.

HORSE OWNERS FIGHT BAN

Replies from questionnaires sent to operators of horse-drawn vehicles in Pittsburgh by the Better Traffic Committee indicate, according to W. J. Moore, chairman of the trucking and deliveries section, that owners of horses believe elimination of parking, rather than banning horses from the downtown section, should be the first step toward lessening congestion.

Comments on the questionnaires severely criticized downtown parking. Reasons advanced were that parking increases delivery costs, causes continuous traffic jams at peak hours on narrow streets and makes traffic law enforcement difficult.

Operators of horse-drawn vehicles, while they are willing to cooperate in not using the downtown district during congested periods, can see little reason for a total banning of their vehicles from the streets, Moore stated.

Ride With Officer Traps Alleged Thief

A chicken thief who uses suit cases to cart away his loot, and who had the temerity to ask a ride from a policeman, was under arrest at West End Station today. He gave his name as John Hancock, 45, of 514 Pettis street. Questioned by Patrolman Carl Johnson after the officer had consented to let him ride in his auto in Banksville road, he admitted the suit cases contained chickens he had stolen from the coop of C. W. Frush, 2108 Potomac avenue, police said.

Nursery Employe Sent Up for Theft

James Bradley, of 622 Cedar avenue, handy man at the Allegheny Day Nursery, 3035 Perrysville avenue, was sentenced to 60 days in the workhouse today in North Side Police Court. Mrs. Jessie B. Coventry, of the nursery, appeared against the man in connection with thefts from the institution.

Pajamas Replace 'Boiled Shirts' At Dance

Pajamas, instead of spiketail coats and armor-plate shirts, threaten to become correct "form" for social affairs. Blame it on the heat and Johnny Jones. Johnny is a "dance promoter."

For one of his dances in Palm Garden next week patrons will not only be permitted, but are urged, to wear pajamas.

The scheme, according to our hoofing reporter, has its advantages. When the "dogs," as he laughingly calls feet, are dead from stepping, undressing is a task when the weary dancer gets home. With the new way, the terpsichorite is all ready for bed just by slipping off the shoes.

2 BOYS SEEKING ADVENTURE

Two adventure-hungry high school youths—William Hertel, of 25 Clifton boulevard, Carrick, and Ralph Santmyer, of Pricedale, Pa., both 17—were reported missing to police today.

The Santmyer youth disappeared Wednesday night while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Santmyer, were at church. He is believed to have been joined the same night by Hertel.

According to L. B. Santmyer, 11 Fairhope street, Carrick, brother of Ralph, letters revealed a plan to embark on an adventure that was to include a trip to Mexico.

TRAINS BRUSH, CREW ESCAPES

An engineer and fireman were forced to jump to safety and several persons had narrow escapes from being scalded by steam when a freight train containing 52 cars of iron ore running on a down grade sideswiped another freight of the Union Railroad at the Newtown crossing, Turtle Creek, last night.

Frank Huhn, the engineer, and William Roberts, the fireman, escaped injury, according to a police report. Huhn's locomotive and tender were derailed and two cars of the other freight overturned.

Nearby houses were showered with steam and hot water when safety valves of the derailed engine broke. The accident occurred, police said, as the freight train moved out of the siding at the copper mill of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The tracks were cleared by a wrecking crew several hours later.

ELOPERS HELD, HINT BIGAMY

Paul D. O'Donnell, 27, and his bride of a week, Margaret, 22, were arrested at their home, 5800 Walnut street, on suspicious person charges today on complaint of the young woman's father, Thomas O'Neil, of Travella boulevard.

O'Neil told police, they say, that his daughter and O'Donnell eloped to Wellsburg, W. Va., Wednesday last week, while he has a wife and child in Seattle.

O'Donnell is said to have admitted to police that he has a wife and child, but contended that he was divorced. He was unable to show divorce papers, police said.

The couple will be given a hearing in Morals Court tomorrow.

POOR CHILDREN MAY SWIM FREE

A free swimming pool for use of underprivileged children will be inaugurated at the Salvation Army Headquarters, 425 Boulevard of the Allies, tomorrow morning, Lieut. Col. Charles B. Campbell, divisional commander, announced.

The pool is 20x60 feet and will accommodate 90 swimmers.

Children will be entitled to use the pool, free of charge, every Saturday from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., boys being admitted form 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and girls from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Attempts to establish the identity of a mysterious Anne, described as "stout, buxom, plump and jolly," enlivened the hearing today before the United States commissioner in the case of the tea room in North Craig street, near Fifth avenue, raided by prohibition agents.

Cross-examination of two agents, who testified they were served whisky and ginger ale, failed to rid "Anne" of her mythical status. Her sister hostess, Irene Pallo, came under the spotlight as the one who on two occasions had served liquor, being held on a $2,000 bond for court. Agnes Berg, another defendant, was discharged.

WANTS CHILD, FILES WRIT

Seeking custody of her 7-year-old daughter Margaret, Mrs. Ethel Toogood, 2903 Shadeland avenue, has filed habeas corpus proceedings in Common Pleas Court against her husband, Rex E. Toogood, 119 Cedar avenue, Bellevue. The matter will be heard August 15.

Mrs. Toogood sued her husband for divorce on grounds of cruelty on November 2, 1928, just a week before she says he took the child from her and has since refused to allow it to visit her. The couple were married in 1927 and separated in 1923.

Admits Possession Of Rum, Fined $150

A fine of $150 was imposed on Ray R. Powers, of Corry, Pa., when he pleaded guilty before Judge Robert M. Gibson in United States District Court to a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor. Powers was steward of a club which was raided by prohibition agents and it was alleged that liquor was stored in the place.

PLAN CAMPAIGN TO CURB DIN IN DISTRICT

Drive Spurred When Reports Of New York's Success Are Scanned by Chamber

A study toward elimination of unnecessary noises in Pittsburgh has been undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce, Frederick G. Marshall, manager of the governmental division of the Chamber, announced today. He said the Chamber had received a report from the anti-noise committee in New York, composed of psychologists, neurologists and other specialists in mental and physical ills, which showed that considerable progress had been made in that city toward noise abatement.

It is likely, Marshall said, that the study of the Chamber will be made jointly by such inter-organization bodies as the municipal affairs committee, Walter Rosenbaum, chairman; public health committee, J. B. Nesbit, chairman, and the medical council, Dr. R. R. Jones, chairman, as no special noise abatement committee has been appointed.

EXPECT 45,000 AT PICNIC

At least 45,000 persons are expected to attend the forty-fourth annual picnic of the Westinghouse Manufacturing and Electric Company at Kennywood Park tomorrow. Beginning at 9 a. m. tickets will be distributed to children, each receiving eight amusement and two refreshment coupons.

The East Pittsburgh works will have the largest group of picnickers at the outings. Trafford City, Linhart, Homewood, Sharon and the Nuttall works, as well as the Pittsburgh service, also will be represented.

Frank Law is general chairman and J. P. Moran vice chairman. Members of the general committee are Kathryn Lacey, William Gettens, Glen Hoffman, Luke Lukock, G. H. Shotwell, N. A. Schafer, Thomas Kerin, W. W. Rodgers, T. J. Vastine, Edward McFarland, C. B. Montgomery, George Bush, Alfred Bartletti, Emil Strittmatter, J. P. McGivern and G. J. Webb. Vice chairmen are H. B. Bach, A. B. Miller and C. F. Stewart.

NURSES' BOAT RIDE TUESDAY

The third annual boat ride sponsored by the Sixth District of Graduate Nurses' Association of Pennsylvania will be held next Tuesday evening, when the steamer Washington, with nearly 2,000 graduate nurses and their friends, will embark from the foot of Market street on a cruise down the Ohio River.

The decks of the boat will be the scenes of card playing and dancing, and a large number of prizes have been selected for winners.

Fight Annexation In West Homestead

Citizens of West Homestead opposed to annexation to Pittsburgh are canvassing the borough for signatures to a petition voicing objection to the movement. Those sponsoring the petition said they were favorable to annexation only under the metropolitan plan.

3 FIRMS JOIN IN DELIVERIES

Three Pittsburgh industries of different types have instituted a joint service common to the three—distribution.

Pooling their equipment and their ideas, officials of Shipley-Massingham Company, drug wholesalers; Lutz-Schramm Company, manufacturers of pickles and preserves, and the S. W. Schuster Company, wholesale grocers, have formed the Service Deliveries, Inc. A manager has been appointed, it was learned today, and the new delivery corporation has function for more than a week.

All deliveries of the three concerns and their shipping problems will be under the direction of this organization, Sherman Massingham, Jr., explained. He said:

"It's not exactly new, because we tried it several years ago and it didn't work too well. But we think it will mean economy and it may be successful this time. We are hopeful. We are using it in local deliveries—those in our own territory. It is planned to extend the service when and if it proves to be the right thing. It will take some time to work out, perhaps a month or more, before we are certain."

SUICIDE'S BODY IDENTIFIED

The body of the young man who ended his life Tuesday by jumping from the South Twenty-second street bridge into the Monongahela River, was identified at the county morgue last night as that of Walter Chick, 25, of 221 Chesterfield road.

The victim's wife, Mrs. Mary Chick, who made the identification, told deputy coroners her husband suffered dizzy spells. Chick left his home Monday,

ELECTION BODY ASSAILED

Attorneys Ralph H. Frank and Edward O. Spotts today added their opinion to the controversy over merits of the Allegheny County Elections Association, which was characterized as "organization-controlled" by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern in Washington this week.

Frank and Spotts were counsel for McGovern when he and others were instrumental in the 1927 election fraud prosecutions.

McGovern's appraisal of the elections association is "very conservative" in the view of Frank and Spotts. The 1927 fraud cases were brought before the elections association was thought of, they asserted.

After the opening of 50 ballot boxes had resulted in indictment of more than 200 election officers, the association did appoint an investigator, but he was discredited and later discharged, according to the two attorneys. The association's participation in subsequent elections has been "of the most perfunctory character," they say. The objection to this body is "that there is not enough activity to have either a partisan or non-partisan character," their statement sets forth.

GIRL ARRESTED AS RED

Arrested this morning while she is said to have been passing Communist literature to employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in East Pittsburgh, Sylvia Reese, 21, of 244 Dinwiddie street, is being held in the East Pittsburgh Police Station. She is scheduled for a hearing tonight.

Lieut. David Bennett, who arrested the young woman, said she was passing out announcements of a Communist rally scheduled for today in Turtle Creek. The young woman is charged with violating a borough ordinance.

PARTY BREAKS UP IN ROW

Because W. H. Sandbagen, 45, of 41 Steuben street, was not permitted to make merry with guests attending a party in the house where he roomed, he, according to police, crashed a large window with a club. Leroy Kretzer, 20, son of the landlady, was cut by flying glass, police say.

Lieut. Harry Hatters, of the West End Station, questioned Mrs. Cassie Kretzer, the landlady after Sandbagen was found in West Main street suffering from a broken right arm and cuts on the head. He told police a boy had pushed him off the pavement into the street. He was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

PRIESTS HELD SAFE IN CHINA

A group of Pittsburgh priests in China for whom much concern has been felt here owing to revolutionary outbreaks in Southern section of that country were believed safe today after it was learned they were located about 500 miles from the scene of the outbreaks.

The group is headed by the Rev. Arthur Benson, of Scout street, Carrick. Others in the party are the Rev. Paul Ubinger, of Locust street, Carrick; the Rev. Dominick Langenbacher, of Kirk avenue, Carrick, and the Rev. Basil Baur, who studied at St. Paul's monastery here.

Springdale Seeks Fire Engine Fund

Members of the Springdale Volunteer Fire Department today were canvassing the borough for financial support of the movement to purchase a new motorized fire truck. The drive was started last night, firemen said.

MISSING GIRL, YOUTH SOUGHT

A search was started today by police and city detectives for Miss Catherine Albright, 17, who disappeared yesterday from her home at 416 Sherman avenue, North Side. The girl's parents said she disappeared shortly after noon, taking with her all her clothing.

A year ago several youths with whom the girl was acquainted were arrested for automobile thefts. Morris Mills, 17, one of the youths, was sentenced to Morganza. Six weeks ago he escaped from the training school and recently was seen with the girl, police say, believing they have run away together.

BURGLARY PLAN SPOILED BY NAP

An alleged burglar who fell asleep on the lawn of the home of John Bevington, 1011 Hamilton avenue, while waiting an opportunity to rob the house, police say, was in the county jail today awaiting grand jury action on a robbery charge.

The man, giving the name of Louis Faust, told Bevington, who captured him after a chase of several blocks, that he lay down on the lawn to wait until everything was quiet in the neighborhood.

He didn't awake until Bevington was eating breakfast, when he climbed into a window, according to his statement to police, and hid in a dark corner, where Bevington discovered him.

When Bevington entered the room, the man jumped from a window and fled after flourishing a revolver.

Police said he was responsible for two robberies in Avalon.

SIFT MYSTERY IN SHOOTING

County detectives today were trying to learn how John Blasco, 24, of Creighton, had been shot last midnight on Bakerstown road, near Pitcairn Heights.

The officers were investigating a report that a farmer shot at Blasco under the mistaken impression that he was a trespasser.

Blasco was in Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum, recovering from the bullet wound in the side.

OBITUARY

Grounds for Divorce

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do You Believe 'Mother Always Knows Best?'

Do you believe that her age and experience gives her inside dope on human nature that a youngster lacks? And when it comes to marriage, is Mother better qualified to do the picking than son or daughter?

Since the world began we've been told that she does and is. And Walter in common with many another dutiful son believed it. But now he has his doubts. In fact Walter's laying the blame for his whole blasted life on the fact that he trusted mamma's judgment instead of his own. And what happened? Plenty!

"Dear Sally:

"I've been reading your advice about not hanging onto Mother's skirts, and I want to tell my story. Maybe it may help some other fellow or girl out of the jam I'm in.

"What you say is true. I wish I hadn't been so ready to take my mother's advice. If I hadn't, I would have been a happy man today instead of a miserable, discouraged one. For two years I went with Betty and I was crazy about her. But my mother kept nagging me about it and saying that Betty was no girl for a poor working man as all she though of was dolling herself up and manicuring her nails.

WEDS MOTHER'S CHOICE

"So, even though I loved her, and she was a good girl and always spotless and clean and sweet, I gave her up and married the girl my mother picked for me. When I quit going with Betty my brother said: 'You darned fool! If I can win her, I'm going to do it!' Well, he did. My mother was wild, but I wish you could see them today. Two beautiful boys, always kept spotless. Always looked after and taken care of. A home that is spotless, too. And Betty herself spotless. And money saved too. A great little wife she is!

"And you ought to see the girl I married. Slap that I was! My mother thought she knew a lot! But the wife she picked for me is lazy and careless and our poor little baby is filthy. I have a beautiful home, but it is always covered with a couple of weeks' dust and grime, for Mary always said: 'I'm not killing myself in my own home, like I had to for my mother,' and she doesn't.

"Betty does her own laundry, and wouldn't think of using anything that isn't ironed. But Mary sends ours out, and gets the flat stuff ironed out at the laundry, and she is so lazy that she'll put on clothes full of wrinkles, rather than do a little work to make herself look human. My brother has very little to do on, but the blouses his boys wear to school are always clean, even if Betty has to wash them at night and iron them the next morning for them to put on. And she herself is the same spotless Betty that I once knew and didn't have brains to hang onto.

TERRIBLE WRONG

"After reading this you can very well see why I feel that my mother did me a terrible wrong.

"If I had only done as Frank did, insisted on picking my own wife, how different things would be with me. For I still love Betty, and the more I see of Mary's sloppy, lazy ways, the more that love grows. And when Junior and Sonny come to see me, I love them, too, just as though they were my own. But it's too late now for me to cry over spilt milk. The only thing I can do is to say to other young people—Don't let someone else run you like I did. Stand up for yourself.

"WALTER V."

I'm sorry, brother. And I don't blame you for feeling that you've been handed a bum deal! It's a deal most of us get when we let anyone else, be it a mother, a father, or just a friend, do our thinking for us.

For, after all, it's your fault, not mother's, that you are where you are today. It's not only our right—it's our duty to think for ourselves in the Big Moves of life. That's why we were born men and not monkeys. And if we pass up that duty, then we commit the greatest crime we can against ourselves. And we pay—terribly.

You're paying now—but you won't improve matters by blaming your mother and envying your brother. You can't mend a mistake by making it chronic. If you're in a mess—and you certainly seem to be—stop being mad and start getting busy.

Your wife's laziness is probably due quite as much to your bad management as to your mother's bad judgment. Perhaps if you'll stop grouching around and show a little real interest in and affection for your wife, she may take some interest herself in her job. For after all, brother, aren't you lying down on the job quite as much as Mary? Suppose you take an hour off from your Big Self Pity act and give yourself the once over. Mary may be a flop as a housekeeper, but just how much are you contributing toward domestic harmony?

Fay King Shows How Diamonds, Ermine Spells Tears—Not for Wearer

By FAY KING

There are times when young and pretty girls who work hard for small salaries wonder if, after all, it wouldn't be better to turn vamp and get while the getting is good.

They see such girls smiling and gay, wearing diamonds and ermine.

But it takes a lack of much more than mere morals to be a successful vamp.

To laugh at criticism of her reputation is one thing. But can she also laugh at little children who call for the father who has turned from them?

Can she also laugh at the heartache a wife endures?

Can she gaze laughingly at her sparkling jewels without seeing a trace of the tears shed by those who trusted her swindling playboy with their life's savings?

Few can!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Mollifies Harry's Jealous Tantrum

I answered Harry Underwood's question promptly, ignoring Ducky's seemingly heartless reference to Robert Savarin. I knew that my temperamental husband was not nearly as callous as he appeared, but that, as usual, he had allowed his loyalty to his friend and his strong sympathy for him to run away with his sense of justice. There was no more sense in my feeling resentment at his attitude than there would have been for my getting angry at Junior for a similar exhibition. In the matter of his temper my small boy's father is no older sometimes than his son.

"Yes, Harry," I said. "Lil naturally is quite upset—not so much over the receipt of the box." I amended hastily, as I saw his face darken—"as over your possible reaction to it. She was going to send for you, but I persuaded her to let me speak to you first."

"Always the little First Aid Packet," Ducky gibed, and I knew from his tone that his vanity must have been stung by my refusal to recognize his slurring reference to Robert Savarin. "Gauze, cotton, iodine and sticking plaster, all ready. Well! there's one thing certain, you won't need me at this confab. I'll go down and keep Henry from trailing those rabbits all through the house."

"Oh! do—and hurry," I adjured him, as if the mention of his nephew's possible action had brought dire apprehensions to my mind. "Take the car! You'll be able to catch them before they get to the house. You know what your mother will say if they bring those dead animals in."

"I know it's a crime they didn't send for you at the beginning of the war," my husband retorted with a grin as he moved toward the car. "They'd have saved at least three years of fighting. Pin a medal on her for me, Harry."

He jumped into the car, and in another two seconds was careening down the hill. Harry Underwood looked after him for a long minute, and I guessed that he was armoring himself to meet whatever message I had brought him. When he finally turned back to me, there was a smile upon his lips, but it was an infinitely sadder thing than actual tears would have been in his sombre eyes.

"Well! what's the verdict, Lady Fair?" he asked. "Has Lil realized that her heart, after all, is in the highlands, not the lowlands?"

"You ought to be ashamed of that speech," I lashed out at him savagely, for I knew no halfway measures would serve. "But because I understand a little of what you're undergoing, I'm going to tell you the truth and expect you to believe me. There is just one man in Lillian's life now, and that is you. No one, no one in all the world—except Marion—comes anywhere near your place in her heart. Can you not be satisfied with that assurance, and let her send a charitable thought to a man who loved her as well as you did, but who lost her and who is dying?"

He took a step towards me, put his hands upon my shoulders, gripping them tightly and looking down steadily into my eyes.

"You couldn't lie," he said, tenderly, "but you might be mistaken. Is—what you have said—your own impression—or did Lil—"

"Lillian told me that herself not fifteen minutes ago, and she was speaking the truth," I answered.

"Then," he said, "that is all that matters. What—is the rest of the message?"

"It is that you read this letter which came with the portrait of Marion," I said, holding it out to him.

He put out his hand in decisive protest.

"No!" he said. "That is something I cannot do. Poor devil! That certainly wouldn't be cricket. I'm surprised at Lil."

"She did not want to have any secrets from you," I said lamely, knowing very well what my friend's subconscious purpose had been in sending her husband the letter.

"Yes," he drawled, "and there probably was something special in the letter she wanted me to see. Come, Lady Fair, Lil may or may not have secrets from me, but there's one thing sure, she has none from you. Tell me what it is she wants."

"I am not sure she knows herself," I said mendaciously. "But I know what she ought to do, and you will agree with me, I know, when I tell you the circumstances."

I drew a long breath and plunged into rapid speech.

"You love her royally now, Harry," I said, for I meant to mince no words in what I had to tell him, "but you know that you did not love her, really, years ago when I first knew you."

"I know that," he acknowledged. "Neither did she love me—that way."

"Granted," I retorted. "But after that chapter in your life happily forever closed, there were years when you appeared to care nothing for her."

He looked at me disconcertingly.

"You know very well the reason for that," he said significantly.

Household Hints

Fruit should always be pared with a silver knife.

Never buy anything that you do not need just because it is cheap. The fact you do not need it takes it out of the "bargain" class immediately.

When making jam or preserves, first rub the bottom of the preserving kettle with a little butter. It will greatly prevent burning and sticking.

A dirty clothesline can be wrapped around the washboard and thoroughly scrubbed with a brush and hot soapsuds. Rinse well and it will be as good as new.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Daughters of Eve

Feminists may come and feminists may go, girls may pose as hard-boiled and independent and cynical; women may run motor cars and factories and governments.

But still, every woman wants to be somebody's "LITTLE GIRL."

No matter whether she weighs 90 pounds or a hundred-and-ninety pounds, she loves to feel that man thinks of her tenderly and fondly as a "cute, helpless, little thing," or as the "dear little woman."

It always thrills a woman to be "protected," even when there is nothing but a mosquito or a sand-fly to protect her from. It always delights her heart to be "taken care of," even when she could take care of herself with one blow of her strong, right arm!

Every woman longs to be "babied" when she is feeling tired or blue or sorry for herself. And any sheik who happens to come along and "baby" her in that moment of weakness, stands out in her imagination, forever afterward, as the world's one "Great Lover."

Two hundred pounds of avoirdupois and six feet of height never robbed any woman of her desire to be "cuddled" and called tender nicknames and foolish pet names, by some big brave man of five-feet-four inches. And the brilliant brain of Katherine the Great never cured her of her fondness for being called "Little Darling."

The strongest, wisest, most capable woman who ever ran a shop, a business office or a political campaign has her secret moments when she wants to lay her head on somebody's shoulder and "cry it all out" and be "there, there, now-ed," and comforted with soothing baby-talk.

Life is awfully hard on a successful, efficient woman, who can earn her own living, check her own trunks, and do things for herself.

For as long as men suspect that a woman CAN take care of herself, they will let her DO it. Thus the woman with the big job, the big income, the strong hands and the brave smile never gets any coddling or petting or waiting on. And she bitterly MISSES them!

* * *

What's the use of being the world's richest woman real estate operator, the world's most famous woman doctor or lawyer, the world's brightest woman writer, if you are NOBODY'S "Little Girl?"

You may win all the laurels and get all the bouquets, but if you miss all the orange-blossoms, and all the rosemary and for-get-me-nots, you are missing all of life's sweetness.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Oral Hygiene Has Helped Many

"Oral hygiene" is a term used to describe the care of the teeth, tongue, gums and tissues of the mouth.

DR. COPELAND

The increase in knowledge of this branch of public health is remarkable. It will do as much to prevent disease and promote health of the human race as almost any other health movement.

It is not so many years ago that thousands of persons consulted the dentist only when there was toothache, or a broken tooth to repair. Even today much ignorance exists as to the effect unhealthy conditions in the mouth may have upon the general health.

There are many causes for this undesirable state of affairs, but neglect of the teeth is the most usual one. Decayed teeth, diseased tonsils, abscesses in the mouth may cause rheumatism, a heart condition, anemia and many other disturbances. It is not unreasonable to say that even ulcer of the stomach may be the result of trouble which had its start in a neglected mouth.

The first thing to do to prevent trouble from the mouth is to use the toothbrush often. Select a brush with bristles stiff enough to clean between the teeth, but not harsh enough to bruise the gums. Care must be exercised not to injure the gums. Brush the teeth from the gums to the cutting edge, not across the teeth.

There are many good tooth pastes and powders on the market. Be sure to select one which does not leave a deposit on the teeth. Some dentists think a powder is preferable, especially if there is a stain or deposit on the teeth.

Consult your dentist about every six months. He will give you thorough examination and repair.

Much assistance has been given in the last few years through the prophylactic work being done in the schools by young women who are especially trained. They remove tartar, clean and polish the teeth. They also instruct the children in the care of the mouth, as well as in general hygiene.

Many backward children have been given equality with normal children by the correction of mouth defects. There cannot be clear thinking if the body is being poisoned.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Raquel read. "It is as I thought! By staying there and joining in the noise, Farrell has escaped suspicion."

Two weeks. In two weeks, less than 14 days now, he would be on his way here, to her.

"I go directly to the new mine, which promises a richer yield—"

The new mine. She was the new mine. The adventure they had planned together, gypsying from place to place, living from day to day. That was the richer yield she promised. To a man she could scarcely visualize, the tone of whose voice she could not even remember. A man named Jack Farrell.

"But why," Raquel asked herself—she was alone so much that unconsciously she had formed the habit of addressing herself—"why does he write in this mysterious way? Why does the letter come from El Paso? And who L. E. J. White?"

"I've heard about a White—somewhere. Yes. From Jack Farrell. There was a White with him mining—somewhere in Chihuahua, wasn't it? White has been in Hermosa. He's gone on to El Paso. Farrell sent this letter with him to be mailed in El Paso. And Farrell made it sound like a letter about the mines, so if White lost it or it fell into outside hands, no one would be the wiser."

But her name on the envelope:

"Raquita Rojos,
Hotel Brixton,
West Forty-ninth St.,
New York City."

The writing was different from that of the letter. Of course. White did not address the letter until he reached El Paso. To doubly insure its not being intercepted.

"Two more weeks of heaven—it is heaven in spite of the Bennies with black fuzz on their hands and the Ellies with pink fuzz on their faces—then what?" Raquel tossed the letter away from her as if it had been a living, scorching thing.

The striped silver box slid from the edge of the bed, where she had placed it, to the floor. She picked it up, fingered curiously the silver ribbon that garnished it. Then, in a rush to know what it held for her, she pulled off the lid.

"Gardenias!" she exclaimed, lifting the creamy, waxen blossoms from their bed of damp leaves. A dozen of them. Big ones, and beauties. And here's a note, snuggled in them, too.

She held the flowers from her, drank in their creamy perfection. She held them close to her, inhaling their delicious fragrance. They were the first real gift of flowers she had ever received.

Who had made this thrilling gift? The note. It would tell. Her hands trembled with delight of fingering the unknown. "To the Princess Raquel del Manzanilla."

"Your Highness: Flowers and your reward for most excellent service. The amount represents your commission on the models sold to Mme. Bosart through your exhibition. I have allowed you a small commission as a beginner. As an experienced model it would be more. If you still wish to continue your work in Paris, be prepared to leave within two weeks. I salute you.

"ALPHONSE."

A white slip of paper fluttered into Raquel's lap. She picked it up. It was a check for two hundred dollars.

Two hundred dollars! Riches. More money than she had ever dreamed of earning. She could earn this. And more. Just by being beautiful. By wooing Beauty. By going to Paris.

Two weeks? A man named Jack Farrell was coming for her in two weeks. Within two weeks. That meant less than two weeks. She might be gone, on her way to Paris when Jack Farrell arrived. Oh, she must be.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

You can "roll them hips away," Lie on the floor on one side, stretch one leg straight out from the hip, roll over and stretch straight out on the other side. Takes humps off.

Sachet bags attached to coat and gown hangers are a delightful luxury. Two thickness of cheesecloth are best, though these practical containers don't look as pretty as silk. But they let the sweet odors seep out.

The thick, leathery skin may not be a prize winner, but it has good qualities. Its texture, having more tone, never wrinkles as quickly as the thin, delicate epidermis. That is why brunettes keep more youthful than blondes, those taffy-heads whose complexions may be as pinky-sweet as the petals of a bride rose, but which have no lasting qualities.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Sincere Notes of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—In acknowledging wedding presents is it not better to use correspondence cards instead of the regular printed forms sold in stationery shops?

2—In acknowledging gifts should mention be made of the particular gift received?

F.

1—It is terrible form—no form at all—to use the ready-made printed cards for acknowledgeing wedding presents. I can think of nothing that is such a social insult as having a printed card sent to one in response to the kind thoughtfulness that one tries to use when buying a wedding present. Anyone who sends such a card should hang her head in shame. Such a lack of fine feeling is deplorable.

And I think too that you should not "cramp" your style by using a correspondence card, and you will limit what you have to say if you use these cards. Correspondence cards are for the slightest notes, and an acknowledgment of a wedding gift should be more than a slight note. It should be articulate—an appreciation of kindness, friendliness, and generosity. And it should chat about the gift. So you had best have on hand a generous supply of your most stylish letter paper, and use this for your notes. Make your notes proud that they come from you!

2—Yes. It is socially gauche to write "your gift" and distinctly gives the impression that there is a possibility that you have forgotten which gift it is. By all means mention the gift, interpret its beauty, its usefulness, or both, where you are going to place it, its appropriateness for your home, and similar items that will make the sender glad that he or she sent that particular thing.

After a Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I am at a dance and a man asks me to dance with him, and when we are through dancing he thanks me for the dance, is it proper to say anything at all? What should be said? E. T.

Yes, say something that shows your pleasure in the dance, something short and gracious, for there is time for one statement: "The dance was delightful, Bob," or "I enjoyed the dance so much, Bob. It was delightful."

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

I'd like to shake one young lady from Seattle, until her eyes opened wide and stayed that way. She writes that she wants only one thing in life, and that is to marry a man with whom she has been quarreling constantly ever since she fell in love with him. He knows they couldn't get along any better married and living under one roof, and he says so frankly. But no, she wants him.

She tells him so. She can't see why, if he loves her as he says he does, he won't marry her. She thinks if they married they wouldn't quarrel.

That's very silly reasoning. You'd hardly call it reasoning at all. After marriage you will be the same people with the same dispositions, the same habits, the same ideas. Marriage doesn't purge you of all faults and make you into perfect people. It only puts you in a more trying position where it is much more difficult to act the way you want to act, and much easier to be impatient and fault finding. The first year of marriage is particularly difficult. There are so many little things that you didn't figure on. You didn't know that men threw the bath towels around instead of folding them up neatly and hanging them up the way you want them. You didn't know that they forget and put their cigarets and cigars where they shouldn't, and often drop ashes on the new Oriental rugs. And, by the way, that doesn't hurt a rug at all, unless, they are live ashes. It merely chases out moths.

The girl says this man loves another girl, too, and he doesn't quarrel with her. Still she wants to marry him. Any girl who insists that she could get along with a man and begs him to marry her, is not hitting on all cylinders. She's merely looking ahead into a storm and praying that the lightning will strike her.

Don't go running after someone who tells you he won't marry you. Where is your self respect? You'd be the proverbial doormat once a man like that consented to marry you. Fancy consenting him to marry you. Wait for the man who asks you, then begs you, and then you make him wait. When he gets you he will have some appreciation of his wife. The man has told you he has another girl, and he has already walked all over you with spiked shoes; isn't that enough? There is a right man for every girl if you will only wait for him and don't be a fool over this goof.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, August 9

The widespread operations for this day point to great enterprise and initiative, with change, probably travel and fresh opportunities. While the general trend of events is favorable for new projects to be launched under this high stimulus, yet there are likely to be agitations, vexations, difficulties and probably demotion or failure to satisfy or agree with employers or superiors. The menaces are not, however, of first magnitude and may be overcome by decisiveness and keeping the mental outlook wholesome and the conduct amiable.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a particularly lively and enterprising year, with change and probably travel, including a rather undesirable experience in employment or with those in authority. The vexations, difficulties and personal inharmonies may, however, be overcome by amiability and sweetness of temper, guarding the mind against turmoil and agitation.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped with resourcefulness, initiative and courage, but its personal and mental tendencies may be the means of negativing its best efforts. It should guard against caustic and sarcastic speech and aggressiveness.

SECOND TERM RARE FOR CARD CHIEFS

IN BEING APPOINTED to succeed himself as manager of the St. Louis National League club for 1931, a step just announced officially by President Sam Breadon, Gabby Street would appear to have established a record of some kind, as none of the five other skippers employed by the Crdinal owners in the last six years started two consecutive seasons on the same job. The Redbirds have broken all modern major league records for number of pilots used during that period, and at the beginning of no two races has the same man been found in the driver's seat.

Gabby Street

Branch Rickey was leading the outfit when the campaign of 1925 was launched, but gave way on Memorial Day to Rogers Hornsby, and the latter was directing the team when the 1926 season opened. Bob O'Farrell supplanted Hornsby in 1927, and Bill McKechnie took O'Farrell's place in 1928. In 1929, Billy Southworth relieved McKechnie, but before the season ended McKechnie was reappointed, only to resign and open the way for Street to take up the reins in 1930.

THAT RECORD MADE a recent report of a plan to remove Street at the end of the present season sound plausible, but President Breadon says nothing of the sort ever was considered. He calls Street the best manager the Cards ever had, and declares his failure to make a better showing has been due wholly to an unusual run of hard luck and adverse circumstances over which Gabby had no control.

Breadon says he has been a close observer all year but can't call an instance in which Street made a managerial mistake. Bad breaks can't be charged against the manager, he points out, and reappointing Gabby for next year he repeats that he never had any intention of removing him or putting a new man on the job for 1931, regardless of where the club might finish in this year's pennant chase.

PERHAPS it is because the Cards seemingly are doomed to finish as low as fourth or fifth this year that Street is being retained. It's only when a manager wins a pennant that his head is in danger in St. Louis. Hornsby was dropped after winning the pennant and the world championship in 1926, and McKechnie was let go after finishing first in 1928.

One reason for the early announcement of Street's reappointment may have been that Breadon wanted to silence a rumor that Gabby was to be succeeded by Frankie Frisch.

Frankie Frisch

BREADON SAYS HE has no doubt that Frisch would make a good general, but he is opposed to having the Cards led by playing skippers, and says he is not going to ruin any more star players by appointing them to managerial roles. Breadon recalls that the only season in which Hornsby ever slumped as a player was the one during which he managed the Cards. O'Farrell was another who fell off in his work while carrying the burden of the leadership, and the Redbird owner declares he never considered taking any such chances with Frisch.*

AS FAR AS yesterday's game alone was concerned, it was a smart though unusual move that Wilbert Robinson made in lifting Dazzy Vance for a pinch-hitter at the start of the ninth inning while the score was tied. His plan was to make a play for a run or two and the lead, and then to hold the Bucs safe in their half of the round by sending his star southpaw, Watson Clark, to the mound, as the Pirates had three left-hand batters coming up in the Waner brothers and Grantham.

It worked out just as Robbie had figured, and his generalship won the game, but it's a question how long he will be able to keep up successfully his system of pressing two or more flingers into service almost daily. Hardly has a Brooklyn pitcher been nicked for a couple of hits before the portly pilot yanks him and sends in a fresh slabman. He throws everything into winning the game of the day, leaving tomorrow to take care of itself.

ROBBIE HAS A string of big, husky pitchers who can stand a lot of work if it is properly distributed, but there may be such a possibility as overstraining them or causing them to become stale, not by using them too long but too often.

Wilbert Robinson

The main reason why the Phillies never have a good pitching staff is that the increased hitting in the small home park makes it hard for a pitcher to last more than a few innings.

THIS FORCES THE Quaker manager to use up from two to four chuckers in a game almost as a regular thing. Young hurlers can't develop there and the older ones can't remain effective because they are not given the right amount of rest between games. They are rushed back to work too quickly and eventually lose their edge. Robbie may be running the same risk of breaking down his staff by working the hurlers too frequently. Pitching a few innings four times a week takes more toll than pitching two full games in the same period.*

WHILE THEY MAY not be making any boasts openly, the Robins privately are said to be manifesting not the slightest doubt of their ability to hold first place right up to the finish and capture the National League pennant. Some of them are reported even to have asked whether arrangements could be made to have their anticipated portion of the world series played at the Yankee Stadium on account of the limited capacity of Ebbets Field.

Like other modern professional athletes, the Dodgers are giving their first thoughts to how much they will be able to get out of the series rather than to what chance they will have of winning it. But they're not even sure of getting into it yet. More than one pennant has been lost after similar cock-sureness in August on the part of the leaders.

ANOTHER OF PITTSBURGH'S most popular boxers of earlier days passed in the death of William J. (Skipper) Manning, 45, at his home in Lawrenceville.

Around a quarter of a century ago, Manning was one of the local boxing headliners and was a favorite performer at many shows throughout this district. He had much to do with bringing the late Harry Greb into the game and was the first trainer of Greb before the latter went under the management of Jimmy Mason.

JACKIE (KID) BERG stands out as the logical challenger for the world lightweight championship against whom Al Singer will have to defend the title that he won from Sammy Mandell last month, and the latest evidence of class produced by Berg in gaining the decision over Kid Chocolate last night indicates that Singer will have plenty of trouble keeping his crown from slipping away. As is always the case when a fight is close—and last night's number was fully up to expectations as an exhibition of whirlwind action and even*

GIANTS MUST ADD HURLERS

VERDICT BOOED AFTER HECTIC BATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A battered little bundle of ebony fighting machinery sat huddled in his corner at the Polo Grounds last night after 10 of the most furious rounds of slam-bang boxing New York has witnessed in many a moon. As Bellerin' Joe Humphries walked toward his white official slips in hand, Kid Chocolate leapt up in anticipation of being proclaimed the winner, only to stumble back and fall into a sobbing heap in his corner as Humphries suddenly checked himself, turned and lifted the hand of Jack (Kid) Berg in token of triumph.

Jack (Kid) Berg

In those few dramatic moments, pulse-stirring to a crowd of 25,000 that had been thrilled by a sensational battle of little fellows, the winning streak that Kid Chocolate appeared to have kept intact was brought to a sudden end, snapped after two years of unbroken victory by the lean little English whirlwind from White Chapel.

BATTLE CLOSE

Entirely on the strength of his tireless aggressiveness, Berg won by a two to one vote of the officials. The British lightweight received the verdict of Referee Patsy Haley, grey-haired little veteran, and one of the judges. Joe Agnello. The vote of Charles F. Mathison, the second judge, went to the Cuban featherweight.

So close was the battle and so partisan the sympathies of the crowd that the decision, plus the announcer's uncertainty, provoked a big demonstration of disapproval. Chocolate, led tearfully from the ring, received an ovation that drowned out the cheers for Berg. So heated was the scene that impromptu fights broke out around the ringside and in the stands of the National League ball park. It was fully five minutes before order was restored by the police.

Among the ringside experts, a sharp division of opinion existed, although a slight majority appeared to regard the decision as fair. On the Associated Press score-sheet, Chocolate was given six rounds and Berg four, but the margin in several heats was so close that there was plenty of ground for the wide range of opinion. Chocolate seemed to have the edge in the first three rounds, as well as the sixth, seventh and eighth. Berg held margins in the fourth, fifth, ninth and tenth.

LANDS CLEANER BLOWS

Chocolate landed the cleaner, more effective blows. He had Berg somewhat groggy with a sensational attack in the third round, the most exciting of the entire fight. The flashing, Ebony Keed was also the faster, better boxer whenever he could keep away from the crowding, mauling Englishman.

Berg, however, was unceasingly the aggressor. His punches were seldom damaging, but they were more persistent and landed oftener. This forcing, plus the fact that Berg unquestionably made the stronger finish apparently swung the decision in his favor.

Berg, with better than a nine-pound pull in the weights at 133¼, used this to good advantage as he continually crowded, mauled and harassed the Cuban Negro. Speared and often baffled by his rival's speed afoot, occasionally left pawing the vacant air as the Keed slid out of reach, Berg nevertheless kept up a steady drumfire that weakened the ebony

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Should the Giants fall in their pennant drive this season—an eventuality which probably will come to pass—their generalissimo doubtless will concentrate on moves looking toward a strengthening of his slab staff.

John J. can look over the more fertile fields supervised by his old Baltimore sidekick, Wilbert Robinson, and Connie Mack and he will have food for reflection. Both Robbie and Connie were catchers in their playing heyday, and the pair of great veterans naturally stress pitching. It is second nature with them.

BOTH RIVALS CATCHERS

The New York chieftain was an an infielder—an efficient, scrappy one, who could hit and do a lot of other things that go toward making the winning player, but his rivals had a better chance to study pitchers.

McGraw's own players will tell you that there is nobody with a better knowledge of pitchers than their leader, yet the question involves many angles. It is logical to presume that a catcher should have a more intimate viewpoint on sharpshooters.

Aside from the point just discussed, it is admitted all along the line that the Robins and Ath-

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 8.—Bob Wingate, of this city, reached the semi-finals of the national public links golf tournament here today when he defeated B. H. Burrows, of Washington, 5 and 4. Larry Opalka, of Detroit, defeated Walter Buron, of Akron, 6 and 5.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A series of upsets in the first two rounds of the national public links golf tournament yesterday eliminated all but one of those who had been expected to reach the quarter finals today.

The sole favorite to survive was Bob Wingate, of Jacksonville, of the 24 eliminated in yesterday's play, as many fell victim to a blistering sun and the trapped and bunkered course, as were beaten by superior brands of golf.

EIGHT SURVIVE

Survivors are: Wingate, B. H. Burrows, Washington; Ade Fordham, St. Paul; Walter Barton, Akron; Larry O'Palka, Detroit; Joseph Greene, Philadelphia; Barney Lucas, Los Angeles, and Dominic Strafaci, Brooklyn.

Wingate had one very close call when James Bushong, of Portland, took him 19 holes in an exciting battle.

Burrows took the measure of Michael Champi, Brooklyn, 3 and 2, to enter the select list. Champi entered the fray the favored match player.

Larry O'Palka, who easily won both his matches yesterday, four and three, started by eliminiating the tournament medalist, Al Quigley, Chicago, in the morning, and kept the same margin over Charles Albertus, Philadelphia, in the afternoon.

Greene, conceded a good match player, went the route over the opposition of Henry Fabrizio, Brooklyn star, in the second round, 3 and 2, after eliminating PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—I see the experts are already measuring the Athletics for the flag. They say the A's can lose half their remaining games and still breeze in. Well, our Washington club can win two-thirds of our remaining games, and where are they going to place us? Are they going to build a pent house on top of the league? The experts can prove anything with their logarithms and geometry, but I want to tell you there is nothing certain in baseball except the umpires are always right. Why, the Phillies haven't even clinched last place in the National League. I see Old Alex got let out again. He has been released so often this season he must feel like a parachute.

Public Parks Net Stars in Tourney

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—At least 60 players from the public tennis courts of American cities are expected to compete here August 18 to 23 for the national public parks title now held by George J. Jennings, Jr., of Chicago. In addition women's competition will be added to the tournament for the first time.

Jennings, who won the singles championship at Buffalo last year, has signified intention of defending the crown at the eighth annual renewal of the competition. With Robert B. Considine, of Washington, he also will defend the doubles championship.

GRIDDER HURT

MARTINS FERRY, O., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Earl Stullenberger, 12, of Cadiz, O., rushed the season a bit yesterday by becoming a football casualty. He suffered a broken leg when tackled in a practice game and was brought to a local hospital.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, I guess the only thing to do is try to forget them two games by taking it out on the Giants. And it looks like McGraw is gonna try to give us a sour dose of southpaws, for we got a load of Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell in the stands yesterday. They were sent on ahead, with Shanty Hogan, to be set for us.

It's hard to forget breaks like we got yesterday. Dazzy was hardly able to swing a bat, and he comes through with a surprise single with Rube Bressler on third. Rube got such a shock over this hit that we all thought he was gonna run right out of th' park instead of headin' home.

And did you see Babe Herman stagger into that one that Grantham smashed off the wall? I've seen George go for three on wallops like that, but this time the ball almost kissed Babe in the nose. All he had to do was fling it toward second, and Boots had to hold up at first.

Ol' Dazzy won that one jes like Schmelling won the championship off Sharkey. Both wuz on the floor yellin' for smellin' salts when they wuz decorated with a victory medal. That's a fine way to win anything, if you're askin' me.

Gee, I hate to see that fourth-place money slippin' from us. We looked like champs against the Cards and Cubs, and we hit well enough to take the Dodgers twice, but them lucky birds slipped outa town with two victories.

ROBINS, A'S SET STERN PACES IN FLAG RACES

YANKS PRESS NATS; CUBS TRIUMPH

Associated Press

The league-leading Philadelphia Athletics and Brooklyn Robins were bowling along at a pace that boded no good for the clubs that are doing the chasing in the current pennant races.

When a club that already is leading the pack by six and one-half games hands its nearest pursuer an artistic beating to stretch its advantage to seven and a half the supposition is that the team in front is going to prove pretty hard to overhaul.

A'S BEAT NATS

That is exactly what the Athletics did yesterday at Shibe Park to the Washington Senators 4-1, thanks to Jimmy Foxx's thirty-first home run of the season in the sixth inning with two on base.

Pulling up on the Senators the third place Yankees, still hitting and dangerous, won their second straight victory over the Red Sox 6-1, principally because of timely triples by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig and the steady pitching of Ed Wells.

The hard fighting Cubs just managed to keep the Robins from increasing their three and one-half game lead when they nosed out the Cardinals, 6-5. Chick Hafey, Cardinal slugger drove in all the home team's runs with his twentieth homer of the season with one on in the first and a double in the eighth with the bases loaded but his mates were less effective against the slants of Osborn and Root.

PIRATES LOSE

For the second time in two days the Robins beat out the Pirates this time by a 6-4 count. This wound up the abbreviated series.

For most of the National League clubs, the Pittsburgh outfit is anything but an easy mark but the records seem to show that Uncle Wilbert Robinson's clan has their number. The Robins now have beaten the Pirates 11 times and lost to them on only four occasions, having fared even better against them than against the Phillies.

Yesterday the Robins won in the ninth in spectacular style when Johnny Frederick tripled to drive home Ike Boone who had batted for Vance and walked. Just to make the margin a little more comfortable, Wally Gilbert then proceeded to tally Frederick with a single. Watson Clark, pitching the ninth for the Robins, held the lead safe.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Two players from the United States and two from Canada gained the semi-final round of the Canadian amateur golf championship yesterday.

Carrying the burden of America's hopes of its second successive victory in the Canadian event were J. Wood Platt and J. Raymond Ferguson, of Philadelphia. Canada was represented by C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., and Carroll M. Stuart, of Montreal.

Platt eliminated his quarter-final round rival, Nicol Thompson, Jr., of Toronto, in fairly easy fashion, 6 and 4, but Ferguson found Fred G. Hoblitzel, of Toronto, an opponent who fought every inch of the way and surrendered only on the thirty-fifth green, 2 to 1.

Somerville gained his place in the semi-finals only after one of the most remarkable comebacks in the history of the Canadian amateur. The London star, former amateur and open champion of the Dominion, trailed Frank Connolly, of Detroit, through most of their 36-hole battle, but finally managed to pull the match out of the fire, 1 up. Stuart also had a close and hard-fought match on his hands before he could eliminate the fellow Montreal star, Jack Cameron, 1 up.

Goss Wins Amateur Play at Bedford

BEDFORD, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—L. M. Goss, Bedford, won the invitation golf tournament for amateurs yesterday at Bedford Springs by defeating F. B. Thomas, of Clearfield, 3 and 2.

Goss won his way into the finals by disposing of H. M. Miller, Jr., of the Edgewood Country Club, Pittsburgh, and Thomas eliminated George Goodrich, Bedford, in another semi-finals match.

C. S. Lewis, of Baltimore, won the consolation finals, defeating D. C. Line, Bedford, 5 and 4.

WESTINGHOUSE MEET CARDED

A diversified program of athletic events will feature the forty-fourth annual picnic of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at Kennywood Park tomorrow. The events will be staged under the auspices of the A. A. U.

N. A. Schafer is chairman of the men's athletic committee. Kathryn Lacey heads the women's athletic committee. Associated with Schafer are S. P. Arner, Cecile Bilby, S. J. Black, Anna Cruciger, A. S. Duncan, Miss Lacey, F. A. Law, E. K. Read and L. E. Schumacher. Members of Miss Lacey's committee are Miss Bilby, Lucy M. Brown, Emily Borcik, Margarett Coburn, Miss Cruciger, Dora Deight, Henrietta Fitch, Emma Gregg, Jennie Johnson, Genevieve Kline, Cecilia Lang, Anna Lesik, Kitty Malovich, Margaret Masters, Jean Motz, Maude Neveling, Jule Novak, Clara Saupe, Jane Stelutto, Zoe Surgeon.

An attractive list of prizes awaits the winners. Women's events will include a departmental relay, a 75-yard dash, 60-yard dash, 50-yard dash, honeymoon express, basketball throw, baseball throw, kiddie kar race, scooter race and employes' wives' novelty race.

For the men there will be a broad jump, pole vault, shot put and various races grouped according to their length of service with the Westinghouse company. The open events comprise a 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, one-mile run, shot put, pole vault, running broad jump and a departmental tug of war.

Stars to Compete In Utilities Furlong

The 220-yard open handicap dash will be one of the feature events on the public utilities track and field meet program tomorrow afternoon at Schenley Oval, under the auspices of the Philadelphia Company.

Among the starters will be Arthur Thomas, Mineral Beach Club; Leonard Mocheim, Andrew Thompson, H. W. Beck, Joe Ledger, Alvin Kenney, Union Athletic Club; H. Thompkins, Clyde Manks, Emmett A. W. A.; Jacob R. Fruman, Perry Club; L. H. Patterson, William H. Buell, John M. Deni, Pennsylvania Railroad, and Henry Schnellbach, Edgar A. Work, Louis P. Demmler, Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

Billy Jacobs Wins In Junior Tourney

DELAFIELD, Wis., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Jack Lynch, Taft, Cal., and Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Cal., yesterday advanced to semi-final play in both the junior and boys singles of the western tennis championships being held here.

Cohn, national boys' champion, defeated Charles Hunt, San Francisco, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, in the junior quarter finals and Lynch defeated Earl Tetting, Milwaukee, 6-4, 6-4.

Frankie Parker, Milwaukee, was eliminated from the junior play by William Jacobs, Pittsburgh, 6-2, 6-3, and Jack Morrison, Washington, D. C., moved to the semi-finals by defeating Harry Jens, Milwaukee, 6-4, 6-1.

Art Feeser Wins Over Ray Collins

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Art Feeser, Lebanon, won the decision in 10 rounds last night over Ray Collins, Erie. They are lightweights.

Frankie Moran, Pittsburgh, outpointed Walter Strappel, Windber, in the six-round semi-final.

In other six-round bouts, Jimmy Dontella, Bakerton, won over Don Frazier, Pittsburgh, and Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh, gained the decision over Patsy Severo, Meadville.

CROWD RAZZES DRAW VERDICT

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—In a decision that resulted in a storm of protests from the spectators, Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles, contender for the world featherweight championship, found himself in possession of a draw, instead of a victory, at the end of 10 blistering rounds with Earl Mastro, of Chicago, in the Chicago Stadium last night.

The verdict of the two judges and referee, little Phil Collins, stunned the spectators as La Barba, in the judgment of the ringside experts, was the decisive winner in seven of the 10 rounds. Referee Collins voted for a draw, whereas the two judges were divided on the decision, one voting for Mastro and the other for the Pacific Coast contender.

A sweltering crowd of 12,430 spectators greeted the verdict with boos and then with a great uproarious laugh. The receipts were $33,496.

La Barba, former world flyweight champion, set a terrific pace for the Chicago youngster, forcing him on the defense and keeping him in retreat a great part of the time. La Barba's superior speed and greater experience enabled him to step out in front and stay there. He had the advantage in every round with the exception of three, two of which might have been given to Mastro on a shade and the other called even.

JAYS LOSE PAIR TO FAIRMONT

Fairmont cemented its hold on first place in the Mid-Atlantic League more firmly yesterday by winning both ends of a double bill with the last place Jeannette Jays at Fairmont.

The Fairies took the first game by a count of 7 to 0, with Spencer limiting the Jays to six scattered hits. In the second game the Fairies won by a score of 2 to 1.

At Johnstown, in a night game, the Wheeling Stogies walloped Johnstown, 13 to 5. The Smokes tallied seven runs in the fifth inning.

Scottdale hit timely behind shutout pitching on the part of Heise and defeated Charleroi, 11 to 0. Heise gave the Guys but four safe hits.

At Cumberland the Colts made five errors and were beaten by Clarksburg, 6 to 4. Helmick, Colt leftfielder, hit a home run.

PROVINCIALISM OUT

"Why do you write about athletics in Europe and Japan?" writes J. F. R., of Kokomo, "We don't care what they are doing over there. The only things I'm interested in are what takes place in Hoosierdom, good old Indiana."

Knute Rockne.

Yeah? What with the increasing number of people who travel and the universal adoption of the radio, I'm afraid that provincialism is doomed. There was a time when the horseshoe pitching winner at Lafayette, the winner of the high school basket ball tournament at Indianapolis, the winner of the oratorical contest at Greencastle, or the greatest poet at the annual bee at Culver all were world champions. That's impossible to put over any more, except in Brown County, and even there folks are beginning to have their doubts.

We Hoosiers all love to dream about the moonlight on the Wabash, but our vision has broadened unbelievably in the last five years or so.

going—opinion differed as to the outcome. One of the three officials did not join in the Berg verdict, Announcer Joe Humphries showed a personal belief that Chocolate had won when he started toward the wrong corner to raise the hand of the victor, and a roar of disapproval from the crowd indicated that the majority of the spectators took exception to the decision.

HOWEVER, THE FACT remains that Berg convinced two of the three men with voting power that he had earned the award, and in handing Chocolate the first defeat of the latter's career the Whitechapel Jewish boy must be given credit for one of the most notable ring achievements scored by any little fighter in recent years.

Berg had a weight advantage, it is true, but it takes a real champion to beat the Cuban Negro even under such conditions. No fighter with less stamina than the remarkable store that Berg possesses could have done the trick. Chocolate loses nothing in the defeat. It was simply a case of going out of his class and finding the handicap too great, particularly when the odds caused him to tire in the last two rounds. He is still an uncrowned champion in his own featherweight division.

STANTON PAIR VICTOR AT ALCOMA

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

A pair of Stanton Heights golfers, Mrs. D. A. Garber and F. A. Vance carried off top honors in the mixed foursome play at Alcoma yesterday. The Heights pair had a best low gross score of 81, which with a handicap of eight, gave them the low net honors of 73.

In second place in the first division came Mr. and Mrs. Carl Van der Voort, of Shannopin, with 89-15—74.

Leading the field in the second flight came Mrs. E. E. Zimmerman, of Highland, and J. P. Henderson, of Alcoma, with 95-25—70. Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Joyce were second with 97-24—73.

The third division was led by Mrs. S. Fowler, of Highland, and C. I. Newell, of Alcoma, with a score of 102-29—73. Trailing this pair came Mrs. C. C. Daily and W. F. Morris, with 109-35—74. The scores:

Upsets Feature Maidstone Play

EASTHAMPTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Upsets marked the play in the annual gold cup tournament on the Maidstone Club courts yesterday when Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, of San Francisco, Seabright and Longwood victor, was eliminated in the quarter-finals by Miss Mary Greef, of Kansas City, 5-6, 6-2, 6-4, and Miss Dorothy Weisel, of Sacramento, Cal., defeated Miss Midge Gladman, of Santa Monica, 6-2, 2-6, 6-1.

Both matches were in the upper half quarter finals and Miss Weisel and Miss Greef will meet this afternoon in the semi-finals. In the lower half Miss Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., and Miss Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, will meet.

GOLF As Champions Play It

THINGS THAT HAVE HAPPENED BEFORE HINDER CONCENTRATION

Do you advocate any particular method of mental concentration for a player who is driving?

Answered by LARRY NABHOLTZ.

Concentration is a very necessary element in playing any shot, but when it comes to playing a drive it seems to be an elusive accomplishment. So many disconcerting influences are prevalent at the moment one tees up that concentration is an unusual if not an impossible procedure.

By way of illustration, take the missed two-foot putt on the previous green. Surely to keep the mind off that while addressing one's ball is the work of a magician. Then, again, take the situation where one holes a 30-footer. Here we get a peculiar complex; the player is so exuberant that he feels like driving the ball a mile, overswings, and swish! goes his vocabulary.

If one could but eliminate all thoughts from the mind look at the "inside back of the ball" and decide to "hit 'er out," he probably would get a much better average of good drives.

Too many try to think of arm position, stance, grip and sundry elementals during the process of a swing, with fatal results.

Sport Vignettes

You'd look pleased, too, if you were sitting on top of the baseball world as Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Robins are sitting there these days . . . . Photo shows Uncle Robbie in the visitors' dugout before yesterday's game with the Pirates at Forbes Field . . . . Last winter, Robbie wasn't even sure he had a job, with the rival factions in the ownership of the Brooklyn club battling and the roly-poly manager the main point of contention . . . . Rob'n's side won and Robbie stuck, and almost all season he has had his club, a "dark horse" at best, up there leading the chase and coining money for its owners . . . . Everybody still is waiting for the Robins to crack, but they have shown no signs of obliging . . . . The only cracking that was apparent in the two-game series here was the cracking of baseballs hither and yon to win both battles . . . . Robbie has shown an almost uncanny knack all season of jockeying his lineup, sending in new pitchers and pinch batters and pinch runners with amazing success . . . . After all, is he simply smiling in an amused sort of a way in the picture, or is that a horse laugh at the so-called experts who have been waiting in vain for that big cracking act to begin? . . . . Waco, Tex., will be spelled Whacko, now that Gene Rye, of the club of that town, has hit three home runs in a single inning in a night game . . . . What's to become of all of the tennis cradles that are being deserted by the young upstarts who are doing things to the veterans these days? . . . . First there was young Ellsworth Vines defeating Francis Hunter, then Sidney Wood, 18, came along to defeat Vines, and then young Eddie Jacobs, of Pitt, took the measure of R. N. Williams, and, yesterday, 19-year-old Frank Shields walloped Bill Tilden and Wood added to his laurels by beating George M. Lott, Jr., the United States' other Davis Cup singles player, at Southampton . . . . And not only that, but Dorothy Weisel, young California miss, on successive days, defeats Edith Cross and Midge Gladman . . . . Such stuff! as George Bungle would say . . . . Or was it Shakespeare? . . . . Sergt. Sammy Baker, fighting his first bout since he collapsed and almost died against Baby Joe Gans in Cleveland recently, knocked out Jack Fiala, of Florida, in two rounds at Freeport, L. I., a few nights ago . . . . In the ring racket it is only too true that few die and none resign except English heavyweights . . . . Gabby Street thought Sam Breadon was a friend of his until Sam re-signed him yesterday to manage the St. Louis Cardinals for another year . . . . Skipper Manning, who died yesterday, was a fighter of parts out in the Strip some 15 years ago. News of his death recalls his fame, lost in the hurrah over the newer lights of the profession.—HARRY KECK.

TILDEN, LOTT JACOBS MEET DEFEAT

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Playing before a partisan crowd which enthusiastically cheered him on, Frank Shields, 19-year-old New York schoolboy, conquered Bill Tilden, national and Wimbledon champion, at 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, yesterday in the quarter-final round of the invitation tennis tournament here.

In another upset, George Lott bowed to Sidney Wood, towheaded New York youth of 18, to complete the rout of the singles players whom the United States sent against the French in the Davis Cup challenge round two weeks ago. Wood, the conqueror of Ellsworth Vines in the Seabright tournament last week, beat Lott by scores of 6-4, 3-6, 9-7.

JACOBS LOSES

Frank Hunter, who ranks second to Tilden in the list of American players, downed Eddie Jacobs, of Pittsburgh, at 8-6, 8-6, and Wilmer Allison, of the Davis Cup team, disposed of Richard Murphy, Utica, N. Y., 7-5, 6-4, in the other quarter-finals. Hunter and Allison will meet in one of the semi-finals scheduled for today while Shields and Wood clash in the other.

Tilden's surprise defeat by Shields marked the first time he has lost to a fellow American since he was upset by Fritz Mercur in the Eastern championships of two years ago at Rye, N. Y.

When he was finally beaten, however, it was by a decisive margin. Shields played the best tennis of his career and won so convincingly as to astonish even his warmest admirers.

VICTORY DECISIVE

The beautiful volleying which carried Shields to a first 10 ranking for the season of 1928 was the weapon with which he brought about the downfall of the 37-year-old veteran.

Shields' margin in the first set was most decisive, Tilden twice losing his service as he took but one game. In the second session Tilden rallied and managed to even matters by taking a set which was more closely contested than the score might indicate.

In the final set Tilden took the first game at love on his service, but this proved to be his last.

Tilden and Lott may have been a trifle below par since they arrived from Europe less than 48 hours before, but even at their best they would have had a difficult time to beat Shields and Wood as the youngsters played yesterday. The lack of opportunity to become acclimated, however, did not appear to bother Allison, who always held the upper hand in his match with Murphy.

Plan family picnics now and buy a good used car so you can enjoy them. See the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads.

Chicagoan Captures Southpaw Golf Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Lew Levinson, of the Bryn Mawr Country Club, Chicago, won the left-handed golf championship yesterday at the Midlothian Country Club with duplicate rounds of 75-75—150.

Charles E. Nixon, of Columbus, O., was runner-up, turning in a card of 74-77—151, while R. C. Wilson, of the Olympia Fields Country Club, Chicago, who was champion in 1927, placed third with a score of 80-75—155.

R. S. Juran, of Minneapolis, holder of the title during the last two years, came in fourth with 75-82—157.

HERRON VICTOR

READING, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A. (Sandy) Herron, Berkshire pro, captured the Central Golf Association's one-day open tourney held over the Berkshire course here yesterday. Herron shattered par by six strokes to card a 70 in the morning round and came back with a 73 in the afternoon play to score a 143 to lead a field of 35.

Two big games are scheduled in the Commerical and Industrial League this evening. At Carrick Park, the Reliance Life nine will try and make its standing in the loop secure by stopping the Dravo aggregation. Dravo has been hitting the ball hard of late and expect to give the Insurance boys plenty of competition.

The other game finds the Reick-Mcdunkin team meeting Carnegie Steel at Etna. This game between these old rivals should draw a capacity crowd.

VERONA ON ROAD

Verona Community makes the trip to Wilmerding this evening to meet the Airbrake nine. This game should give the fans a thrill, seeing that the teams are fighting it out for first place in the standing. Verona has been making a great showing in the second half. The Valley boys have been leading the race since its inception.

In the Central League, Soho clashes with the Cosletts at Moultrie Park. These teams are bitter rivals and close enough together that a good rooting duel should be waged.

Homewood goes to Pleasant Valley this evening in the City League. This is one game that Dunsky wants to win, but stopping that hard-hitting Boll team is a tough assignment for any pitcher. The East Enders batted around last evening in the fifth frame against the Thomas club. Larry Anthony started the big frame by fanning, but came up again to single to right. Homewood is hitting the ball hard and the biggest crowd of the season should watch Heinie and his mates do their stuff.

The other game in the loop finds W. O. W. and Dormont hooking up at the South Hills grounds. Dormont, close on Homewood's heels, can ill afford to lose, and seeing that they defeated, the Jedinak outfit on Wednesday, should repeat.

HALE FACES LINCOLN

In the Steel City League, the Lincoln Place nine will have the Hale club for its opposition Lincoln Place is in the running for the title and will have a tough team to meet.

Verona Community took sweet revenge over W. O. W. last evening for that class A final defeat last season, the Bright outfit, with Tom Gettings on the mound, winning by an 8-to-6 score. It was a slugfest all the way.

In the City League last evening, Book Shoe returned to the winning column by defeating the North Side Civics, 6 to 5. Dormont slugged out an 8-to-2 triumph over Pop Geer's Stowe nine and Homewood dropped J. L. Thomas, 10 to 8. After the Bollmen tallied their seven runs in the fifth inning, the Thomas hitter rallied and scored six in their half of the frame.

SAINTS VICTORS

St. Phillips defeated the Presbyterians in a hotly contested game in the Crafton-Ingram Church League, 6 to 5. Lincoln Civics walloped St. Johns, 10 to 1, in the Central circuit.

The Pittsburgh Railways team nosed out Equitable Gas, 9 to 8 in the Philadelphia Company League. Riddle's North Siders punched out a 5-to-3 win over Ingomar in the North Side Twilight loop.

St. Adalberts defeated the Union Printers, 11 to 5, in the Major League's only contest.

In independent tussles, Kokinos Cards defeated the P. J. Cauls of Ambridge, 3 to 2, and Wilmerding edged out a 5-to-4 triumph over Fintex.

In the Monon Valley League, the leading Monessen nine walloped Speers, 14 to 0. Loose play contributed heavily to the downfall of Speers.

The California Eagles turned in a sparking 8-to-2 triumph over the Charleroi Robins. Leonetti, hurling for the Eagles, held the Robins to five hits.

GRID COACHES IN DISGUISE

ARNOLD HORWEEN — JESS HAWLEY — DICK HANLEY

You'd never think to look at these gentlemen on the links that they really aren't Walter Hagens and Bobby Joneses, would you? But don't let the gay deceivers pull the wool over your eyes. They're merely football coaches appearing incognito, which is a new word meaning in plus fours. Horween is the Harvard coach. Hawley formerly was mentor at Dartmouth. Hanley is boss at Northwestern and the good Judge Steffen is the veteran tutor of gridiron strategy at our own Carnegie Tech. They were caught in the act by the cameraman in Chicago.

DUNDEE RALLIES TO DRAW WITH RODGERS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A good start and a flashy finish last night won a referee's decision of a draw for Mike Dundee, stock Island (Ill.) veteran featherweight, in his 10-round main bout with Jackie Rodgers, local Negro knockout star, before a crowd that jammed the seating capacity of Hickey Park, Millvale, for the first time this season.

The judges disagreed on the result, Lou Meininger voting for Rodgers and Frank Ferris for Dundee. Referee Al Grayber cast the deciding vote of a dead heat.

As a matter of fact, Dundee got a break in the draw decision. Throughout most of the fight he clinched and tincanned and used his ring generalship to mess up Rodgers' attempts to fight and then outlasted him in the final two rounds, which found both arm and leg-weary. Most of the fighting was at close range, with the men entangled in semi-clinches, and the referee had to break them continually and warn them repeatedly to come out in the open and fight.

DUNDEE KNOCKED DOWN

Dundee is not the ringman he was when he first appeared here a few years ago, and he found out after moving about and forcing the going and outboxing Rodgers in the first two rounds that he would have to conserve his energy. He was bleeding slightly from both eyes early in the third round and was in a bad way later from Rodgers' pounding rights to the side of the body, one of which sent him down to take a count of nine in this frame.

Rodgers continued his attack and won the next three rounds handily, with Dundee seemingly being in there to avoid a knockout and tieing up Rodgers at every opportunity.

Dundee forced his way to an edge in the seventh round, and, by the time they went into the eighth, Rodgers was as badly spent from his vain efforts as Dundee was from punishment and they fought this round on even terms. Dundee flashed in toe-to-toe slugging to take the ninth, and, although exhausted, carried on to win the tenth.

Dundee won five rounds, with four going to Rodgers and one even, but Rodgers' rounds were scored by larger margins and he also had that knockdown for a count of nine in his favor and was not guilty of the holding that enabled Dundee to weather his early storm.

The crowd was with Dundee and gave him a hand for his surprising finish. Mike weighed 128 pounds and Rodgers 124½.

BELMONT BEATS SIMMS

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, 149, laced Alex Simms, Akron veteran, 151¼, all of the way in the eight-round semi-final and had him out on his feet with a body attack in the final round. Simms is a southpaw who holds his guard, if any, low, and he was a punching bag for Belmont, who showed to better advantage than in recent bouts here.

Georgie Bretsch, 146 pounds, handed out a one-sided beating to his North Side rival, Georgie Peck, 149, in the second bout of six rounds, only Peck's covering-up and footwork saving him from a knockout. Peck took a count of three partly almost outside the ropes in the second round and was cut and bleeding almost throughout.

Terry Waner, of the North Side, 123½, won the referee's decision over Sammy Paris, of the Hill, 127½, as the judges disagreed in the opener.

Referee Joe Keally was back on hand to share the work with Grayber, A. C. Couch and Steve Russell were the timers, Harry Klaas did the announcing and Dr. J. W. McMeans was the commission physician.

WINS ON NINETEENTH

Lucas took Arthur Pease, of Portland, into camp on the nineteenth.

Walter Barton defeated one of the best players in the meeting, when he downed Dr. W. A. Norby, of Portland, one up, in the afternoon play.

Strafaci, admittedly the best match player on Brooklyn's team, advanced in beating Mortimer Jaffee, New York youth, five and four.

LOCAL BEATEN

The winner of the tournament will wear the Mont-Links crown which has adorned the brow of Carl Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, for the past three years. Kauffman was disqualified after the first 18 holes of qualifying play Tuesday through a technical rule of scoring.

The two Pittsburgh golfers who qualified for match play and had hoped to carry on when Kauffmann was ruled out, Carl Lunden and Mike Galido, both lost their first round engagements.

Lunden bowed to Fordham, 4 and 3 and Galido was eliminated by Dr. W. A. Norby, of Portland, Ore., 4 and 2.

Dr. Huebner Talks on Life Insurance

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

INSURANCE MEN HAVE MUCH to learn about their business. This was the substance of two talks given yesterday at the Keystone Club by Dr. S. S. Huebner, professor of insurance at the University of Pennsylvania and educational advisor of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Dr. Huebner was a pioneer in attempting to get institutions of higher learning to add the subject of life insurance to their courses. After 27 years of effort he stated that progress is at last being made and that a large number of universities have life insurance departments.

In his talks he expressed amazement that leading educators had been so reluctant to admit a subject which is of interest to nearly everyone and which is becoming increasingly important to the business world, while they have been welcoming a vast number of other subjects which are less likely to be of value to a large number of students.

Death Side Emphasized

THERE ARE TWO distinct sides of life insurance, according to Dr. Huebner. Life insurance men bring only one side before the public. They are constantly talking the death side. They completely ignore the life side. The altruistic angle, protection to a family, is important but he stated that public interest can be made greater if it is shown that insurance is just as much an investment as the purchase of a stock or a bond. Life insurance can be made far more interesting to the individual if he realizes that the ownership of a policy is actually doing something for him as well as posterity.

Dr. Huebner also insisted that the mystery be taken out of insurance. Field men should do educational work which will create a better understanding of just what insurance is. The elimination of many of the poorly chosen terms used in insurance will go a long way in this direction, he stated.

Investment Side of Insurance

INSURANCE POLICIES have two distinct functions, Dr. Huebner said. The money paid by the policy holder is used in two ways. One part goes into a sinking fund which, with its interest, should be the basis for a competency for the holder at the expiration of the policy. Dr. Huebner compared this to the setting up of depreciation by a corporation.

The other part of the money is not a direct investment but compensates the insurance company for the risk of paying the amount of the policy in the event of an early death. He said that there is entirely too little understanding of the two things which an endowment policy does.

Compares With Bond Buyer

DR. HUEBNER STATES that a young man who starts to build up an estate by the purchase of bonds or other securities is gambling unless he accompanies this with the purchase of an amount of term life insurance equal to the size of the fund he wishes to accumulate. The amount of the insurance could be decreased year by year in proportion to the increase in the investments.

This would insure the establishment of the desired estate in case of premature death.

An endowment life policy may be regarded as accomplishing the same end with an exceptional degree of safety since there is probably no other business so free from risks and backed by such a diversified list of holdings as insurance. Dr. Huebner said that a study of the investment return on policies over a period of 35 years, after deducting the expenses for the protection during the accumulation of the estate, averaged 5.34 per cent for six leading companies.

flash. Except for a spurt or two, Chocolate was hardly able to lift his hands to punch in the last two rounds.

KID'S FIRST DEFEAT

Chocolate, meeting his first defeat in two years of professional fighting and after 167 winning bouts, lost little prestige, his backers undoubtedly will clamor for a return bout. The Kid stepped out of his natural class, as a featherweight, to beat the present lightweight king, Al Singer, a year ago but he was unable to repeat the stunt last night.

The gate was estimated at $160,000, approximately the same as that for the Singer-Mandell lightweight title bout recently at the Yankee Stadium.

Eddie Mack, Denver lightweight, gained a draw in ten rounds with Sammy Dorfman, East Side scrapper, in the main preliminary. Baby Joe Gans, of San Diego, received the decision over Eddie Murdock, of Tulsa, Okla., in another 10-rounder, fought after the main event.

letics have slab staffs that are far in advance of the Giants. Moreover, it is agreed that the balance of power in the flag fights hinges on these hurling corps.

Uncle Robbie's staff is a bit dubious right now, but the heat wave seems to have something to do with the weakening of such stars as Vance and Elliott. The tactful Mack has two great hurlers in Grove and Earnshaw, with other stars to back them up.

VANCE COLLAPSES

Vance collapsed in the heat of yesterday, but his ninth-inning "bustup" appears to have been a boom to the Robins, for his sickness brought Ike Boone to the plate as a pinch-hitter and the Coast League home-run king started a drive with a base on balls that led to another Brooklyn victory over the Pirates. The score was 6 to 4.

Frederick tripled on top of the walk, the inning producing two runs, Southpaw Bill Clark then stepped to the mound and stopped the Buccos in their tracks.

The invaders had to have a lot of "breaks" to cop the second clash of the series. Lady Luck smiled upon them through most of the afternoon.

Remy Kremer and Jim Elliott were the starting pitchers. Elliott gave up after pitching the first round, Vance relieving him. Erv Brame batted for Kremer in the sixth and tied up the battle with a single, Glenn Spencer finished.

Jones Appointed Reading Manager

READING, Pa., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Bobby Jones, veteran infielder, has assumed the management of the Reading Keys while Harry Hinchman, for three years pilot of the locals, has been appointed a scout for the club.

Jones assumed charge of the nine yesterday and the team immediately snapped out of its slump and defeated the league-leading Rochester club, 5 to 4.

The appointment of Jones is only temporary, according to E. J. Poole, president of the Reading club, but close observers believe he will be the 1931 manager.

MATCH CANCELED

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Capt. High Vanderbogart of the golf team of Salisbury Country Club yesterday canceled by telephone, the scheduled match with the team of the Chester River Country Club for tomorrow. He gave the outbreak of typhoid fever at Salisbury as the reason for inability to gather a team.

Crothers and Meiss Tie for Shoot Cup

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Morris Crothers, Chestnut Hill, Pa., and Clarence Meiss, Hazleton, Pa., tied for first honors in the Brandywine cup event, feature of yesterday's card at the T. Clarence Marshall shoot over the Yorklyn Gun Club traps. The event was a 200 target, 16 yards rise, with Crothers and Meiss dividing a cash prize of $300. Both shooters broke their string of 200 targets without a miss.

Mark Arie, Champaign, Ill., the 1920 Olympic champion, finished with 199. Claud W. Olney, West Allis, Wis.; Arthur A. Armour, Havre de Grace, Md., and Frank M. Troch, Portland, Ore., all amateurs, tied with Fred S. Tomlin, Glassboro, N. J., professional, for fourth honors, each with 198.

Braves Lose Out In One-Hit Fray

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Jamestown Spiders, semi-pro team, defeated the Boston Braves of the National League 3 to 0, in an exhibition game here yesterday. Erickson, former Washington American League pitcher, hurled eight hitless innings, only 26 batsmen facing him. In the ninth Richbourg rapped a single to right field for Boston's only safety of the game. Erickson fanned eight Braves and walked one. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Jamestown	3	5	1

Batteries—Hansel and Gowdy, Erickson and Lapp.

Between Rounds

Gorilla Jones and Manuel Quintero box at San Francisco tonight. Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion, answers the gong against Canto Robleto at Hollywood, Cal.

Billy Jones, local Negro light-heavyweight, meets Lou Scozza, of Buffalo, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., next Tuesday night.

Tiger Joe West boxes Lynn Jordan and Harry Williams meets Johnny Urban in the two 10-round bouts making up a double windup card at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night. Al Becker, of Sharpsburg, will meet a good opponent, likely Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, in the eight-round semi-final, and Ross Fields, of Weirton, W. Va., will clash with Anastasio Vaquerie, of Panama, and Jackie Wilson, of the East End, will battle Moze Mitch, of Oakland, in the two six-round preliminaries, completing a bargain program of 40 rounds for $1 and $2.

Urban is helping George Panka get in shape for his fight with Emmett Rocco at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, one week from next Monday night. Leonard Johnson, New York heavyweight, also is working with Panka in the Homewood Progressive Club gymnasium.

Buck McTiernan put in seven rounds of boxing at the Homewood gym yesterday for his 10-round windup with Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion of the world, at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. He took on Billy Holt for three rounds, Peaches Gallagher for three more and wound up with a round against Frankie Consalli. Buck is working for speed and marksmanship, being confident he packs the punch to knock out Dundee if he connects properly.

Billy Wallace and Joey Hadfield box in Philadelphia tonight.

Charley Retzlaff and Bombo Chevalier, the Negro heavyweight, who banded Primo Carnera that surprise battle in California, are signed for a six-round bout in Duluth August 15.

GRIMES IS SUED

CANTON, O., Aug. 8.—Attorney James L. Amerman, who represented Mrs. Burleigh Grimes in the suit for divorce, filed by her husband, Burleigh Grimes, Cardinal pitcher, yesterday sued the National League veteran for his fee. He claims that the court ordered Grimes to pay the costs. Grimes' application for a divorce was denied.

MARKET SAGS AS DIVIDENDS ARE CUT

Selling Wave Forces Industrials, Rails Down; Warner Bros. at New Low

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP.)—The long becalmed stock market was driven far out of the course charted by the bull leaders in a sudden storm of liquidation today.

Important stocks generally were depressed 2 to 8 points or more as the heaviest selling experienced in several days was loosened by such undermining developments as dividend cuts, slackening steel mill output and a sharp break in cotton.

Sales during the first two hours aggregated 1,378,000 shares, exceeding the average turnover for the past four full five-hour sessions. Rails and utilities were under particularly heavy pressure. Real liquidation of long holdings of stock was said in brokerage circles to be in substantial volume, but professional traders were increasingly active on the short side of the market.

RAILS ARE TARGET

The loaning rates indicated that the rails, in particular were choice targets of the professional bear element. Practically every carrier stock was loaning flat.

The speculative fraternity was still greatly confused over the probable effects of the severe drought. The government cotton report, as of August 1, placed the crop about 300,000 bales higher than generally expected, which caused immediate declines of $2.50 to $3 a bale in the New York futures market.

Although wheat made good progress during the early hours of trading, the collapse in cotton brought a moderate reaction, even in that market.

It was estimated that U. S. Steel's mills had slackened from 64 per cent of capacity a few days ago to 61 per cent. The passing of Warner Bros. common dividend, while rumored for several days, provided a shock in some quarters for many traders had felt that at worst the cash payment would be reduced, or that it would be substituted for scrip.

The rails were liquidated on the theory that reduced crop movement would seriously impair earnings, as that in addition the roads would be asked to reduce grain rates to relieve the agricultural areas.

UTILITIES LOSE GROUND

The utilities have been under almost steady pressure for several days, resulting from the tendency toward lower power rates. Owing to heavy fixed charges, only moderate reductions in rates might sharply reduce earnings per share, and the utility shares have still been selling at considerably higher ratios to earnings than other groups.

As during all bear movements, unsettling rumors were circulated, such as reports that investment trusts were liquidating electric power stocks, but confirmation was lacking.

The decline carried prices to the lowest levels since the forepart of July, most pivotal stocks breaking through their recent resistance points. Save for the lower levels in June, stocks generally were reduced to new low levels for the year.

Such stocks as United States Steel, Radio and Standard of New Jersey, which have been held fairly steady during recent selling, dropped 3 points or more. General Motors and General Electric lost about 2.

WARNER'S NEW LOW

Warner Brothers dropped about 7 points, going below 30, or about 50 points under the year's peak. Bullard was also a weak spot, dropping as much, on a poor earnings statement and reaching levels about 50 points from the year's top of 74.

American Telephone, Du Pont, Byers, Stone & Webster, North American Corn Products, Eastman, Atlantic Coast Line, American Can and Vanadium lost 4 to 6. Worthington Pump lost more than 8. Losses of 2 to 4 points in the rails were numerous.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent again, after two days of renewals at 2½.

OIL WELL SALE TERMS STATED

The United States Steel Corporation will pay $6,865,800 in cash and 64,992 shares of its common stock for the business of the Oil Well Supply Company if it exercises its purchase option it was announced in a letter sent to Oil Well stockholders today by Benjamin F. Harris, president of the company.

The Steel Corporation has until August 25 to reach a decision on the purchase.

Based on yesterday's closing price of Steel common at 166½ the purchase price would total $17,686,968.

The Steel Corporation will assume all the debts of the Oil Well Supply Company except $800,000 of 6 per cent debentures of the Wilson - Snyder Manufacturing Corporation, a subsidiary.

Oil Well has $6,065,800 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock outstanding. The total par value of the debentures and the preferred stock is equal to the amount of cash to be paid.

SIX-FOR-ONE RATIO

The 64,992 shares of steel common are equivalent to the payment of one share of steel for every six shares of the 389,972 shares of Oil Well outstanding.

At yesterday's closing price for Steel at 166½ Oil Well common would have a cvalue of 27¾. It closed yesterday at 22½.

The preferred stock is callable at 110 and the Wilson-Snyder debentures at 103. In the event that these issues should be called, the value of the common stock would be reduced by $1.61 a share to pay the premiums on retiring the two issues.

At the option of the Steel Corporation the $6,865,800 cash portion of the payment may be made in United States Steel common stock at its closing price two days preceding the date of closing the transactions. The option provides that, in the event of approval by the Oil Well stockholders and the Steel Corporation, the sale must be consummated by September 30.

STEEL GETS TRADE NAMES

A special meeting of Oil Well stockholders has been called for September 9 to ratify the transaction and to approve a change in the name of the Pittsburgh United Corporation. This will permit the Steel Corporation to make use of the well known trade name of the Oil Well Supply Company. Stockholders of record August 25 will be entitled to vote at the meeting.

Upon completion of the sale the company will have as its sole assets the shares of the common stock of the Steel Corporation and the cash specified or its equivalent in stock. It will have no indebtedness other than the 6 per cent Wilson-Snyder debentures which will be redeemed shortly after the completion of the sale.

Bank Rate Reduced At San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The rediscount rate of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank has been reduced to 3½ per cent from the 4 per cent rate in effect since last March 21.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Influences working for lower prices were in the majority on the curb market today and stocks turned heavy. Although selling was in only fair volume, it was nevertheless steady during the earlier hours and all groups of shares felt the pressure.

Resistance levels were uncovered a point or two below the Thursday close in many of the more active issues, but volatile shares broke sharply. On the whole, however, the market was quiet and offerings were mostly in blocks of nominal size.

Liquidation was especially noticeable in the utilities and investment company shares.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

BARNES WARNS OF SOVIET IDEA

Insists Unfortunate in Industry Be Cared for; Recession Cycle Limited

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Julius H. Barnes, confidant of President Hoover and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, warned business executives that unless they voluntarily work out methods for taking care of the unfortunate in industry there will be increasing pressure for the European system of doles handed out by government.

In a notable address on the social responsibilities of business before the Institute of Public Affairs at Charlottesville, Va., Mr. Barnes, who is head of the business survey conference, which was launched last December at President Hoover's suggestion, reported a new awareness on the part of executives of their responsibility to minimize unemployment and the other ills which befall industrial workers.

Mr. Rukeyser

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Mr. Barnes said:

"In the business world, there is better understanding that in the complex structure of modern business misfortune is not always the result of individual weakness or incompetency, but often the result of circumstances which carry no disparities.

"Through the business fabric runs today progressive experiments pursued in the confident hope that practices will be perfected by which unemployment will be so brief and widely spaced that the daily margin of savings will tide over those periods of recession without recourse to the demoralizing theory of state aid.

"In the business world there is devoted effort to work out insurance relations which will spread human disaster across the larger number of workers not so visited with individual misfortune.

"In the business world there is a growing appreciation that age limits alone do not spell depreciated value and that management may fit longer years in such work as makes real value of those years."

RECESSION LIMITED

Mr. Barnes asserts that, though the record of business is clouded by unemployment, it can assert that it has spaced unemployment at wider periods than any other people or any other time; and also that "it has limited the cycle recession manifestly better than ever before or by any other people."

Mr. Barnes said that though 3,000,000 are unemployed, business is employing 44,000,000 workers though the current recession, compared with 31,000,000 in the crash of 1921. In explanation of the larger army of workers, Mr. Barnes, who is an expert on grain and an arch foe of the effort of the federal farm board to compete with private grain merchants, said:

"The last 20 years, for example, has really seen the advent of women into business and industry. It has tended to greatly increase the total army of employed much faster than the growth of population. The miracle really is that within the past few years this increased army has been absorbed with so little continuing dislocation."

OPPOSES SOVIET IDEA

Mr. Barnes insists that one of the major ingredients of American business progress has been our system of government. Opposing the Soviet idea of putting the state directly into business, Mr. Barnes said:

"(The American) philosophy is that government shall not enter the field of activity which is better filled by the private efforts of its people; that government shall not operate railroads, telephones, telegraphs, buy or sell commodities, engage in the activities of business; but rather that government shall maintain the position of a fair and just arbiter, an umpire that will see the conditions for fair play and equal opportunity for all its people."

Mr. Barnes, an individualist, seeks to modernize the rather shopworn doctrine of individualism.

The Barnes address is significant because he speaks for the liberal wing in American business, and it indicates what is going on inside the mind of a major executive in the midst of a cycle of recession.

Seiberling Rubber Issues Debentures

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Seiberling Rubber Company is issuing $4,000,000 of 6 per cent debentures maturing at periods extending over three and one-half years, F. A. Seiberling, president, announced. Of the new issue $3,100,000 has been disposed of and the proceeds have cleared all bank indebtedness of the company. The remaining $900,000 of the new issue will be held in the treasury.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Railroad and utility bonds made a good showing in a quiet session today, as stock privilege issues turned reactionary in sympathy with a weak share market.

Warner Brothers 6s sold off to a new low for the year, on a loss of more than a point and then recovered partially. St. Paul Adjustment 5s yielded 2 points in the early dealings, selling within 3 points of its year's low.

As the day wore on, trading broadened in a highly selective market, with high grade railroad and utility issues enjoying some price enhancement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows: (000 omitted in sales column. United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Lots For Sale 71

Crescent Hills

The new Plan out the Frankstown Road.
Large lots for little money.
Carefully but moderately restricted. New and up to date. No all-frame houses permitted.
Good soil for gardens. Large forest trees if you prefer, or a spring run through back of lot with shady dells and cozy nooks.

Crescent Hills is busy. Buyers and builders bustle about everywhere. Water and gas lines, electricity, telephones. Foundations are being laid, roofs are being finished. Tractor, trucks, steam roller, and a large force of men are hard at work turning Crescent Hills into happy home places for the better class of folks forced out of the city by undesirable conditions.

Quarter acres: $440—$690—$990
$50 down $10 per month
We help you build.

We invite you to visit Crescent Hills today. See for yourself. See why your neighbors who have bought at Crescent Hills are so happy.

Out the Frankstown Road, three miles beyond the Verona car line. You will see our large sign and the flagpole to your left. Drive in between the big stone piers. Salesmen on ground every afternoon until dark. Come today, take your pick, we'll hold it for you.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Mayflower Crowd

"When Myles marries, which, of course, he must to carry on the name, it will be a notable alliance."

Mrs. Pierpont Goodwin smirked a little and lowered her lorgnette.

Mrs. Westbury Ames nodded.

"It will be within our circle, naturally," she murmured.

"Oh, quite. Myles understands, and then, I fawncy he could never become interested in any common sort of girl."

"Indeed, no. I was telling Westbury recently, after Myles had been over for dinner with my Cabot, that Myles certainly lives up to the true Pilgrim traditions."

Mrs. Pierpont permitted herself to smile at this. It pleased her.

"Myles," she said, "is all that the son of a Pierpont Goodwin and an Arabella Strout should be."

"Blood will tell, my dear, as I so often remark to Westbury when we discuss our Cabot."

Murdock, the maid, brought tea and then adjusted the window draperies, permitting a trifle more light to come through those ancient lilac-tinted window panes that had faced Beacon street since so long ago as Gen. Gage had encamped his soldiers just below the house on Boston Common.

A few moments later the Misses Humps and their niece, Alicia Perkins, were announced.

Before Murdock could bring them in Mrs. Goodwin whispered to Mrs. Ames: "I rawther believe Myles favors Alicia."

"Lovely," was all that Mrs. Ames could murmur before the tea guests came in.

Then followed the customary Back-Bay chatter of those self-styled God's elect, a bit about a recent lecture, mention of a concert, chatter concerning Mrs. Lovett's second marriage to a man whose people had lived in America only two generations—which would almost put her beyond the pale of their recognition.

Myles Arrives

"Quite too bad," the older Miss Humes said, "since Mrs. Lovett herself and poor Mr. Lovett were both descended from Mayflower stock."

They all agreed.

And then Myles Goodwin arrived.

Myles had been "clearing up matters," as he said, at his State street office preparatory to going on a roughing-it trip with Cabot Ames.

"You will enjoy it, Myles," Alicia Perkins told him. "We motored through to Bar Harbor last season, stopping two nights along the way. Those Maine natives are positively intriguing, so quaint and—er—"

"Natural," Myles finished for her. "They are real people. I've been down there on the coast many seasons now, for the cruise and the fishing, and I'm rather strong for those people."

"Strong, Myles?"

His mother arched her eyebrows.

"Yes, Mater, meaning that I like them; they are mighty fine folks."

"To be sure, Myles, as—er—as types."

"As people," Myles said, and turned to ask Alicia about the new club house at the North Shore, where Alicia's people had their summer home.

Myles went out to the car with the Misses Humes and Alicia.

"It would be a noteworthy match, your Myles and Alicia," Mrs. Ames said, "her family dates right back to the Mayflower, just as does the family of Myrna Allen."

"Indeed, yes—and when will Cabot's engagement to Myrna be formally announced?"

"They haven't quite decided. Perhaps after Myrna returns from abroad and Cabot and Myles complete their roughing-it trip on the Maine coast."

At dinner that night Myles wished he didn't always have to get into dinner clothes when he and his mother were alone. He wanted to go up attic afterward and go through his fishing tackle.

But he very properly drew out the chair for his mother and dined in state as usual.

"Alicia," said his mother, "is a dear. She is my favorite—attractive, refined and has a perfect background. Like ourselves, Myles, there is no break in the line—we trace back clearly to the Mayflower. What a splendid match it would be for you."

Mother's Wish

"Me? Alicia? Oh, matrimony, eh? Now, Mater, don't go marrying me off as though I were an elder daughter or something. Time enough for that."

"I hope I am not so crude, Myles; nevertheless, I want you to marry. I want to know that the name will go on, and I would be quite heartbroken if you did not marry in our own circle. Now, Alicia——"

"Great girl, Mater. I like her, she's regular. As for getting married now — I don't think either of us is keen for it, yet."

"Not immediately, but in another year or so, Myles, and I'm delighted. I take it from what you say that you and Alicia already have a perfect understanding—it makes me most happy."

Myles Goodwin hadn't the heart to explain that he and Alicia had no such understanding and probably never would have.

Next day he and his best pal, Cabot Ames, started in Cabot's 40-foot power launch for the Maine coast. This was early in July. Mrs. Goodwin went, as usual, to her 14-room "cottage" At Manchester-by-the-Sea. To her surprise, Myles did not join her later, having written that he was going to spend the entire summer on the Maine coast.

His mother had been home some weeks when he got back, in early September.

"I cannot understand, Myles, whatever kept you on the Maine coast for so long. Alicia Perkins was over with me for a week, and I am sure she was disappointed."

"I don't think so, Mater, and, well, anyway, you'd better know the good news right now—I'm going to be married."

Mrs. Pierpont Goodwin stared at her son and twice attempted to speak before she managed to murmur faintly, "Married? Not married, really?"

"Really married. She's wonderful, mater, the sweetest, cleverest—"

"Myles! Is she—she is, of course, one of us, circle?"

"She's all that my wife should be, did you think—"

"Mayflower stock?" his mother went on relentlessly.

Myles shook his head.

"The young lady who has done me the honor to accept me is Miss Sallie Aldridge. She and her married sister are visiting relatives in Brookline now, and I wish you would let me bring her—"

"Aldridge—Aldridge? I don't know the name, Myles. Where was she born, who are her people, what is her background?"

Mother Objects

"She was born in Pemaquid, Maine. Her people were Aldridges and Pophams and Weymouths and so on and so on, and her background is the coast of Maine."

"Myles—how can you be flippant when my heart is breaking?"

"I want you to see her, mother. She is visiting with the Garners, you know Mary Garner—"

"I must think," said Mrs. Pierpont Goodwin, putting her hand to her head and going to her room. But she had already thought. She was going right out to Mary Garner's place in Brookline and see this upstart Maine Coast girl who dared make her son fall in love!

She went out and became painfully patronizing to Sallie Aldridge, so much so that Sallie, having plenty of backbone and independence, greatly resented it.

"Ah, yes, the Maine coast people are rawther quaint, as I recall it," Mrs. Goodwin said to Sallie. "Our people, you know, are of the Mayflower stock."

"Oh, yes; that Mayflower crowd," said Sally; "terribly over-advertised."

Mary Gardner came along just then and prevented what might have been a scene.

At dinner that night Mrs. Goodwin was decidedly grim.

"Sorry to have to trot, Mater, but I'm taking Sallie over to Alicia's," Myles said after dinner.

"Myles, the time has come for me to be firm. I do not approve of this Aldridge person and I object most strenuously to any such a marriage. She—she had the audacity today to call our ancestors 'that Mayflower crowd' and to say that they were terribly over-advertised!"

"Good for Sallie—and you'll get over it. I'm to marry Sallie in October. See you in the morning!"

Mrs. Pierpont Goodwin put in a miserable night. Myles did not bring Sallie home, preferring to wait a while. A week later at the Historical Branch of the Settlers Society, held at Mrs. Ames' home, Miss Sallie Aldridge, upon invitation, read a paper—it was more of a talk. Mrs. Goodwin was there, grim and almost sneering.

"More disgusting than amusing, a Maine coast native trying to tell us about the history of the settlers," she whispered to Mrs. Ames.

Sally Explains

"Just the other day," Sallie started out, "a dear old lady was terribly shocked when I told her that the Mayflower crowd was terribly over-advertised. However, I meant it, and cannot retract. But I can explain.

"In the town where I was born, Pemaquid Beach, there was a fort, a settlement, a ship landing and two paved streets 13 years before the Pilgrims landed on Cape Cod. And during the times that the much-advertised 'Mayflower stock' nearly all died of starvation, the sturdy settlers at Pemaquid sent two shiploads of fish to them—saving their lives. Nor can it be said that this was business, because the Pemaquid settlers made no charge for these fish—it was the gift of a stronger and more able colony to a newer and weaker one."

Sallie paused.

Sniffs and gasps were audible throughout the room.

"The Aldridges," Sallie went on, "sailed from Plymouth, England, June 10, 1607, in the ship 'Mary and John' and landed at Pemaquid, August 10 of the same year."

Sallie went into more details.

Mrs. Pierpont Goodwin searched old records frantically for several days and then asked Myles to bring Miss Aldridge to see her.

"My dear," she said, "I am delighted at Myles' good fortune, and when anyone asks me about my son's wife I shall tell them that he married the descendant of a much older and abler American colony than that Mayflower crowd!"

GOBI DESERT GIVES UP PRE-HISTORIC SECRET!

Our expedition into the Gobi Desert reports several valuablediscoveries indicating that primitive peoples lived, loved and laughed much as they do today. Of interest is the above drawing, scratched on an elephant's tusk, while beneath were scrawled the following words, written, of course, in the old Tartar symbols, which we have deciphered thus—

"Wife reading from 'Weekly Hornblower': 'Say, Amby darling! It says here that your old chum, Nick Gingus, is about to go over, bag and baggage, scrip and scrippage to the ranks of Hymen. Sensible man, don't you think?'"

According to Vice President Curtis, "What we need now more than ever is reverence for the Constitution and respect for the courts of our country."

Anyway, that's what the Constitution and the courts need more than ever.

Some slot machines and punch-boards go too far and are gambling devices. We have hesitated to interfere, but when the boys play coin after coin, and get nothing in return, that is asking too much indulgence of the officers. Modern business seems to be going nutty on such contrivances, and we are going to insist that you take them out. Please do so, and save trouble and expense.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella:

What name is applied to a soprano who can produce the effect of runs and trills and other florid decorations in her singing?—AMBITIOUS.

Ans.—It all depends upon whether or not you're listening to her, Sister. But as far as Aunt Bella is concerned, you can go as far as you like.

—Aunt (Broad-Minded) Bella.

Ability More Desirable In Congress Than Number

Pennsylvania, it seems, is to lose one seat in the National House of Representatives, and may lose two. Under the terms of the reapportionment act we will not be entitled, by our 1930 population figures, to as large a delegation as now represents us in Congress.

In matters peculiarly affecting the state's welfare it is desirable, of course, that we should command as many votes as possible; but the loss of a seat or two is, on the whole, nothing to become depressed over.

Allegheny County's quota of five representatives will apparently not be disturbed. That will be particularly gratifying to the politicians to whom public office means opportunities for jobs and privileges.

To citizens who do not seek favors the quality of our congressmen is far more important than their number. A single representative of conspicuous ability might conceivably be of more value to Allegheny County than five of small caliber. An outstanding congressman of the statesman type confers genuine prestige on his district, and by his influence may accomplish more for it than could be accomplished by half a dozen mediocre representatives of the ward politician type.

Allegheny County has been represented in Washington by both types. It reflects credit on the sagacity of the citizens that the abler congressmen have generally been repeatedly re-elected, while the careers of the ward politicians in Washington have been brief.

The late Stephen G. Porter was of the statesman type. With men of his caliber representing Pennsylvania, even a small delegation would command respect and wield power. It is to be hoped that the Republican County Committee, in filling the vacancy on the ballot created by Mr. Porter's death, will endeavor to give us another such representative.

Music by Pittsburghers That Is Worth Playing

In the September number of a popular magazine Toscanini, who conducted the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York on its European tour, is quoted as saying he presented no American compositions in his programs because "he knew no American music that he considered worth playing."

What a blow to our pride! How humiliating would be this indictment of a nation of 122,728,873 people if it were true, as Toscanini believes, that we have produced no music worth playing. Happily it is not true, and, if we are to be charitable, we must suppose either that the great conductor spoke thoughtlessly or has a very limited acquaintance with American compositions.

If we confine ourselves to Pittsburgh composers we will find many musical works that have received the world's recognition as worth playing. Stephen C. Foster's songs are almost as well known in London as in Pittsburgh. Ethelbert Nevin's pieces are played everywhere. His brother, Arthur Finley Nevin's grand opera "Poia" had its premiere at the Royal Opera House in Berlin.

Apropos of grand operas, it is interesting to note that of those by American composers that have been produced by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York a number are the works of former Pittsburghers; for example, "Shanewis" and "A Witch of Salem," by Charles Wakefield Cadman, who used to play the organ at the East Liberty Presbyterian Church and write music reviews for the Dispatch; "The Legend," by Joseph Carl Breil, born in Pittsburgh and for many years tenor soloist and choir director at St. Paul's Cathedral, and "Natoma," by Victor Herbert, one-time conductor of the Pittsburgh Orchestra.

If Toscanini, in arranging his European programs, had considered nothing worth playing that was inferior to the compositions, say, of Beethoven, he might have been excused for his slighting remarks. But the fact is he included pieces by foreigners with whom our own composers will compare favorably.

Interesting Observations By Observers of Traffic

The Better Traffic Committee has commissioned 500 citizens as traffic observers, their duty being to report violations of driving regulations. Their identity is kept a close secret. They do not know themselves who their fellow-observers are, so it behooves you, Mr. Motorist, to watch your driving. Although no policeman may be in sight, it is still quite possible that your machine is under observation.

The July report on the observations of the 500, which has just been issued, has some interesting features. The leading offenses noted, in the order named, were disobedience of stop and go signals, reckless driving, driving to the left of street cars, "snake" driving and dangerous speed.

Now there are few drivers who do not at one time or another offend in some matter against the regulations. But although all may have been at various times under observation by their unknown fellow-observers, none of the 500 has as yet been reported for any violation. The car of one of the observers was, indeed, reported, but he himself was not driving nor in the car when it was observed.

Has the fact that they have been commissioned to observe others made the observers more careful themselves? If so, why not make all drivers observers; or, if that is impractical, commission as many as possible.

"Eventually—Why Not Now?" -:- By Hal Coffman

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Questions and Answers

Although we stopped being a bright boy many years ago and never had a hopeful relapse, we feel that we are allowed to answer Mr. Edison's questions on the basis of our next childhood.

"Bugs" Baer went along as knock-down time keepers.

Mr. Edison invited 50 bright boys to visit him at West Orange. Mr. Ford and Mr. Firestone went along as knock-down time keepers.

Then Mr. Edison asked these sparkling juveniles some questions that should only be answered through a full beard.

What is the approximate value of a small coupe which has run 5,000 miles?

That's a fine collegiate interrogation if you graduated through a paper hoop.

Who's in the coupe? Where's it going? And what for? There is much more to a motor car than the mere polishing of the hood.

Is it going toward Cicero or returning from Canada? That's got a lot to do with the approximate auction sale. Who's chasing it?

What color is it, Thomas? And do you have to call out the militia to pry up the rumble seat?

Now for the second question. What is the value of 10 acres of good farm land in Iowa?

Well, you're a fish if you don't trade in the second question for the first.

The value of 10 acres of land in Iowa depend on the help you get from Congress. And that free seed each spring would even make a canary bird demand better legislation and food laws.

Third question. You are alone on a desert island with plenty of people. One of your companions is a man who asks questions. Another is a trick bicycle rider. Your guide couldn't find the sun in the Sahara Desert and the last man is a rich uncle who balances his gout on shock absorbing rubber heels.

If you had your choice of bridge dummies, which one would you choose?

None of 'em. We would call for a meeting of minority stockholders and organize a company to remove bird nests from the ears of champion tree sitters.

Why did Mr. Edison go to the expense of freighting 50 bright boys to West Orange when one intelligent youngster could have eliminated him from the tournament?

PLANETARY SYSTEMS

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most singular of popular delusion is the notion that our planetary system is a familiar collocation, reproduced ad infinitum throughout the endless reaches of cosmic space. But the most exact calculations demonstrate, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that almost the exact opposite is the case.

The argument is based upon a certain hypothesis, now pretty generally accepted, as to the mode of formation of a planetary system. The heavens are full of a vast variety of systems, and the scientists have displayed great skill and ingenuity in setting up plausible theories as to the formation of these systems. The mystic word, in the poem of cosmogony, is rotation. The Builder, at the beginning of things, set matter in rotation. Some bodies rotated slowly upon their own axes; others sped up to very high velocities until fission took place, the two parts broke away from each other and thus set up a binary system, each part revolving about the other.

Suppose, however, that one of the more slowly rotating bodies, moving in a stately manner along its orbit, approaches another star. The chances of a head-on collision are almost zero. But sometimes two stars approach each other quite closely. Huge tides of gaseous matter are raised on each star, and these may fly off into huge condensations, which become planetary to the bodies from which they emanate. This, it appear, is the probably origin of the solar system.

Statistical considerations show that this particular phenomenon cannot possibly occur very often. Although there are an uncountable number of stars and they have been moving about through space for millions upon millions of years, the chance of the near approach of two stars is only about one in one hundred thousand. That means only one star in about 100,000 can be surrounded by planets originating in the manner described. As Jeane says in his fascinating little book, Eos, or the Wider Aspects of Cosmogony: "A quite unusual accident is necessary to produce planets, and our sun, with its family of attendant planets, is rather of the nature of an astronomical freak."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

CAN A YOUNG COUPLE SAVE MORE IF THEY BOTH WORK?

DOES THE YOUNG WIFE'S PAY CHECK REALLY SWELL THE FAMILY EXCHEQUER?

Thousands of working wives will protest that it does.

"Why, we couldn't get along at all if I didn't work," they'll cry. And they really believe it.

Louise Temple believed that, too—once. Her letter lies before me as I write. It is—though she never guessed this when she wrote it—much more than a letter. It's sociological data. The sort of data that makes history some day. Read it. Then think honestly about the homes you know where both wife and husband work. Does it really pay? Or are their earnings more than offset by additional expenses in clothes, rent and food?

And those priceless things—babies, peace and the quiet bond that comes with the years—are those homes richer in such treasure? Or are they going deeper into the red each year?

DEAR ELSIE ROBINSON:

You ask if wives should work. I have only one answer—NO! I am one of the legion of working wives, and I know.

My husband and I have been married nearly five years. We have saved a little, but I am sure that we could have had as much in the bank had I never worked a day. The more we make the more we spend. And yet we try so hard to be economical.

In all these debates about whether wives should work, you hear so much about what the wife earns. . . . BUT YOU NEVER HEAR ABOUT WHAT HER JOB COSTS. YET ACTUALLY A WIFE'S JOB USUALLY ADDS TO THE HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES.

In the first place, if a woman works in an office she usually has to be near the business center, and that means higher rent. Then she has to dress better—much better. A woman can wear out her old clothes around a home. She can't in an office. It costs even the simply dressed office girl three times as much to dress as it does the housewife. And don't forget dry cleaning and extra shoes and carfare. And, biggest of all, is the problem of cooking and sewing. The woman who works in an office, unless she's unusually strong and clever, buys ready-made clothes and ready-made food. And you know the cost of that.

My own experience is typical. I know dozens of working wives who could tell the same tale. When I first started to work it was to be just for a year or two in order to save for a home and get money together for a couple of babies. The babies are still far off, and I'm growing old. Then I broke down and had to stay home for nearly a year, but as soon as I could walk I was back on the job. And are we getting happier, as married people should? I'll say we're not. Our life seems to be filled with petty spats. I am so tired all the time. I get mad because my hours are longer than my husband's and yet I have all the housework to do when I get back at seven.

But if I talk of stopping now the cry is "How can we live?"

It is true I might not have so many clothes if I stopped and he probably couldn't play golf, but we could live—yes, and save, too. Our salaries are small, too, but it can be done.

IF I HAD IT TO DO OVER AGAIN I WOULD LIVE IN A SINGLE ROOM AND EAT CHEESE AND CRACKERS RATHER THAN WORK OUTSIDE MY HOME. IT DOESN'T PAY—EITHER IN MONEY OR THE THINGS THAT ARE WORTH MORE THAN MONEY.

Mrs. L. T.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Since Mr. Coolidge has been writing for the papers the boys in Washington have been re-telling a lot of jokes about how Cal saved up words while he was President.

One of the stories is about a newspaper man that met the President away off from Washington, out in the Black Hills, maybe it was. This here reporter thought he might get the boss to talk a little when he was maybe off his guard, so far from home.

So Cal answered every question with, "No." Or he would say, "I can't say nothing about that," or "Don't quote me."

Finally, when the reporter was about to go away, he says to Coolidge, "Say, Mr. President, ain't you going to give me anything at all to print?"

"No," says Coolidge, "and please remember that everything I haven't said is not for publication either!"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Old Carpenter

The old carpenter whistles a merry lay
With seldom a moment's pause,
Timing to music the whole bright day
As he hammers and nails and saws.

He labors with level and adz and plane,
Till each timber stands straight and true,
As he whistles all day his happy refrain;
He is building a house for two!

Summer day's heat pours from the sun's bright flask;
But the carpenter's notes are sweet,
For he knows he toils at a magic task
In that house on a quiet street.

He knows he is making a castle in Spain
For a queen to wander through,
With a proud young king to share her reign;
He is building a house for two!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Today, visible differences between the chromosomes in the two sexes have been detected in insects, centipedes and spiders; in mammals, such as rat, horse, opossum, dog, cat, monkey and man; in birds, reptiles and amphibians; in sea-urchins and roundworms and molluscs; in some liverworts and flowering plants which separate sexes, such as docks, campions and the Canadian water-weed elodea.

In the vast majority, as in the plant-bug, it is the male who has the unsymmetrical chromosome outfit, and the sperms therefore which are the decisive begetters either of males or females. The eggs have no voice in the matter. Very strangely, however, two groups show the opposite condition; in the birds and in the butterflies and moths the male is chromosomally symmetrical and the female unsymmetrical, so that here it is the eggs which are of two kinds.

H. G. Wells.

This fact is all the more remarkable, since in other vertebrate and in other insects it is the male who is unsymmetrical, as usual.

We may note that the discovery that sex is determined at the moment of fertilization, explains an odd fact about twins.

There are, as we have seen, two kinds of twins. Sometimes two children are born together, no more alike than brothers and sisters usually are. This is due to two eggs descending into the oviducts and being fertilized instead of the normal one.

But real twins are of the Tweedledum and Tweedledee type—practically indistinguishable from each other. In this case a single early embryo has divided into halves and each has grown into a complete child.

Now it has long been known that whereas the first kind of twin may or may not be of the same sex, identical twins are invariably both boys or both girls. Why?

In the first case there is evidently no particular reason why the two should be of the same sex, any more than there is why two consecutive children be of the same sex. It is pure chance.

But in the second case the twins are really parts of the same zygote, with the same chromosome-constitution — hence their close resemblance to one another, and, since sex is a Mendelian character, hence their identity of sex.

SEC. 2. PROPORTION OF THE SEXES.

Once the underlying chromosome machinery of sex-determination had been understood, the remarkable fact that in most animals the two sexes are produced in roughly equal numbers was explained. Hitherto it had been entirely mysterious.

But since one sex produces equal numbers of male-determining and female-determining gametes, and the gametes of the other are all alike, it follows that in the long run the offspring must be male and female in about the same proportion.

This equal ratio may be upset, however, by various influences. One sex, for example, may be less resistant than the other. In man, for instance, more males die than females; the difference is greatest in early life, but continues up to old age.

The result is that old women outnumber old men; among people over 70 in England there are roughly three women to every two men. That this is a constitutional difference is shown by its being even more pronounced before than after birth.

In the United Kingdom, the proportion of male to female deaths before birth is about 150 to 100; for still-births it is 135 to 100; and for the first year of life it is down to about 120 boys to 100 girls. And just the same happens in other mammals, such as cattle.

The probable explanation of this lesser constitutional resistance of the male mammal is also concerned with his sex-chromosomes. As he has only one X, any recessive sex-linked genes will show their effects at once in males, while in females they will often be marked by the effect of dominant partners.

Thus, all recessive sex-linked genes with weakening effect will often be marked by the effect of dominant partners.

Thus, all recessive sex-linked genes with weakening effect will be able to exert this effect much more often on males than on females.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

BERLIN.—Berlin is not, of course, so gay as in pre-war days of swollen wealth, but there are no surface indications of depression from the vast unemployment. The big problem is to absorb growth, the city having grown from 3,000,000 to 4,500,000 since the war.

The jobless receive a weekly dole of $7.50, and if one knows Berlin it is easy to live comfortably on that. I visited an American newspaper correspondent whose $40 a month apartment would cost him $200 a month in New York. With two servants and a car his expenses total $50 a week. Cafe life is dead at night but brisk during the day.

In warm weather tables are moved to sidewalks and a white picket fence is set around them. The fence is a little puzzling. It offers no privacy and is a barrier getting in and out. The music is invariably of a high order. I have heard no jazz here and you cannot imagine how pleasant that is!

The popular restaurants are those like the Vaterland, seating from 2,000 to 6,000. Vaterland has eight different cafes under an illuminated whirling roof. It offers scenes and music from Seville to Stamboul. Bohemian cafes are in a section called Kurfurstendamm. Here Rupert Brooke wrote "Granchester."

Last night we visited House-on-Sea, on the edge of a silvery lake near Potsdam. A huge platter of flaming red lobsters is brought for personal selection. I selected one that reminded me of Paul Whiteman on a hot night and it was sliced expertly on a special board at my side.

Melons, too, are brought without the seedy interiors removed and they disembowel them before your eyes—a sort of Epicurean rite that didn't whip up my appetite. The most expensive restaurant of all, however, is Horcher's. Hugo Stinnes, the Rockefeller of Germany, was a regular client.

It seats only 80 and there are no prices on the menu. You pay as you like when you go out. If you do not pay, your bill shows up magically by post. There is no record of anyone leaving Germany without settling with Horcher's, an extraordinary tribute in itself. Father and son wait on tables.

The first de luxe—and still the "de luxiest" hotel—in Berlin is the Adlon at No. 1 Unter den Linden, erected 22 years ago with the Kaiser laying the cornerstone. It is conducted by Louis Adlon, son of the founder, a sportsman and owner of fast motor cars. The Adlon is equipped with beds of hand-chipped bronze and things like that. A bust of the unhorsed Kaiser stands in the lobby.

* * *

A notable example of German thrift is in front of one of the big department stores. There is an outside booth where cigar smokers may snuff out their lighted ends and check them until they do their shopping. There is, of course, no tipping for the service.

At the zoo, in almost the heart of town, one may take the cure of any of famous spas in bottled form. Those who go in for the innovation must be on hand at 6 a. m. to drink the prescribed potions and partake of the same breakfasts served at Baden-Baden, Carlsbad or any of the others. A huge orchestra renders operatic selections.

* * *

In beer shops at 7 in the morning appear radish seliers in short leather pants and with bare legs selling a long radish that is scraped with all the finesse of a diamond cutter. They execute the job perspiring freely and breathing heavily and receive 20 pfennings, a nickel, for the finished article. The radishes are grown near Munich and after one bite I glanced about for a fire box.

Berlin bars are the most aristocratic in the world and their international bartenders are not only linguists but often men of education. The bars are richly carpeted, offering arm chairs in fierce velours, small orchestras, waiters in full evening dress and bar maids with a dash of sex appeal. They are modestly lighted and a bit dreary—suggestive habitues are wrestling like New York night club patrons with the age-old problem of trying futilely to escape from themselves.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Sometimes you wonder if what you do for suffering humanity is worth the effort it costs you?

You have had experiences in which you felt that you were victimized by those whom you tried to assist.

You blame them for trying to get more and more out of you.

Apparently there is not the slightest degree of gratitude.

There are many among those who seek aid who are wily, sharp individuals who do not need the help they seek.

There are others who are really worthy of help.

That such people may spend the money you give them foolishly or take very little care of the articles you present them is not surprising.

They may not have brains to enable them to have a proper conception of values.

If they had, the chances are they would not need your help.

If you have people of this sort on your list you should try to meet their necessities by buying those things which they need.

Give money a little at a time.
